Reveals More Jap Destroyers Hit.

Yanks on Roviana?

NEW YORK, July 13 (AP).—A Berlin broadcast quoting a Japanese communique said tonight that American forces have occupied the island of Roviana and were bombed by Japanese planes. The broadcast, recorded by NBC, said the island gave the Americans footing on two sides of the Kula gulf. The occupation of the island has not been confirmed by allied headquarters. A Japanese communique on July 9 also said the allies were attacking on Roviana, a densely wooded island off the New Georgia coast, a short distance from Munda point.

SOUTH PACIFIC HDQ., July 14 [Wednesday] — (AP). — The United States navy sustained only slight damage in sinking at least four and probably six Japanese cruisers and destroyers during Tuesday's pre-day second battle of the Kula gulf, an informed source said today. In addition, damage was inflicted on other enemy destroyers.

[Headquarters of Gen. MacArthur previously had announced that a cruiser and three destroyers were definitely sunk and two other destroyers probably sunk, but had made no mention of our own losses.]

Six Ships Intercepted.

The battle was "almost a repeat performance" of the week before, when nine enemy cruisers and destroyers were sent to the bottom of the narrow body of water between New Georgia and Kolombangara Islands in the central Solomons.

In the latest battle our cruisers and destroyers first intercepted six enemy ships which were leaving the gulf. A light cruiser and three destroyers are known to have fallen prey to the roaring guns of our warships and two other destroyers were believed sunk. That would account for all of the six ships.

Second Group Attacked.

A second group of four destroyers later was encountered and some damage was inflicted on them, an informed source said.

The Japanese force had been spotted the previous [Monday] afternoon by army and navy reconnaissance planes.

Our surface ships thus were able for the second time to surprise a section of the "Tokio Express" in an attempt to bring either aid or reenforcements to its imperiled New Georgia garrison at Munda.

The battle was over in a short time, and with the coming of daylight our planes were unable to find any crippled Japanese warships, as they had done after the first battle on July 5 and 6.

PUSH NEARER MUNDA

ALLIED HDQ. IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, July 14 [Wednesday]—(AP).—With a Japanese task force thwarted in efforts to supply the beleaguered garrison at Munda and sent fleeing to the north, American ground troops on New Georgia have moved up cautiously against the enemy air base and met "stiffening resistance."

Today's communique from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters confirmed that the second battle of the Kula gulf, which occurred in the darkness of Monday night and early Tuesday, was another United States naval victory with an enemy cruiser and three destroyers definitely sunk and two other enemy destroyers probably sunk.

Our warships intercepted the enemy units and forced them to break off the engagement. There was no mention of any United States losses.

In the latest naval defeat of the enemy in the central Solomons it was believed that some other Japa-

A. L. ALL-STARS TRIUMPH, 5 TO 3, OVER NATIONALS

The American league last night whipped the National league, 5 to 3, in the 11th annual All-Star game, played in Philadelphia's Shibe park before a near capacity crowd of 31,938. Bobby Doerr of the Boston Red Sox smashed a three run homer off Mort Cooper of the St. Louis Cardinals in the second inning for the most important hit of the game. It was the Americans' eighth victory in the series. Score:

BRITISH MAKE NEW LANDINGS NEAR CATANIA

Americans Drive 20 Miles to Ragusa.

Rommel Shot Down?

LONDON, July 13 (AP). — A roundabout and unconfirmed report said tonight that Marshal Erwin Rommel was shot down by allied fighter pilots on his way to Sicily on Tuesday. There has been no allied claim of such an incident. The report was said to have originated with the German underground radio station "Atlantic." According to this version, Rommel, with German and Italian aides, was said to have been traveling in a transport plane under a strong fighter escort en route to Sicily to take command there.

ALLIED HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, July 13 (AP).—British troops swarmed ashore today near Catania, midway up the eastern Sicilian coast toward Messina, and also captured the port of Augusta. Meanwhile it was announced that the crack German Hermann Goering division had tried to halt spreading American gains on the allied left flank to the southwest.

Altogether the allies captured five more towns today for a total of 15 in their swift invasion; behind them supply troops were bringing food for Sicilians.

Rushing from the interior to stiffen Italy's 4th Livorno division, Goering's troops collided for the first time in force with the American 7th army under Lt. Gen. George S. Patton Jr., on Sunday near Gela.

Knock Out 10 German Tanks.

The Americans knocked out 10 old type German Mark IV. tanks and swept inland 20 miles to meet British and Canadian armies at Ragusa to form a solid junction thruout southeastern Sicily along primary and secondary roads. Floridia, Palazzolo, and Modica fell to the British and Canadians in their swift drive inland from captured Syracuse to join hands with the Americans.

[A London dispatch said the Reuters (British) news agency had recorded a broadcast from the Algiers radio reporting that allied forces which captured Ragusa had driven to the outskirts of Comiso airdrome about 7½ miles to the west. Algiers also said "heavy fighting" took place between allied forces and strong German units after the capture of Floridia, which lies west of Syracuse. There was no confirmation of these reports.]

Goering's troops were believed reforming for another slash at the Americans.

Land Food for Populace.

In their onrushing conquest the American, British, and Canadian armies under Gen. Eisenhower were operating with precision, fed by a flow of ships bridging the Mediterranean.

This efficiency was illustrated in an official announcement at a command post that supplies for the civilian population already had been unloaded in Sicily. Particular foods, and cigarets which had been rationed severely under axis rule, were among the cargoes to be distributed in the wake of allied troops.

More than 6,000 prisoners have been taken, including four lieutenant colonels who walked into allied lines to surrender. Gen. Achilles D'Avet, commander of the 106th Italian coastal division, also was captured—the first ranking enemy officer bagged since the invasion began last Saturday.

[The London Daily Herald quoted an Algiers broadcast as saying that the Americans alone took 7,000 captives.]

Air scouts reported an important flow of axis reënforcements, presumably Germans among them, from the interior. They were rushing for the American positions on the

Calls Bridges Veiled Enemy of U. S. Ideals

New York, July 13 [Special].—Joseph P. Ryan, president of the AFL Longshoremen's association, today charged that Harry Bridges of the CIO Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's union, Joseph Curran, president of the CIO National Maritime union, "and their numerous Communist stooges" have pledged support to the war program "only as a mask under which they are trying to undermine American standards and ideals on the waterfront." He spoke before 350 delegates at his organization's annual convention.

Producing government testimonials of his union's record in handling loads for the army and navy, Ryan accused Bridges and Curran of "spreading completely unfounded and baseless rumors about the efficiency of our loading operations on the east coast."

Charges Facts Hidden.

These attacks were made, Ryan said, to "hide from the public the fact that Bridges' union is responsible for the terribly inefficient conditions prevailing on the west coast—conditions which almost constitute a slowdown."

"The ILA members," he continued, "can't forget that before Russia was invaded both Bridges and Curran were promising their comrades that neither union would help the 'imperialist war.' Now they're all out for unity and a second front."

Ryan scoffed at Curran's resolution calling for a second front.

"Curran, unlike many an ILA official," he said, "won't be there to face the Nazi guns when that front is opened. We're not asking our men to be deferred as essential, but Curran's NMU howled that he was necessary to the war effort when he was about to be drafted. Therefore, he was deferred."

Plans Continued Fight.

Ryan made his criticism in presenting the annual report of the association. He indicated that he would be obliged to ask for additional funds with which to fight "these subversive movements."

The ILA president also called for readmittance of the United Mine Workers of America into the AFL fold as the first step toward labor unity. In another part of his report he attacked the war labor board for its "mechanical adherence" to the Little Steel formula.

"This convention," he told the delegates, "will call upon the government to either roll back prices or abandon the Little Steel formula."

3,515 ENEMY PLANES DESTROYED BY U. S. FLYERS, ARNOLD SAYS

Los Angeles, Cal., July 13 [Special].—Lt. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the army air forces, said in an interview here today that army flyers in the last six months have destroyed 3,515 enemy planes in the course of 89,691 combat sorties at a cost of 846 American planes.

The general added that our men in the same period also probably destroyed 1,187 planes and damaged 1,260 others. The army record against enemy ships in this period was 121 sunk, 74 probably sunk, and 318 hit, he said.

Commenting on the accident rate, Gen. Arnold said the public should remember that there are 80,000 men flying in the air forces each day within continental United States. He said it is not the army's policy to keep boys on the fighting fronts until they are worn out, but that more than 9,000 officers and men of the army air forces have been brought back to the United States to help train new men.

WATCHED PEAS AS RATION CUE, BUT STILL PAID

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 13.—Dropping peas into a pot, to keep check on the cups of coffee, tea, and other hot beverages sold, cost William Francis, London cafe owner, a $48 fine in Guildhall court today.

Francis told the court he was ignorant of bookkeeping and had adopted the primitive method of calculating hot drink sales so that he could claim the proper rations. Each week, he said, he counted the peas and on that basis filled out his application to the ministry of food for tea and other commodities.

The ministry of food frowned on this system of elementary arithmetic, however, and haled Francis into court for failing to keep accurate returns.

Britain Holds Chocolate as No. 1 Vitamin Container

LONDON, July 13.—Because the British food ministry has discovered that chocolate is the best available "vitamin container," British civilians will be getting fewer chocolates and more other sweets beginning in about eight weeks, it was announced today. The explanation is that large supplies of chocolate will be diverted as a vehicle for vitamins A, B, C, and D for European children between 7 and 14 years old when the continent is reoccupied by the allies.

A Rich Maker of War Goods Tells Troubles

Titus Haffa, who rose from newsboy to alderman, from alderman to bootlegger, and from bootlegger to business man—and somewhere along the line became a millionaire—yesterday won a $5,000 reduction in his personal property taxes for the years 1939, 1940, and 1941.

He complained in court that he was unable to touch $8,000,000 in war profits in order to pay the $8,000 in taxes which remained against him.

Haffa, former Republican committeeman of the 43d ward, lives at 4300 Marine drive. He appeared before Judge William V. Brothers in Circuit court to answer a state's attorney's suit for collection of the personal property assessments. When the court agreed to the reduction of the taxes from $13,000 to $7,999.85, he protested.

Owns 18 Companies.

"I own 18 different companies." Haffa flicked a speck off his light tan summer suit. He straightened the large gardenia in the buttonhole. "Eighteen companies," he repeated. "They all do war work and my profit is $8,000,000. But what's $8,000,000 when you can't touch it?"

William Kearney, assistant state's attorney, smiled. "But, Titus," Kearney said gently, "the taxes you owe are for the inventory of the Guardian Electrical Manufacturing company at 1621 Walnut street. They all accrued prior to any war profits."

"O!" retorted Haffa. "Yes, yes; that's right. Well, we manufactured pinball machines out there during those years. Then Mayor Kelly barred pinball machines and we had a large inventory, it's true, but it was mostly junk because of the mayor's ruling."

Said Kearney: "In 1942 that junk did a business of $800,000."

Can't Touch It, Either.

"Yes, yes; but that's like the rest of my profits," Haffa said. "I can't touch it. All subject to—to renegotiations. Why, this morning alone I had a conference with four army colonels about profits."

Haffa finally agreed to pay the $7,999.85 on assessed valuations of $145,841.

Haffa was arrested for violating the prohibition law in 1929 while he was alderman of the 43d ward.

Pvt. Melvyn Douglas Made Army Captain

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—The sudden promotion of Pvt. Melvyn Douglas, former Hollywood actor, whose real name is Melvyn Hesselberg, to a captaincy after only seven months in the army was suggested as a subject for congressional inquiry today by Rep. James H. Morrison [D., La.].

The former screen star's magic formula for military success ought to be publicized as a boon to the nation's morale and as a stimulant to our fighting men in North Africa, Sicily, and the southwest Pacific, Morrison declared in a statement in which he asked the house military affairs committee to delve into the circumstances accompanying the promotion.

Sets Promotion Record.

Dispatches from Houston, Tex., last Friday stated that Douglas or Hesselberg made some kind of record when he was promoted from private first class to captain, and assigned to headquarters of the 8th service command, assisting in the sale of war bonds and stamps. He had been inducted at Washington last Dec. 6, almost exactly seven months before.

Word of Douglas' progress in the army recalled criticism of him before his enlistment in connection with his association with the office of civilian defense, in which he headed an arts council. His salary was first authoritatively reported to be $8,000 a year, but when 1941 Dies committee disclosures of Douglas' association with several Communist front activities were brought up, James M. Landis, OCD director, officially announced that Douglas was serving without compensation, but received $10 a day expenses plus travel allowances.

War Department Order.

In the midst of the storm in congress over the actor, Rep. Leland M. Ford [D., Cal.] charged that Douglas had been denied a commission in the California National Guard because of his pink and Red activities."

Douglas is married to Helen Gahagan formerly of the stage, and now Democratic national committeewoman from California. The couple has a son, 10 years old.

"Pvt. Douglas accomplished his feat, it was announced, on direct orders from the war department in Washington," Morrison remarked. "No doubt, some extraordinary feat of arms warranted the amazing promotion.

Demands the Recipe.

"In the name of an estimated million-plus corporals, 160,000 sergeants, and 80,000 first and second lieutenants who earned their bars and chevrons in the full, orthodox way, and who must now salute Capt. Douglas as their superior, I demand that the war department make public this streamlined recipe for high rank.

"Surely, Mr. Douglas' friendship with Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the President, who got him into the office of civilian defense along with her dancer protege, Mayris Cheney, can be dismissed as an element in his success. Nor could his warm acquaintance with Harry Hopkins, the White House wizard, possibly have figured in the direct orders from the war department" which led to his promotion."

FRENCH ISLANDS AND SHIPS WILL AID WAR ON AXIS

New Governor to Take Post Today.

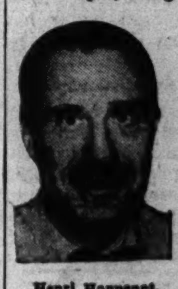
Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—Martinique, long suspect as a weak link in the American defense arc of the Caribbean because of Vichy French domination, joined the anti-axis lineup today with announcement that the French National Committee of Liberation had taken control.



Henri Hoppenot.

The state department announced that Henri Hoppenot of the French military mission in Washington has been appointed by the committee, headed jointly by Generals Henri Giraud and Charles de Gaulle, to succeed Adm. Georges Robert as French high commissioner for the Antilles.

He was expected to arrive in the island capital of Fort de France tomorrow, Bastille day, and make the French national holiday the occasion of his assumption of authority.

Carrier and Cruisers There.

Tied up in Martinique harbor are the aircraft carrier Bearn, the light cruisers Emile Bertin and Barfleur, the training ship Jeanne d'Arc, a half dozen tankers, and several other merchant ships.

Presumably added to the allied war chest, too, will be nearly 300 million dollars in gold taken to Martinique upon the fall of France, altho the state department said nothing on that score.

Admiral Robert, who radioed an offer to negotiate a change of authority two weeks ago, had "expressed a desire to relinquish his authority," the state department announced.

Ships "Made Available."

The acceptance of Hoppenot's designation by the committee for liberation at Algiers "for the express purpose of exercising the French authority in the Antilles," the statement said, "is not to be construed as affecting either pro or con the question of this government's relation" with the committee. Thus it was made clear that no formal recognition of the Algiers committee was to be implied.

"Mr. Hoppenot has assured the government of the United States that the facilities and resources of the French Antilles will be devoted to the fullest extent to the prosecution of the war against the axis, in accord with the action already taken by all French territory not under the domination of the enemy," the announcement said.

"The military interests of the United States in the Caribbean zone are fully recognized. The use of all presently immobilized French naval and merchant ships will be made available in the prosecution of the war effort."

Relations to Be Resumed.

Upon Hoppenot's assumption of authority, the state department said, it would resume relations with the Antilles, which were suspended in April.

Wording of the original Martinique broadcast on Robert's decision to step out suggested broadly that the admiral was giving up in the face of popular pressure from his own people, mentioning a desire to avoid bloodshed as one of his reasons for changing his stand.

With Hoppenot's accession, the United States blockade which has denied imports, especially of food, to the inhabitants of Martinique and the neighboring Island of Guadeloupe since last November, will be lifted.

Supplies, in fact, presumably are already on the way or possibly already there in view of the language of the state department announcement which said the United States "is dispatching relief supplies and will coöperate in "resumption of the economic life of the islands."

CRACK GOERING DIVISION HURLED BACK BY YANKS

Patton's troops reformed and sealed the gap, aided by the big guns of the fleet standing out to sea.

[A Vichy broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said more American troops were landing along the southern coast, but that axis counter-attacks were developing against the bridgeheads at Licata, Gela, Pachino, and Augusta.]

Canadians Capture Modica.

The capture of Modica, 10 miles northwest of Ispica in southeast Sicily, was reported by Ross Munro, correspondent with Canadian forces.

"Town after town is surrendering," Munro cabled, "the lack of determined resistance is surprising even to the divisional staff. The infantry is advancing with incredible speed and it is practically impossible to keep in touch with their moves." Munro said a clash with the Germans was expected and that "stern fighting" was likely.

Gen. Eisenhower returned to North Africa from his visit yesterday to United States and Canadian forces on Sicily. He said that coördination of the allied forces there "could not have been better had all the forces been of some single nation."

Commanded by Alexander.

Allied invasion forces have been officially designated as the 15th army group and are commanded by British Gen. Harold Alexander, who also was Gen. Eisenhower's deputy commander in the Tunisian campaign. The forces include the American 7th and British armies and the Canadians.

The new British landing near Catania was a significant development. Seizure of that port city at the southern foot of volcanic Mount Etna would put the allies 55 miles from Messina, the northeastern ferry terminus only two miles from the Italian mainland. The British landings were within sight of Mount Etna.

Capture of Catania also would give the allied navies a third port thru which to pour men and supplies into the drive toward Messina. Syracuse was the first harbor to fall, then Augusta's capture was announced today. An official bulletin said Syracuse's dock installations apparently were undamaged.

[The London radio quoted Italian sources as "admitting that allied ships are now in the roadsteads at Catania." The Berlin radio said "a much more dangerous phase for the attackers" had begun in Sicily, where "German and Italian measures for the annihilation of the landed enemy units are now in full swing."]

3,000 Ships Now in Action.

Three thousand allied ships of all kinds—more than three times the 850 used in the North Africa landings last fall—were shuttling back and forth between Tunisia and Sicily to swell the powerful allied striking force.

Minesweepers already have cleared the minefields on the approaches to Syracuse and Augusta which Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery's British 8th army seized with the aid of a strong bombardment from the sea.

[A London Daily Express correspondent reported in a dispatch written "on a cruiser off Augusta July 12" that Augusta, Sicily, was subdued by a Greek destroyer. He said Augusta had been evacuated after a naval bombardment and "only one man" could be found in it later.]

Palazzolo is 20 miles west of Syracuse, and Ragusa is 12 miles southwest of Palazzolo. Both are strategic prizes because these road junctions dominate high ground in the area and deprive the axis of much mobility.

Ragusa's Population 50,000.

Ragusa has a population of 50,000 and is the capital of the province of the same name. Palazzolo is the terminus of a branch line from Syracuse. It has a population of about 17,000 and lies in the shadow of Mount Laura.

The Catania plain extends deep into the central part of eastern Sicily with Catania at the northeast corner of a rough rectangle. The eastern or coastal edge of the rectangle runs for about 15 miles south of Catania.

Allied losses at Augusta were described officially as slight.

Air men already are operating from captured fields set amid Sicily's olive groves. Aided by the great flow of strength from the rim of Africa these youthful sky fighters were doing a tremendous job of chopping holes in axis road convoys, pulverizing supply dumps and razing air fields and ports.

"Large numbers of enemy motor transports" were destroyed or damaged yesterday by these flyers, who also shot down 22 enemy aircraft, sank two merchant vessels, and damaged two destroyers, perhaps mortally. "Two destroyers were left blazing," said the communique. Eleven allied planes were reported missing.

Planes Sink 2 Axis Ships.

Coördinated with these Sicilian thrusts were the "heavy and concentrated attacks" on the core of Italian communications at Messina, in Sicily, and nearby Reggio Calabria and San Giovanni on the mainland. Fighter bombers also raked the mainland Monte and Cervino air fields.

A 9th United States air force communique said 100 Liberator bombers from middle east bases dumped more than 650,000 pounds of high explosives on Reggio Calabria and San Giovanni.

Chicago Flyer in Action.

"Landing barges, ships, and still more ships were coming across the Mediterranean," said Lt. Andrew Pierson of 1850 North Prospect street, Milwaukee.

Southern Sicily was described as "pock-marked" by Sgt. John Schwichtenberg of 2037 Rice street, Chicago, who said he saw only one enemy battery still in action against the incoming allied ships.

Americans Advancing on Munda

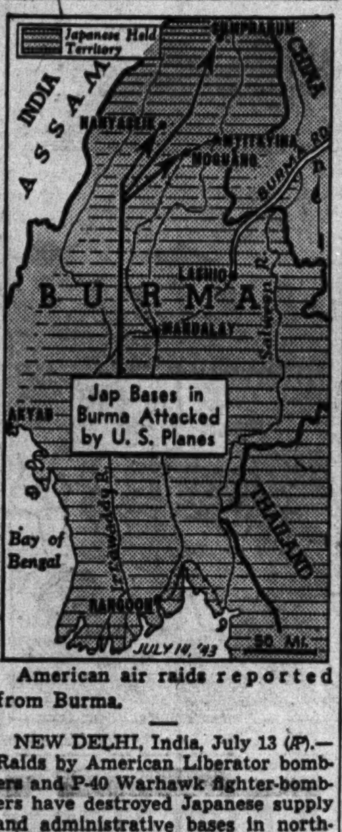
Action in Burma



American air raids reported from Burma.

NEW DELHI, India, July 13 (AP).—Raids by American Liberator bombers and P-40 Warhawk fighter-bombers have destroyed Japanese supply and administrative bases in northern Burma, a United States communique said today.

Liberator bombers of the 10th United States army air forces dropped more than 12 tons of bombs on enemy railway installations at Ywatung yesterday, but clouds prevented an accurate assessment of damage. Other places bombed were Moruang and Sumprabum.

On the same day, the P-40s, carrying medium and fragmentation bombs, blasted the Japanese base of Nanyaseik, and returning pilots said that the raid, on top of previous attacks, had destroyed all administration buildings and supply installations. Yesterday's operations were preceded by sweeps against enemy supply centers and troop bases in Assam.

FIRST COMPLETE U.S. ARMY FIGHTS ENEMY IN SICILY

7th Contains Some Vets of Patton's 2d Corps.

ALLIED HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, July 13 (AP).—For the first time in this war a complete American army is fighting in the field against Germany and Italy.

The new United States 7th army under the command of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton Jr., captured 60 miles of the 100 miles stretch of the Sicilian coast on which the allies established the mighty bridgehead within 48 hours of the start of their European invasion.

The 7th army comprises some units from the former United States 2d army corps, which under Patton's leadership, slugged back the major share of Marshal Erwin Rommel's armored forces in southern Tunisia and later took Bizerte.

It includes also units which engaged in the original landings and fighting in Morocco last November, but never saw action in Tunisia.

[The American 2d corps was composed of the 1st, 9th, and 34th infantry divisions and the 1st armored.]

Includes Air Borne-Troops.

Streamlined for super-modern warfare, units of parachute troops and glider borne assault troops were added to the 7th army before it swept over the Mediterranean and they actually began the Sicilian attack three to five hours befor the first sea borne forces landed.

In addition, the 7th army has units which never saw action in this war, but were rated among the best trained of America's millions of soldiers.

Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery's British 8th army, like Patton's American 7th, combines veterans with battle freshmen, augmented by an air borne striking force. Divisions which broke the El Alamein line, stormed Mareth intrenchments, and blasted the Wadi el Akarit positions out of existence in the historic march to Tunis are still fighting under "Monty."

Canadians an Important Element.

In addition, highly trained Canadians whose Dieppe expedition set a high standard of valor are an important element of the British onrush.

[The American, British, and Canadian forces operating in Sicily have been designated the 15th army group. This was arrived at by adding the numbers of the American 7th and British 8th armies. So far, no numerical designation of the Canadians has been disclosed.]

Montgomery and Patton, observers agree, rate as the most distinquished British-American field commanders in western Europe.

Montgomery's record of unbroken success in chasing the German Afrika Korps 2,000 miles inspired some of Prime Minister Churchill's most brilliant oratory.

Known as "Blood and Guts."

Gen. Patton was spotlighted as a character of "blood and guts" while he was still in the United States. He captured the Atlantic coast stretch of French Africa last November in probably the fiercest engagements of all the allied landings.

Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark is still commanding the American 5th army in North Africa training areas.

New Attacks in the Aleutians

ITALY ASKED FOR IT—THEY'LL GET IT: MONTGOMERY

LONDON, July 14 [Wednesday]—(AP).—Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery told his British 8th army troops before they invaded Sicily "the time has come to carry the war into Italy and into the continent of Europe. . . . They [the Italians] asked for it and now they will get it." In the message released today by the ministry of information, Gen. Montgomery said:

"The Italian overseas empire has been exterminated. We will now deal with the home country. To the 8th army has been given the great honor of representing the British empire in the allied force which is now to carry out its task.

"On our left will be our American allies. Together we will set about the Italians in their own country in no uncertain way. They came into this war to suit themselves and they must take the consequences."

BRITAIN'S NIGHT BOMBERS POUND GERMAN TARGETS

LONDON, July 14 [Wednesday]—(AP).—The royal air force switched targets and returned to the attack on Germany last night, the British announced today, after blasting the important arms center of Turin in northern Italy the preceding night. The objective of last night's assault and the size of the raiding force was not immediately disclosed.

Formations of allied planes were heard setting out across the English channel again early today to continue the offensive by daylight.

Minor German aerial activity was reported over Britain during the night. Authoritative sources said that two enemy raiders were shot down over Britain and a third was destroyed over its base in Holland by fighters on intruder patrols.

Germans Say They Sank 2 Allied Atlantic Transports

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

A German communique, broadcast by the Berlin radio, asserted yesterday that German long distance bombers sank an allied transport in the Atlantic which had been set afire the day before. A second transport claimed to have been hit in Sunday's operations had meanwhile foundered, the communique said.

Three Air Attacks

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—Three new air attacks on the Japanese base at Kiska Island were reported today by the navy, which also left without confirmation a report that American planes ranging far west of that Aleutians outpost had struck at the enemy stronghold on Paramushiro Island.

Kiska has been bombed little more than a dozen times this month altho since July 1 it has been bombarded three times by United States surface units. The warships apparently are carrying on the work of destruction which the planes are unable to continue very consistently because of fog and storm.

Paramushiro is at the northern end of the Kurile Islands which run north from Japan. It lies 991 miles west of Achitka and about 725 miles southwest of the Island of Attu, which Americans have retaken from the Japanese.

RACINE COUSINS MEET AFTER ONE DROPS INTO SEA

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ALLIED FORCE HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, July 13.—The Sicilian invasion brought about the meeting of two cousins from Racine, Wis., in dramatic circumstances.

Second Lt. Hubert Miller, Warhawk pilot, whose Racine address is 11645 Howe street, was on a fighter sweep above the island last Friday morning. Turning for home, his motor failed, the plane caught fire, and Miller parachuted into the sea.

The sea rescue service was unable to find Miller and all day and all night he bounced around in the heavy sea.

The invasion barges returning from Sicily espied him Saturday morning and one of them picked him up after he had been in the water 24 hours. He was taken ashore at Bizerte and the first man he saw was his cousin, Seaman 2d Class Francis Stratford.

Radio Says Nazis to Stop Sending Troops to Italy

LONDON, July 13 (AP).—The Morocco radio, quoting Turkish circles, said tonight that the Germans apparently have no intention of sending further reënforcements to Italy but instead will concentrate on frontiers likely to be threatened after Italy is defeated.

NAZI RADIO HINTS ALLIES PLAN FOR BIGGER INVASION

Also Tells New Landings on Sicily.

LONDON, July 13 (AP).—The German radio military commentator, Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, hinted today at possible new allied attacks against southern Europe with forces "perhaps stronger than landed on Sicily."

Sertorius yesterday had reported seven allied divisions in Sicily and then today said three more had been put ashore last night and Monday. The broadcasts were recorded by the Associated Press.

Sertorius said the 10 allied divisions in Sicily were "far from half" of the effectives in North Africa and that the allies had used "at most" two-thirds of their available shipping tonnage for Sicilian attack.

Could Invade Elsewhere.

"The enemy is in a position to throw everything he has into Sicily or land at other points in southern Europe with a mass of troops at least as strong and perhaps stronger than those landed in Sicily," he said.

The axis spokesmen, explaining allied victories in Sicily, said the assault was made in such force that it "must necessarily have initial success," but axis counter-operations were promised.

Berlin kept up a barrage of optimistic reports on Sicily, but Rome, with the danger nearer to hand, was more soberly reticent.

Broadcast from Rome.

Italian home broadcasts confined reports on the fighting to the communique, which indicated the capture of Augusta several hours before the allies announced it. Apart from this and one brief reference to "repulse of the enemy at several points," the Rome broadcasts were filled out with pep talks.

The broadcasts spoke of "decimation" of "Americans pushing forward from the south coast," and said a group of United States troops and tanks attacking concealed axis mountain positions had been "completely wiped out."

The axis communiques said violent battles were continuing, and claimed destruction of 25 allied planes Monday, sinking of a steamer and damaging of two cruisers.

11 ON BATTERED YANKEE BOMBER GET 18 MEDALS

Seven Wounded and One Dead, They Come In.

LONDON, July 13 (AP).—Seven wounded flyers and three uninjured ones brought the battered Flying Fortress "Old Bill" back from a raid over northwest Germany May 15 thru incessant fighter attacks, landing without brakes or flaps, with one engine and the hydraulic systems shot out, and the nose blasted off and top turret smashed.

The 11th man on the plane, Lt. Douglas Venable Jr., Columbus, Ga., navigator, was killed on the way into Germany but the plane bored on to plant its bombs on the target.

Tonight headquarters of the European theater of operations of the United States army announced the award of the unparalleled total of two distinguished services crosses, eight silver stars and seven Purple Hearts to the men—the silver star to Venable.

The Decorations Awarded.

The decorations went to Capt. William D. Whitson, Denton, Tex., pilot, D. S. C., Purple Heart; Lt. Robert W. Barrall, Berwick, Pa., bombardier, D. S. C., Purple Heart; Lt. Harry L. Holt, Tallulah, La., copilot, silver star, Purple Heart; Tech. Sgt. Albert W. Haymon, Stamford, Conn., top turret gunner, silver star, Purple Heart; Tech. Sgt. Homer B. Ramsey, Delano, Cal., waist gunner, silver star, Purple Heart; Tech. Sgt. Fred J. Bewak, Johnstown, Pa., radio operator-gunner, silver star, Purple Heart; Staff Sgt. George H. Friend, Kalamazoo, Mich., photographer, silver star, Purple Heart; Tech. Sgt. Kenneth V. Meyer, St. Clair, Mo., tail gunner, silver star; Staff Sgt. Edgar S. Nichols, Denver, Colo., ball turret gunner, silver star, and one other man not identified.

An ambulance crew removed the wounded when the Fortress landed, then the attending surgeon made a quick inspection of the place. Coming out, he said:

"There's nothing in there but blood—and empty cartridge cases."

What They Accomplished.

Here, briefly, is what each of the men did ,according to the citations:

Whitson—Wounded before reaching target, he kept the damaged ship on course. Rallied in time to accomplish the difficult landing.

Barrall—Wounded in the attack that shattered the ship's nose but released bombs on the target and gave first aid to his wounded comrades. Manned the nose guns and was wounded again. Helped fly the plane part of the way home.

Venable—Manned nose guns fighting off repeated frontal assaults until he died.

Holt—Flew without oxygen while the pilot went for emergency oxygen bottles. Holt maneuvered the plane against attacks until wounded by a 20 millimeter shell, which exploded in the cockpit.

Haymon—Continued to fire after his head was gashed by pieces of shell that knocked out the turret mechanism. Operated the turret by hand until it jammed. Then he helped remove the co-pilot and flew the plane while Whitson was given first aid.

Wounded, But Fights On.

Ramsey—Shot down one German fighter before he was seriously wounded but even then continued to ward off attacks.

Friend—Manned the guns of wounded crewmen while they received first aid, altho wounded himself.

Meyer—Shot down one German fighter and damaged two others before he ran out of ammunition. Relieved the wounded waist gunner and when the ship was near base served as co-pilot, helping to make the landing.

Nichols—Stuck to the dangerous belly gun position after the ship was damaged and shot down one and damaged several of the attacking Germans.

Communiques on Sicily

ALLIED.

ALLIED HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, July 13 (AP).—An allied headquarters communique said today:

"During the last 24 hours great activity has continued off and on all the beaches as reënforcements, vehicles, and supplies are being landed by the navy and sent forward.

"The surf has made this work difficult in some of the more exposed positions. The port of Syracuse is now in our hands, with its port and harbor facilities apparently undamaged. There has been some bombing of shipping by aircraft.

"Augusta was bombed early the afternoon of July 12 by a strong force of cruisers and a monitor. Minesweepers have swept the bridgehead to this port.

"The naval operations in which more than 3,000 shipping vessels and crafts of all types, warships and merchantmen, are taking part are proceeding satisfactorily.

"Good progress has again been made today and the bridgehead has now been increased in some places to 20 miles. In the eastern sector our troops encountered some resistence in their advance along the coast. Inland very good progress has been made.

"Pozzallo has been occupied and our patrols have reached the outskirts of Ragusa.

"In the western sector the advance continues and an early counterattack has been successfully beaten off and a large number of prisoners were taken and some tanks destroyed."

ALLIED AIR FORCES.

"Fighter-bombers thruout yesterday continued their heavy attacks on enemy troop columns and lines of communications and destroyed or damaged large numbers of enemy motor transports.

"During the night of July 11-12 our bombers attacked Sicilian ports and the Monte and Cervino air fields in Italy. Heavy and concentrated attacks were made by heavy bombers against focal points at Messina, Reggio, and San Giovanni. Medium, light, and fighter-bombers attacked air fields and focal points of communications in Sicily.

"Thruout the day our fighters carried out sweeps over our shipping, the beaches and our advancing troops.

"Intermittent enemy attempts to interfere with our landings and shipping were intercepted and enemy aircraft of various types were destroyed or damaged. During the course of attacks on enemy shipping in the Tyrrhenian sea two merchant vessels were sunk and two destroyers were left blazing.

"Twenty-two enemy aircraft were destroyed during these operations and 11 of ours are missing."

MIDDLE EAST AIR FORCE.

CAIRO, Egypt, July 13 [Tuesday]—(AP).—The 9th United States air force headquarters issued this communique today:

"More than 650,000 pounds of high explosives were dropped on the twin targets of Reggio Calabria and San Giovanni, Sicilian ferry terminals of the Italian mainland, during daylight Monday by 100 Liberator heavy bombers of the 9th United States air force which attacked in four waves.

"At San Giovanni railway yards were blanketed with hits and bursts were seen all along the railway tracks with a large explosion in a siding area. Hits were observed in the central railway around the ferry terminal and straddling the mole. A small boat lying west of the mole received a direct hit. At Reggio Calabria the entire target area was well covered with bursts.

"Gasoline and ammunition dumps were hit and large fires were started. Other hits were reported in the vicinity of the railway station and sidings and on the ferry berth and mole. The railway line received many direct hits.

ITALIAN.

Following is the Italian Tuesday communique as broadcast by the Rome radio and recorded by the Associated Press:

"The battle continues with undiminished violence in the southern region of Sicily where the enemy is trying to widen bridgeheads he was able to establish in Licata, Gela, Pachino, Syracuse, and Augusta.

"Italian torpedo planes and axis bombers repeatedly attacked war and merchant ships in the island's waters sinking one medium tonnage steamer and setting on fire or damaging two cruisers, numerous transports, and several minor naval units.

"Enemy formations bombed inhabited centers of Sicily and Calabria among which were Catania, Messina, and Reggio Calabria."

GERMAN.

Following is the German Tuesday communique as broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press:

"On Sicily hard fighting is continuing against enemy forces which have landed on the island. German and Italian air force formations are continually participating in the ground fighting and have inflicted very heavy losses on the enemy's landing fleet off the coast of the island. Twenty-five enemy aircraft were downed over Sicily and Sardinia.

Another Group of 4 Jap Destroyers Blasted.

nese warships were in the vicinity but declined to join the battle.

[A dispatch from a New York Daily News correspondent said a check of reports from Kaneng and Rabaul reveals that the Japanese have lost three-fourths of their South Pacific sea power during the two Kula gulf battles and unless reënforcements are brought up they will be able to face the Americans with only a token force.]

Ground Forces Push On.

"The advance of our ground forces against Munda is continuing despite stiffening enemy resistance," reported the communique.

The report on the pincers being closed from the north and east on Munda did not specify distances, but last advices placed our advanced patrols east of that air base within less than two miles of the landing strip.

Upon Munda itself the United States air forces kept up their daily series of attacks.

On New Georgia above and below Munda, the American invasion forces took a toll of 300 Japanese. A checkup on the previously reported destruction of an enemy garrison on the Enogai inlet 10 miles northeast of Munda showed 150 killed. Many others were wounded and heavy artillery and machine guns were captured.

Below New Georgia, near Vangunu Island, which the Americans occupied early in the current operations, "our surface craft and shore parties on the northeast coast destroyed three enemy barges containing 150 troops," the communique said. It was believed they were the remnants of the original Japanese force on Vangunu, which fled a week ago.

Salamaua Blasted.

In a far-ranging arc extending from the Kai Islands in the Banda sea to Vangunu Island in the central Solomons, our air forces dropped a total bomb weight of more than 128 tons.

FOUND SHOT TO DEATH.

Michael Kodrin, 66 years old, was found shot to death last night in his home at 2124 South Pulaski road, a .38 caliber revolver lying near his hand. His wife, Olga, said he had been suffering from heart disease.

Italian Gen. Francisci Killed in Sicilian Action

New York, July 13 (AP).—Stefani, Italian news agency, in a broadcast dispatch reported today that Lt. Gen. Enrico Francisci of the Fascist militia was killed in action in Sicily on July 11. He had served in the Spanish Civil war, had seen action on the Russian front, and had been stationed in Sicily since last March, the agency said.

CONVOY SAILING STARTS OFF AS A DEEP MYSTERY

Even Captain Isn't Told Where He's Going.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 13.—Sailing in a war time convoy is a very mysterious business. You don't know when you're going to leave, when you're going to get there, or even where you're going except in a vague sort of way.

My ticket read from "as agreed" to "as agreed." [I finally landed at a place I had never even heard of before and the ship sailed on without me. I don't know yet where it went.]

I was assigned to a cabin which had a brass name plate on the door reading "two cadets." The cabin had an upper and lower bunk, a desk, a settee, a washbowl, and plenty of closet space. It was on the bridge deck just behind the radio room and across from the captain's cabin. The cabins on this deck were protected by several inches of concrete on the walls and ceiling designed to turn machine gun bullets in case we drew the attention of unfriendly airplanes.

Even Captain Doesn't Know.

The captain was ashore at a meeting of ship masters called by the commodore of the convoy at which the vessels were assigned their positions and a general idea of the course was outlined. However, even the captain was not told the port of destination. He was told only that at a certain hour each day signal flags would inform him of the course for the next 24 hours. Nobody aboard knew when we would sail altho there was a general feeling it would be soon.

We carried the usual war cargo of tanks, aircraft, food, and deck cargoes anchored by heavy wire cables to plates welded to the decks. Joints of all openings in the tanks were sealed with tar to keep out the salt spray which might rust their machinery. This was the fourth trip for this ship which was commissioned 11 months ago. It was a carbon copy of hundreds of other Liberty ships.

With the exception of a couple of the officers, the crew members were strangers to one another. Some were pretty tough looking eggs and many carried sheath knives on their belts. Members of the National Maritime union, they signed the articles aboard ship and after this trip may be on another vessel.

Seamen Paid $200.

Able seamen are paid $100 a month plus a 100 per cent bonus, making a total of $200. If the convoy is bombed in a European port, the men are paid a bonus of $125. Until recently there was a bonus of $5 a day for duty in combat zones, but this has been suspended.

This ship previously sailed to Oran on a fast trip and the crew was paid a $125 bonus for entering Oran and another $125 for passing Gibraltar on the way home. This has been stopped, too, and even the men agreed that it was a little too much of a good thing.

Altho the seamen often arrive in the United States with $1,000 after a round trip, they seldom have much money. At sea it is a pretty dull grind and when the men get ashore, they have themselves a time. When they sign on again, they are usually broke.

REPORT HITLER TAKES COMMAND OF KURSK DRIVE

LONDON, July 13 (AP).—A foreign diplomatic source asserted today that Adolf Hitler was reported to have assumed control of the German offensive in Russia and broadened it into an expensive gamble for a break-thru against the advice of his generals.

This source said Marshal Guenther von Kluge's attack launched on July 5 in the Kursk area originally was designed as a defensive move to forestall what appeared to be preparations for a heavy assault by the Russians.

He asserted that Hitler, noting early successes even tho the cost was high, decided the German attack should be developed and took control three days after the operation began.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY FREIDA ZYLSTRA.

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Patrick J. Browne, 7119 East End avenue.]

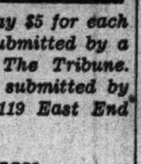
THE QUESTION.

Is your husband a help or a hindrance on shopping tours?

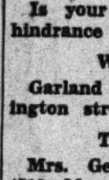
WHERE ASKED.

Garland building, 58 East Washington street.

THE ANSWERS.



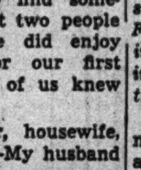
Mrs. George Gerson, saleslady, 4510 Magnolia avenue—That depends on what I want to buy. If I want something in a conservative and conventional line of clothing it's a pleasure to have him along. But when I'm determined to buy a flimsy dress or a high priced hat that I know he won't approve of anyway, I'd rather he'd stay home.



Mrs. James C. Harrison, housewife, 309 East 77th street—I've found that I can buy more in less time when my husband isn't with me. He thinks so, too. I always say it's because it takes longer to find something that two people like. We did enjoy shopping together for our first baby, because neither of us knew much about it.

Mrs. Justus Kellner, housewife, 2540 West 58th street—My husband is quite an efficient shopper but with him it's just an unpleasant job to be done. When he wants an article in a department store he makes a bee line for it and I can never get him to stop to look at anything else on other counters.

Mrs. George S. Moselle, 907 Ainslie street—Sometimes I think I am a little more practical than my husband. When he shops with me he always insists that I get the best there is while I don't always think it's necessary. We usually know exactly what we want before we go into a store.



Mrs. Donald B. Cook, stenographer, 1916 South 2d street, Maywood—Whenever my husband goes shopping with me I know it's just because he knows I like to have him with me. He's really not much of a help. When I ask for his opinion he says it's entirely up to me and if I like it that's all that matters.

BURGLARS STEAL WAR STAMPS.

William Reed, 9614 Avenue J, told police yesterday that burglars had taken $36 worth of war savings stamps and an $81 wrist watch from his home.

RUSSIANS REWIN LOST GROUND IN BELGOROD AREA

Nazis Forgo Big Attacks in Orel Sector.

LONDON, July 14 [Wednesday]—(AP).—The badly mauled German army, now stopped cold on the northern sector of the central front, did not even attempt a large scale attack Tuesday in the Orel-Kursk sector, Moscow declared early today. The Germans lost 96 tanks and 1,100 men in a futile plunge in the Belgorod area to the south.

Moscow's midnight bulletin indicated that the German offensive had begun to sap Nazi resources on its ninth day. Even Berlin said its drive had slowed, attributing its difficulties to "the weather."

[A Stockholm dispatch says "German combat reporters writing to German newspapers are describing the battle on the Kursk salient, now in its second week, as the most gigantic of all times. One of them said today that a German artillery unit used up in one day as many shells as it did during the entire Polish campaign and on the following day more than the unit consumed during the whole campaign in France in 1940. Both sides are throwing in artillery, tanks, and aviation in amounts hitherto unknown, states the Nazi combat reporter."]

Moscow's explanation of Germany's failure to crack the Red army lines was the Nazi loss of 2,772 tanks, 1,187 planes and tens of thousands of casualties in the fighting to date.

Reds Recover Ground.

On the raging Belgorod front the Russians said they even had recovered some lost ground in whittling down a German wedge that had been driven into Red army lines.

Altho the Germans were said to be trying to "achieve success at any cost" in that narrow salient, the bulletin recorded by the soviet monitor did not concede one German gain. The enemy seized one village during the day, it said, but a Russian counter-attack restored the position.

The original German strategy, upon launching the offensive, had been to strike south of Orel and north of Belgorod to pinch off the Kursk salient in the middle. This salient juts westward toward the Bryansk-Kiev railway and is a distinct threat to the Germans. It was seized at the climax of the big Russian winter drive which began at Stalingrad on the Volga river.

Nazi Gains Slight.

After nine days' heavy fighting in which the Germans have used nearly 500,000 men and thousands of tanks, there is no indication that the Germans have gained any sizable territory. They have been unable to widen a wedge driven north of Belgorod because of constant Russian counter-attacks.

As the prospect of a quick success lessens, Berlin radio commentators have begun suggesting that the whole drive actually was undertaken "for defensive purposes." This was the original German contention when the offensive began. After a few gains had been scored in the Belgorod area Berlin had openly announced the Germans were beginning their third summer campaign in Russia.

BRITISH PROPOSE COLONIAL RULE BY COMMISSIONS

To Retain Full Control of Own Territory.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 13.—A plan for international coöperation in administration of colonial territories was disclosed in the house of commons today by Colonial Minister Oliver Stanley.

Stanley said the government is considering setting up commissions to deal with colonial problems which would include representatives not only states with adjacent colonial territories but also of nations which have major economic or strategic interest in colonial territories.

At the same time Stanley emphasized Britain's intention of "retaining full control of our own territory." He reminded the house of Prime Minister Churchill's statement of March 17, that administration of British colonies must remain a responsibility of Great Britain.

Asserts Churchill "Out of Touch."

Altho pressed by Laborite members to say in what regions it is proposed that the commissions should operate, Stanley said only that details of the plan must depend upon what other nations participate. He added that commissions could be set up only as a result of agreement by other countries, especially the British dominions.

Richard Acland, an Independent asserted he felt "Churchill is out of touch with the younger elements of this nation in thinking that 'what we have, we hold' is the motto for which they are fighting in this war. It's not that they're not proud of our colonial empire, but no one can suppose control of the colonial empire is going to continue in the same sort of way as before the war. 'What we have, we pool' is a motto far finer than that of the prime minister."

Acland suggested that colonial administration is not the most important element in many British colonies.

"Nigeria, for instance, might be said to be in control of Lever Brothers and Malaya was in the hands of shareholders in rubber and tin companies," he said. "We must end private ownership of natural resources of those territories by white people."

Won't Apologize for Empire.

Stanley said that the full story of Malaya can't be told until after the war, but that "I, for one, feel no inclination to apologize for the British colonial empire." Britain, he went on, "has brought to millions of people security for life and property and even handed justice which they had never known before."

Britain's policy is to guide the colonial people along the road to self-government, he asserted, "but it is no part of our policy to confer political advances not justified by circumstances or to grant self-government to those not yet trained to use it."

Brothers Missing

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Lt. Edgar Penney (left) and Tech. Sgt. Freeman S. Penney.

Lt. John Henry Miller, 24 years old, 2526 North Kildare avenue, was killed when a four engined bomber crashed in flames on May 31 over Germany, his widow, Mrs. Dora Miller, 23, was notified yesterday by the war department.

Second Lt. Russell E. McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. McDonald, 3330 North Central Park avenue, an army air force officer who was reported missing July 5, probably parachuted to safety after his plane was forced down over France, his parents were told last night.

Mrs. Beatrice Stofferan, 4253 North Keeler avenue, a bride of six months, was informed that her husband, Corp. Otto Stofferan, 26, was killed in a glider accident in North Africa.

Lt. Edgar G. Penney, 24, a group bombing officer, and his brother, Tech. Sgt. Freeman S. Penney Jr., radio man and gunner on a Flying Fortress, were reported missing in action in the middle eastern and European areas in a message received yesterday by their parents, who live at 900 Chestnut avenue, Wilmette.

FOUND DEAD IN AUTO.

An inquest will be held today into the death of Mat Cobbins, 34 years old, Negro, 53 West 36th street, found dead yesterday in an automobile in a Cicero garage in which he was employed. A tube led from the exhaust pipe into the car.

COUNCIL GROUP TAKES 2 STEPS TO PURER WATER

Urges Chemical Plant and Calumet Lock.

The city council finance committee took two steps yesterday toward solving the problem of providing pure water for Chicago's south side. These were:

1. Approved a $954,000 contract, subject to approval of the full council today, with the S. N. Nielsen company, Chicago, for construction of buildings to house the chemical plant and low lift pumping station at the south side water filtration plant, near 79th street. Completion of this contract, with accompanying contracts for equipment, will enable the city to remove about 70 per cent of the pollution from south side water, city engineers said. The contract, calling for completion of the work in 400 days, would give the south side the additional protection by late next summer.

Hope for Federal Aid.

2. Named a subcommitte, headed by Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], to "take all possible steps" toward bringing about construction of a lock on the Calumet river, which would prevent sewage from backing up into the lake and adding to the pollution of the water supply. This has been occurring several times each year after heavy rains. The aldermen pin their hopes on federal financing of the locks, plans for which were prepared three years ago.

At the same time, Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, released a map prepared by his engineers that graphically illustrates how waste from towns and industrial plants along the south shore of Lake Michigan reaches the lake and subsequently is moved by the winds toward south side water cribs.

Increased activity along the south shores of the lake, under stimulation of the war program, has created record pollution in that area, with the result that a greater threat to the south side water supply exists now than ever before.

Bacteria at Peak in 1942.

Late last summer, the coliform count [measurement of human and animal waste in the water] reached an all-time high of 300,000 coliform bacteria per 100 cubic centimeters, and health authorities agree the city was fortunate in escaping an epidemic. The winds, generally speaking, have been favorable so far this year, with the result that the coliform counts have been lower on the average than in the corresponding 1942 period. The United States public health service says a monthly average of 50 coliform bacteria is the maximum that can be treated safely by chlorination.

The map shows some of the main outlets thru which sewage reaches the canal system, or moves directly into the lake. Most of the sewage polluting the lake waters flows into the lake thru the Indiana Harbor canal, with its source originally either along the Grand Calumet river or the canal itself. Sewage reaches the lake thru the Calumet river when heavy rains have dumped more water into the Calumet river branches than can be accommodated thru the Calumet-Sag channel.

Committee Vote, 16 to 7.

The council will be asked to suspend its rules so that the Nielsen contract can be made effective immediately. This requires a two-thirds vote of the council. Administration leaders expected the contract to be approved, tho the committee vote was 16 to 7. Opposition was based on the ground that altho the Nielsen company was the low bidder on the total contract, other companies offered to do the cement work for considerably less.

The committee also recommended approval of the purchase of approximately 25 tons of ammonium sulphate per month, at $37.50 a ton, for additional treatment of south side water. It was explained this would help remove bad taste from the water.

Slain Tribunite, 10 Win War Honors

Military honors, three of them posthumous, have been awarded 11 Chicagoland men in war theaters thruout the world, their families were notified yesterday.

The posthumous awards included the Purple Heart for Richard W. Graff, first Tribune employe to be killed in the present war. It was sent to his mother, Mrs. Cecilia Graff, 4356 Princeton avenue. The wings of a glider pilot, which were being sought by Lt. Adam A. Wojcik when he was killed in training, were received by his mother, Mrs. Francis Wojcik, 1110 North California avenue.

Lt. Wojcik's brother, Sgt. Joseph S. Wojcik, wrote his mother that he had been awarded the air medal for participation in bombing raids on Italy. Lt. Harry J. Miller, 629 Deming place, wrote his wife that he had received the air medal and two oak leaf clusters for raids on Germany.

The navy announced the award of the silver star to Frederick O. Ulrich, chief motor machinist's mate, 311 East 7th street, Michigan City, Ind. Lt. Gordon H. MacLane, Macomb, received the navy and marine corps medal. Zygmund W. Kowalewski, naval aviation radioman, Rockford, received the air medal.

Commendations were given by the navy to Capt. Walter C. Ansel, 721 North Grove street, Elgin; Mason Minor Houghton, gunner's mate, Rock Island, and Seaman Eugene Samuel Meyer, Rockford.

Mrs. Bridie O'Reilly, 4029 Harrison street, received the Order of the Purple Heart conferred on her only son, Lt. Edward J. O'Reilly, killed in action aboard the U. S. S. Astoria last September, while in action in the Solomon Islands area. He was a dentist.

'93ERS GATHER, DRESSED AS THEY WERE AT 1ST FAIR

Several hundred grey haired veterans of the Columbian exposition of 1893 gathered yesterday in Jackson park for their annual picnic commemorating Chicago's first World's Fair. Most of them were members of the Association of '93ers of the Columbian Exposition, an organization headed by Mrs. J. J. Gibson, 217 East Cullerton street, and founded in sentimental tribute to the exposition and the people who made it.

Scattered among the guests were aged women in costumes of the '90s and 70 year old women in youthful seersucker dresses and legs of the suntan that comes from bottles.

Mrs. Samuel T. Smetters, 1550 East 61st street, whose husband was a guard at the old fair, was on hand with his costume. He is in Ohio now on an engineering job and she came in his place. She wore the slate blue braided cap that identified the guards at the fair and carried the matching heavy blue jacket.

200 PAIRS OF SHOES STOLEN.

HENRY FONDA IS ACCUSED AS CHILD'S FATHER

Los Angeles, Cal., July 13 (AP).—Alleging that Henry Fonda, now in the United States navy, is the father of her child, Miss Barbara Thompson today sued the screen actor for the baby's support.

Stating she and Fonda had never been married, Miss Thompson asked for $5,000 medical expenses, $10,000 attorney fees, $2,500 court costs, and $2,000 monthly support for the girl she has named Sharon Fonda, born June 21.

Miss Thompson also sought a restraining order forbidding Fonda from disposing of any of his assets pending outcome of the litigation. A plea was made for appointment of a receiver for the actor's holdings meanwhile.

Fonda, 37 years old, is married to the former Mrs. Frances Brokaw, widow of George T. Brokaw, wealthy New York attorney and sportsman. He entered the navy as an apprentice seaman last August.

TIME DEALS OLD JAP CURIO SHOP A CURIOUS FATE

Business Now Produces Profits for U. S.

When Ichagura Yamanaka opened up a curio shop in Yokohama 200 years ago he didn't know that his business some day would [1] help to perpetuate Chinese arts; [2] be wiped out at the peak of its prosperity by action of his fellow Japanese, and [3] pay a handsome operating profit to the United States government.

The day after Pearl Harbor the government took over the Yamanaka & Co. store at 846 North Michigan avenue and two others in New York and Boston, owned by the seventh generation of Yamanaka's family. They were seized by the treasury department and "vested" in the alien property custodian.

Operated by Government.

The three corporations, capitalized at $550,000, had $1,500,000 worth of merchandise in stock, nearly all in rich Chinese art pieces. The custodian, Leo T. Crowley, named new directors and officers to take over management of the stores, including Charles R. Gill as president of the Chicago establishment, and set about liquidating them. Offers of outright purchase and auction were considered too low and it was decided to sell the merchandise at retail in the stores.

Edward C. Tefft, chief of the Chicago liquidation division, yesterday reviewed the record to date:

Sales at all three of the Yamanaka stores in the first 12 months were well over a half million dollars, producing enough revenue to pay $103,000 income tax to the treasury, $60,000 in dividends to another branch of the treasury, and $62,500 to American landlords for rent. The remainder of the profits, after deduction of all salaries and expenses, will go to the treasury as well.

Really in the Black.

"This is one government project that is in the black," Tefft said, "and we hope to do even better."

Proceeds after liquidation will be held by the treasury, Tefft said, until after the war. Their ultimate disposition will be up to congress. He said books showing sales and expenses are being kept by a firm of accountants. The government wants to be prepared for possible claims by the original owners, he said, "if they are permitted after the war to do business in this country."

JEANNETTE COLLIER.

A Fort Wayne [Ind.] girl who said her name was Jeannette Collier was held at the Central police station last night after she had retracted a previous statement she had made to police that she was Cleo Browning and had escaped from the women's federal reformatory in Alderson, W. Va. Alderson officials had notified Chicago police that Cleo Browning had not escaped.

The girl said she had given the name of the Browning girl, whom she had previously known, because she was trying to avoid a man who had been jailed under the Mann act five years ago for becoming involved with her. He is now on parole and she saw him in Fort Wayne Monday night, she declared.

The Collier girl, who is about 19 years old, "surrendered" at Central station yesterday morning. She said she thought that by calling herself Cleo Browning she would escape detection by the man she was trying to avoid.

ARMY MORTARS CAN FERRET OUT HIDDEN ENEMIES

Weapons' Use Explained at Tribune Exhibit.

The entrance to the army ordnance-Chicago Tribune war show is in Nathan Hale court between Tribune Tower and W-G-N. Visitors should start the tour there. The show is open daily from 10 a. m. to 10:30 p. m. There is no admission charge.

Relatively small, tho possessed of great destructiveness, are the army's 60 millimeter and 81 millimeter mortars. Examples of these weapons are on display at Chicagoland's great army ordnance exhibition, which is being presented at Tribune Square by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in cooperation with the ordnance department of the army service forces.

The mortars are extremely simple and light weapons, which, when taken apart, can be toted handily by soldiers. The barrel of the 81 millimeter mortar weighs 44½ pounds, the bipod 46½ pounds, and the base plate 45 pounds, making a total of 136 pounds. The total weight of the 60 millimeter mortar, including tube, bipod, and base, is only 71 pounds.

Shells of these weapons are loaded with trinitrotoluene [TNT], one of the most powerful explosives known, the light shell of the 81 millimeter mortar having an explosive effect comparable with that of the shell of the 75 millimeter field piece, while the heavy shell of the same weapon is fairly comparable in destructiveness with the shell of the 105 millimeter howitzer.

Mortars Are Similar.

The two mortars are similar in construction and operation. The firing tube of each is a smooth bore, thin shelled barrel. It is attached to the flat base plate at an angle, and is supported near the muzzle by a bipod. There are three clamp positions on the tube, where the bipod is attached.

The shells, which are shaped somewhat in the manner of aerial bombs, are equipped with fins to hold them on their course in flight. The maximum rate of fire by either mortar is from 30 to 35 rounds a minute.

Deliver Plunging Fire.

The chief effectiveness of mortars lies in their ability to deliver a plunging fire. By this they can search out enemy personnel, machine gun emplacements, and other targets that are hidden and are protected against the fire of machine guns, rifles, and other flat trajectory weapons. Mortars are fired from defiladed positions.

Forerunner of the present day mortar was the Coehorn mortar, a crude weapon that was used in the sieges of the 18th century. In the first World war the Germans reintroduced the mortar in the form of the Krupp Minenwerfer, a weapon with a 2 inch bore. The British retaliated with the Stokes trench mortar, a 3 inch piece firing a 10 pound shell. The extreme range of this Stokes mortar was about 1,200 yards. A later Stokes mortar fired a 25 pound shell. At the beginning the shells of all these mortars were inaccurate in flight, due to their wobbling in the air. The addition of fins or vanes corrected this fault.

Another delegation of prominent Chicagoans was conducted on a tour of the show yesterday by Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Hammond, chief of the Chicago ordnance district, accompanied by Mrs. Hammond. This group included Judge John F. O'Connell of the Probate court; Thomas E. Wilson, chairman of the board of directors of Wilson and company and his son, Edward F. Wilson, president of the company; Frederick H. Scott and Charles Bunker, loop department store executives; Mrs. Edith Mason Ragland, former opera star; Charles H. Burkholder, of the Art Institute staff, and Frank Hecht, civilian executive of the ordnance district.

Pair Shot

An inquest will be held this morning into the death of John Klabacha, 48 years old, 4619 South Richmond street, twice married father of eight children, who was found shot thru the head yesterday, seated in a car beside a woman he had been courting. She was critically wounded.

Klabacha, a trucker, was found slumped over the wheel of his car, parked near 4900 South Lawndale avenue, with a pistol in his right hand. He died in Southtown hospital where surgeons endeavored to save the life of his companion, identified as Mrs. Rose Oles, 44 years old, of 4738 South Pulaski road. Mrs. Oles apparently was shot by Klabacha, police said.

Police said they learned that Klabacha's first wife, Sadie, mother of his eight children, had divorced him more than 10 years ago. He then began courting Mrs. Oles, whose husband is an inmate of Manteno State hospital. Two months ago he married his second wife, Irene, and they separated two weeks later.

WMC LAUNCHES PLANS TO AVOID DRAFT OF DADS

Slash in List of Essential Jobs Considered.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—Man power officials are considering plans to delay indefinitely the military induction of fathers of children conceived before Pearl Harbor, informed sources said today. The delay would be achieved by tightening occupational deferments of childless husbands.

The war man power commission, which is drafting the program, also is seeking an agreement by the army and the navy to hold its demands for men to the minimum essential number as a further move to prevent the draft of fathers, it was said.

Altho man power and draft officials said no definite assurance can be given that fathers will not be drafted, they conceded that all possible steps to prevent their induction are under study.

Wholesale Draft Opposed.

Previously announced plans for the wholesale drafting of fathers have been criticized by members of congress, who charged such action is unnecessary to raise an adequate military force and that it would disrupt needlessly thousands of homes.

The senate military affairs committee last week reported favorably on a bill introduced by Sen. Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.] which would forbid induction of fathers before Jan. 1, 1944. Congress is expected to consider this bill soon after it returns from its summer recess, and its adoption is considered likely.

WMC officials said one plan under study calls for reducing the number of essential occupations in which men of draft age are eligible for deferment.

35 Activities Covered.

Such action would release tens of thousands of childless husbands who hold occupational deferments. The present list of deferable occupations includes 35 activities and thousands of specific jobs in those activities.

The present goal calling for 10 million 800,000 in uniform by Dec. 31 reportedly is being restudied by military chiefs in response to demands of congress and WMC officials not to drain workers in munitions and other industries from their jobs needlessly.

The WMC recently estimated that 2 million persons will be placed in uniform in the next year but added this figure is exclusive of replacements, which cannot be predicted accurately. This would bring the military force to 11 million 300,000 men by next July 1. WMC officials contend the drafting of fathers early next year will be inevitable if the army and navy insist on replacements to maintain this force.

SCRUTINIZE 3-D CLASS.

Col. Victor A. Kleber, deputy state director of selective service, said last night that Illinois draft boards have been directed to scrutinize carefully the claims for deferment of men in the 3-D dependency classification.

The order was issued by Col. Paul G. Armstrong before he left Springfield on a vacation trip. Armstrong told the boards that no 3-D registrant should be deferred until it was shown that induction would work a hardship upon his dependents.

Crew Saved as River Boat Burns in San Francisco Bay

San Francisco, Cal., July 13 (AP).—The river boat Service caught fire today in San Francisco bay and burned to the water line after the crew had been taken off by a ferry boat from Richmond, the coast guard reported. The craft, which normally carries a crew of about six men, was going between Angel Island and Richmond. Two coast guard fire boats and a San Francisco fire boat answered the alarm.

EX-SERVICE MEN FIRST TO DRAW HIGHER JOB PAY

Gov. Dwight H. Green pointed yesterday to four checks given him by two ex-service men of the present war, first to qualify for the increased $20 weekly payments under the amendment passed by the general assembly, as the forerunners of what probably will become an important part of the state's program in helping returning service men at the end of the war.

These four service men will receive $20 weekly for 18 weeks under the Illinois unemployment compensation act. Gov. Green said all soldiers and sailors, who had served at least 90 days since April, 1940, and who had earned at least $225 in the calendar year preceding their entry into military or naval service for work covered by the Illinois job insurance law, would receive similar payments.

To finance these payments there has been built up under the act a reserve fund of $348,000,000, which probably will increase to $375,000,000 by July, 1944. Payments into the fund by business and manufacturing concerns were started in 1937. Heavier payments are required of war plants and other concerns that have had an abnormal increase in employes.

Ten minutes later she may be imagining herself Dr. Hilda Barrington, a woman doctor unknowingly in love...

SHE is reading a magazine—August Cosmopolitan...page 26. In her mind she is standing beside Harry Brundidge in a hotel room in New York City as he makes a deal to buy 800,000 pounds of beef from a Kansas City black market operator. This story is now front-page news all over the country, and the men who made the deal with the Cosmopolitan editor are now being investigated by the Federal Government. It's a story that will fascinate you as it does the lady in the picture.

It's quite a jump from the excitement of helping crack the black market to a hospital corridor in Westchester. But the lady in the picture has a magic carpet. She can turn a few pages and imagine herself Hilda Barrington, M.D. in Faith Baldwin's romantic story: "He Married A Doctor." It starts on page 20.

Indeed this is a picture of a lucky lady. She likes to read and has the happy gift of imagination. The Editors of Cosmopolitan carefully design each issue for people like her—men and women with imagination who are interested in being stimulated by new ideas, new situations and new facts. Reading has an important effect on people of this kind who, perhaps without knowing it, are constantly picking up a certain amount of "new" information. Maybe you have noticed that bright people make you feel brighter—cause your own mental reactions to speed up.

The following items, which are also in the August issue of Cosmopolitan, give you some idea of the great variety included in this issue.

PIERRE HUSS, the man who was with Hitler at Smolensk in '41, tells what he saw when the Afrika Korps collapsed in May '43

Pierre Huss, crack International News Service war correspondent, was one of the few correspondents to travel with the German Army as the Nazi Blitz moved into Poland, through the Low Countries and finally to Paris, then back across Europe to Smolensk. Mr. Huss knows the German Army from the inside as few people do. He gives in his story "I Saw the Nazis Crack," the significance of the German collapse in Africa and how it will affect the eventual collapse of the whole German Reich. He also has some interesting ideas on how it will affect the length of the war.

This is the story of a girl named Alison Wentworth who sent the following wire: "Flying from New York to spend the evening with you or maybe the rest of my life. You can't tell from here...Love or something..." Would this wire from the girl in First Lieutenant Richard Trent's past prove to be a postscript to a great love affair?

So far this year Cosmopolitan has previewed 9 BEST SELLERS...

"BURMA SURGEON"
in the current issue, we predict will be No. 10

Cosmopolitan has set an unprecedented record with 9 best sellers so far this year, and a quick poll of our editors indicates that they think "Burma Surgeon," the great story by Gordon Seagrave, will make this magic circle of American literature.

This is a true story of an American doctor in the jungles of Burma who organized a hospital service in the face of Japanese invasion; trained a group of tiny Burmese nurses and performed operations under fire and shared the incredible hardships of General Joe Stilwell in his famous retreat.

SKIDMORE VAULT ROBBERY LOSERS TALLY UP WOES

Meager Clews Are Found in $250,000 Theft.

Tears, clamor, curses and near collapse were frequent yesterday as several hundred depositors gathered to learn the extent of their losses in the robbery of 819 strong boxes in gambling fixer William R. [Billy] Skidmore's Portage Park Safe Deposit vaults at 4717 Irving Park road. Police believe that $250,000 or more may have been taken by robbers who, thoroly familiar with the premises, burned and hacked their way thru 14 inches of steel and concrete to get at the loot.

Of the losing depositors, 20 who were questioned by reporters listed losses of almost $40,000. Sgt. Timothy O'Connell of the detective bureau robbery detail, said he had definitely learned that many of the city's big gamblers had boxes in the vaults and kept large sums there.

Yeggs Know Way About.

Yeggs, who knew their way about, tunneled thru the wall of a former gaming establishment at 3973 Milwaukee avenue to get into the vaults.

Careful search, police said, developed that the robbers left as clews only a revolver holster and a .38 caliber cartridge, found on the vault floor. There were no finger prints on either, Police Capt. John Boland said.

Theft of two marked $5 bills of the large size, now discontinued, gave a remote hope that the yeggs might be traced if they passed them. The bills were taken from the box of Miss Mabel Nutter, 4027 North Keeler avenue, who said her father, Frederick Pettibone, formerly a western banker, had signed his name across them.

Police saw in the visit of one depositor indications pointing to gamblers. This was when a pretty girl, about 23 years old, called. She was distinctly jittery as she asked about the looted boxes. A policeman told her that Nos. 329 to 816 and 1432 to 1764 were the boxes that had been robbed, besides a few at random.

$12,000 Loss, She Moans.

The young woman paled and swayed. Two detectives standing by seized her arms and held her up. "O, O," she moaned. "There was $12,000 in that box!" Questioned, she refused to give her name, said simply, "It—it was an inheritance," and walked quickly to an automobile outside.

Mrs. Sunny Hanzalik of 5934 East wood avenue, wept profusely and grew almost hysterical when she learned her box was among those looted. She sobbed she'd lost eight years' savings—$1,000.

"I'm in a war plant now, but I earned most of that money slinging hash!"

Mrs. R. C. Lowry, 5346 Hutchinson street, reported she lost $1,400 cash belonging to a lodge of which she is treasurer. "Now," she added, "I suppose I'll have to cash my son's war bonds to make it good."

JOHNSON PUSHES BATTLE IN COURT TO AVOID PRISON

Charges Attorney Lied in Income Tax Case.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

William R. [Big Bill] Johnson, once known as the boss gambler of Chicago and Cook county, filed a new court motion yesterday in his continuing effort to avoid serving the five year prison sentence imposed on him as an income tax cheater. Johnson submitted 38 affidavits in support of a charge to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals that Atty. William Goldstein committed perjury in testifying that he was Johnson's agent in purchasing real estate for gambling house sites.

Wm. R. Johnson.

The United States Supreme court last month sustained the original conviction of Johnson by a jury Oct. 12, 1940, altho the court of appeals had ruled that the conviction was void. Johnson then asked the high court at Washington, D. C., for permission to show that the conviction was based on perjury, and the Supreme court directed that this petition be submitted to the appeals court here.

Chief Government Witness.

Atty. William J. Dempsey of Washington who, with Atty. Charles R. Barrett of Chicago, is acting for the one time gambling king, said Goldstein was the government's chief witness against Johnson. If Goldstein's testimony were to be ruled out, there would be no case left against Johnson, Dempsey said.

Goldstein lied, Johnson and his attorneys charged, to save himself from prosecution on a federal indictment for perjury voted against him three years ago and not yet brought to trial.

The indictment against Goldstein was based on testimony he gave before the grand jury during the investigation of the income tax fund cases involving Johnson, William Skidmore, reputed dealer in political protection for gamblers, and the late M. L. Annenberg. Goldstein testified that certain records had been destroyed—testimony contradicted later by others. After his indictment Goldstein agreed to become a government witness against Johnson.

Aid for Skidmore.

He also lied, the Johnson argument proceeded, to aid Skidmore, his principal client. Skidmore also was convicted of defrauding the government of income taxes of nearly a million dollars. He now is in the federal penitentiary at Terre Haute, Ind., serving a 30 months' sentence.

The brief purported to explain how Goldstein's testimony resulted in Johnson's conviction. Johnson was accused of owning a dozen or more large gambling houses which operated in Cook county prior to Johnson's indictment in 1939, and of failing to pay a tax based on the aggregate profits of all the places.

Johnson admitted owning a half interest in several of the casinos, asserting that Skidmore was his partner. Goldstein, on the contrary, testified that he bought the properties outright with cash given him by Johnson.

The appeals court is asked to refer the case back to the United States District court for a new trial.

HIGHER PAY DEMAND OF MARITIME UNION RUNS INTO DEAD CALM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—Little interest is being shown by the maritime commission in the latest demands of the CIO National Maritime union for increased war risk bonuses and pay raises, inquiry disclosed today.

In an effort to add to pay already boosted during the war, the NMU has directed its negotiating committee to seek a flat $250 a month risk bonus for all crewmen on merchant ships, plus a general wage increase of $25 a month for all ratings.

A spokesman for the maritime commission said today that the agency has not received the union's newest request for higher pay. When it is received, this spokesman added, it will be given "due consideration."

CROOKED DICE TECHNIQUE NETS USER 30 DAYS

Dice technique came out in Judge Victor Kula's Felony court yesterday when Andrew Tanner, 32 year old Negro of 3621 South State street, was charged with the strong arm robbery of a fellow Negro, Charles Phillips, of $16 winnings in a dice game. Phillips charged Tanner scooped up the money and the latter asserted that Phillips also had grabbed and got more than his share.

Just then Tanner pulled out his handkerchief to wipe his perspiring brow, and two loaded dice rolled on the floor, precipitating a scramble. A bailiff came up with the dice. Pretending to believe his story, Judge Kula offered Tanner his freedom if he could throw a seven with the phoney dice, but he only shrugged.

At this point a detective volunteered information that the operator of crooked dice always carried a second pair to palm off if exposed. At Judge Kula's insistence, Tanner produced the second set of dice from concealment in a pack of cigarets.

"Thirty days," Judge Kula ordered.

TRAIN HITS HANDCAR; ONE DEAD.

Alphonso Ortez, 36 years old, of Cloverdale, Ill., an Illinois Central railroad section hand, was killed yesterday, but three companions jumped to safety when an eastbound passenger train struck their handcar near Elmhurst.

Loop Movie Slayer Ends First Year of Life Term

Clarence MacDonald, 18 years old, slayer of Dorothy Broz, his high school sweetheart, in a loop movie theater about 18 months ago, completed the first year of his life sentence in Pontiac prison yesterday. Warden Arthur Bennett said the boy has proved to be a model prisoner. He has been studying electrical engineering, one of several technical courses provided by the institution.

Navy Signal Man Asks Help to Find His Wife

Paul Warrington, a navy signal man, appealed to THE TRIBUNE yesterday to aid in finding his wife, who has been missing since April 13. The couple had been living in Kansas City, Mo., when he was ordered to sea duty in January and Mrs. Warrington came to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Stephansen, 3342 Schubert street, but later left there without saying where she was going. Warrington said he thought his wife still in Chicago. He has been given an emergency furlough and is staying at the Y. M. C. A. hotel, 826 South Wabash avenue.

Wife of Harry J. O'Rourke Files Suit for a Divorce

Mrs. Mary Crane O'Rourke, 844 Ainslie street, filed suit yesterday in the Superior court to divorce Harry J. O'Rourke, head of the Marquette Petroleum Products company. Her bill, filed by Atty. Benjamin B. Davis, charged O'Rourke deserted her Oct. 5, 1929. O'Rourke is 65 years old and his wife 64. In 1937, after a bitter legal contest, Mrs. O'Rourke was awarded a decree of separation and $125 monthly support payments. Recently she complained to the court that O'Rourke had made no payments since 1941, and charged he was $1,875 in arrears.

Aiken Plan Follows Hints East Is Cool to Willkie.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—A suggestion voiced today by Sen. George D. Aiken [R., Vt.] that the Republicans nominate Democratic Sen. Guy M. Gillette [Ia.] for President came on the heels of multiplying reports that eastern Republicans are proving cool to the candidacy of Wendell Willkie.

Sen. Guy M. Gillette.

The coolness seems to be based on a feeling that Willkie is only a New Dealer masquerading as a Republican and that on post-war questions he is an internationalist differing in no respect from President Roosevelt, considered almost certain to be the Democratic candidate.

Sen. Gillette is the antithesis of Willkie on almost all issues, domestic and foreign. He is a conservative Democrat who differed with the New Deal to such an extent that the President sought to purge him in the 1938 Democratic primary. While Willkie favors a world state and an international police force after the war, Gillette opposes both.

Asked Stand on Willkie.

Sen. Aiken was asked whether his suggestion of Gillette for the Republican nomination signified opposition to Willkie's nomination.

"It means," he replied, "that I think Republicans are looking for a man of their own kind to vote for. I am not committing myself for or against any one. I am just making suggestions."

Aiken was a delegate to the 1940 Philadelphia, Pa., Republican convention that nominated Willkie for President. He voted for Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr. [R., Mass.], house minority leader, on the first ballot and did not swing to Willkie till the last two.

Willkie's support in the east centers in Connecticut, where Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin is actively furthering his candidacy. In Massachusetts, however, Republicans appear far more interested in Gov. Leverette Saltonstall as a Presidential possibility than in Mr. Willkie.

Expect Battle in New York.

A tremendous battle is thought likely in New York between the Willkie forces and those supporting Gov. Thomas E. Dewey. Dewey is not a candidate and emphatically discourages any movement to draft him, but already there are abundant indications that he purposes to control the delegation to the national convention. Willkie candidates for the delegation are to be put up against Dewey candidates in almost every district.

Aiken said that "if the party should see fit to nominate Sen. Gillette, the rank and file of the people would have a candidate. He is the type of man we should be looking for."

He added that "the Republican party cannot afford to turn back the clock a generation—we'll never beat Roosevelt on a beat - Roosevelt ticket" alone.

"If the Republicans want to line up a program eliminating everything that's been adopted since 1932, they can insure a fourth term," he said.

WAR WRITER HURT AS JAPS STRAFE BARGE

ALLIED HDQ. IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, July 13 (AP).—William F. Boni, Associated Press war correspondent in New Guinea, received nine shell splinter wounds in an attack by Japanese planes on the Salamaua front, the Associated Press Australian bureau was informed today. Boni is being treated at an advanced field hospital.

William Boni.

In a brief message from Gen. MacArthur's press relations office, Boni described his wounds as "superficial." They resulted from the bombing and strafing by enemy aircraft of a barge in which the correspondent was leaving Nassau bay, 12 miles below Salamaua and the scene of American landings June 30.

Acme Photographer Carl Thusgaard, who came thru the Japanese attack unhurt, reached Port Moresby, New Guinea, yesterday with the information that Boni had been hit by shell splinters or fragments.

WPB Lags Behind Voters in Rejecting Aurora Port

RAINBOW FLAGS FLY TODAY FOR A NEW DIVISION

Tulsa, Okla., July 13 [Special].—Robert J. Reno Jr. of Chicago today was elected national president of the Rainbow association, composed of World War I. veterans, who came to Tulsa to pass their honored battle flags on to the new Rainbow division.

Brig. Gen. Collins.

The new Rainbow division will be reactivated at Camp Gruber tomorrow, the 25th anniversary of the old Rainbow's victory in the battle of Champagne.

At a reunion gathering the Rainbow veterans installed E. O. Johnson of 295 La Salle street, Park Ridge, as president of the Illinois chapter of the association. He succeeds Judge Cornelius J. Harrington.

The association voted to hold its 1944 reunion in Chicago on July 13 and 14. Chicago was to have been host to the 1943 reunion until plans were made to shift the gathering to Tulsa so that the veterans could participate in reactivation of the new division.

The Illinois chapter of 1,800 members made plans to hold a special meeting in the La Salle hotel in Chicago July 22. The group at that time will pay its respects to President Elect Reno and Lt. Col. Bob Moffett, a veteran of Guadalcanal campaigns, who is home on sick leave. Col. Moffett served as a private with the supply company of the 149th field artillery of the Rainbow division during the last war.

Brig. Gen. Harry J. Collins and other officers of the new division were entertained by the association at a party staged as a prelude to tomorrow's ceremony. One of Gen. Collins' aides is 1st Lt. James B. McCahey Jr. of Chicago.

Soldiers from each of the 48 states make up the personnel of the new Rainbow division. The old division, named by the then Col. Douglas MacArthur, division chief of staff and later division commander, included men from 26 states and the District of Columbia.

SPURNED; HE TAKES POISON.

Despondent because his former wife refused to become reconciled with him, John Domagala, 31 years old, 2914 West 40th street, swallowed poison yesterday in his home. After he was treated at County hospital, police arrested him on a charge of disorderly conduct.

F.D.R. DISPUTES CONGRESS RIGHT TO OUST 3 AIDS

Hints Defiance on Dodd, Lovett, and Watson.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—President Roosevelt today denounced as unconstitutional, unwise and discriminatory a rider, attached to the 143 million dollar deficiency bill, which would force dismissal of three federal employés accused in congress of subversive connections.

At his press conference Mr. Roosevelt read a message he proposes to send to congress when it reconvenes in two months. The message closed with the assertion that the congressional action was an unwarranted encroachment on the executive and judicial branches of the government and was, therefore, not binding.

However, Mr. Roosevelt refused to say whether he would allow the three employés to stay in office or whether he would renominate them before Nov. 15.

Lovett, Dodd and Watson.

The three federal employés involved are Robert Morss Lovett, secretary of the Virgin Islands, and Goodwin Watson and William E. Dodd Jr., both employés of the federal communications commission. Lovett, a former professor at the University of Chicago, receives $5,800 a year; Watson, $6,500 and Dodd $3,200.

Last May the house passed the deficiency bill with the provision that none of the fund it appropriated could be used to pay the salaries of the three employes, who were found unfit to continue as government employés by a house subcommittee which investigated charges they had taken part in the activities of subversive organizations.

The senate refused to approve the contemplated dismissals. The house insisted on the ouster five times. A compromise was offered that the men be dismissed after Nov. 15 unless they were renominated to their posts by the President and the nominations were approved by the senate. The house accepted the compromise with reluctance.

Forced to Accept Bill.

Mr. Roosevelt said that he, like the senate, was forced to accept the bill, because a veto would have cut off funds essential to the war.

He likened the rider to a bill of attainder, which has been defined by the Supreme court as "a legislative act which inflicts punishment without a jury trial."

There was no suggestion that the three men had not performed their services loyally or well, he said. They were not tried by a jury, nor were they impeached, he added.

For this reason, he said, he regarded the rider as unconstitutional, unwise, and discriminatory.

U.S. URGED: MAKE STEVENS A HOME FOR WAR WIVES

Conversion of the Stevens hotel, world's largest hostelry, into a rent-free home for 3,000 wives of service men who have children and whose allotments do not exceed $70 monthly has been suggested to the war department by Mrs. Allan A. Levy, 6914 Jeffery avenue, who represents a group of 25 south side women interested in social welfare work.

Mrs. Levy said yesterday she had received a brief reply saying the matter would be "given due attention."

Each of the 3,000 mothers would furnish her own room, which would solve the present problem of how to refurnish the Stevens when the army radio school marches out, and each would do her own room work, Mrs. Levy said.

As there would be no rent charged, according to Mrs. Levy's plan, the 3,000 war mothers could use their allotments for food, children's clothing, and necessary incidentals.

F. D. R. SAYS U. S. WILL GIVE MINES BACK TO OWNERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—President Roosevelt today promised that coal mines will be restored to their private owners soon after full production is restored.

At his press conference, the chief executive read a section of the new anti-strike act, which was passed over his veto. The section provides that the government shall return seized plants to private operation within 60 days after normal operations and production have been reëstablished.

Anticipating a question as to what would happen if the miners struck again, Mr. Roosevelt said the law also requires a 30 day cooling off period.

Beverly Hills, Cal., July 13 (AP).—Maria Montez, screen actress from the Dominican republic, and Jean Pierre Aumont, formerly of the French stage, now making pictures in Hollywood, were married tonight at the bride's home. Jeannine Crispin, French stage actress, was matron of honor, and Actor Charles Boyer was best man. The full name of the bride, who once was married to William G. MacFeeters in Ireland, is Mrs. Maria Antonia Gracia Vidal y de Santos Silos de MacFeeters.

FUTURE IS BRIGHT FOR SYNTHETIC RUBBER: JEFFERS

Product Can Hold Own After War, He Says.

[Copyright: 1943: By the New York Times.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—William M. Jeffers, rubber director, said in an interview today that synthetic rubber had progressed to the point where it would hold its own with natural rubber after the war from the standpoint both of utility and cost.

"Synthetic rubber is here to stay," he said. "And when I say it can hold its own, I mean hold its own without tariffs or subsidies."

Mr. Jeffers was reminded that Vice President Henry A. Wallace had advocated, as a means of restoring world trade, scrapping most of the synthetic rubber factories after the war and returning to the use of natural rubber. The reporter suggested that Jeffers might not wish to discuss the synthetic product's future, since his reply might be interpreted as taking issue with Wallace.

Denies He's Taking Issue.

"I'm taking issue with no one," said Jeffers, who has disagreed in the past with several high government officials. "You asked me a plain question and I'll give you a plain answer."

He said continuation of synthetic rubber manufacture on a large scale did not necessarily mean this country would not continue to buy natural rubber.

"Naturally, the cost of synthetic rubber after the war will depend in large part upon the cost of petroleum, alcohol, or other products from which it is made," he said. "Then there may be obstacles to a restoration of production in the East Indies at something like the former cost of the natural product, and production on a large scale in Latin America may encounter difficulties. But, as things look now, I would predict that we will produce synthetic rubber at a price somewhere between 8 and 15 cents a pound and, as I recall offhand, this would not be far out of line with the pre-war cost of the natural product."

Praises Passenger Tires.

Mr. Jeffers said that passenger automobile tires being made altogether from synthetic rubber are as good as the same type tires made from natural rubber.

"I'd just as soon have the synthetic tires on my car," he said. "They will wear just about as well and last just about as long. And experiments indicate they will hold up remarkably well at high speeds."

Synthetic rubber is being used satisfactorily in heavy duty military tires, he said, but he added that about 30 per cent of crude rubber was still being mixed with this type of tire. Thus far, the experience with synthetic rubber in heavy duty civilian tires, used on large buses and trucks, has not been very satisfactory.

"It should not be forgotten, however," Jeffers continued, "that we've been working with synthetic intensively only a little more than a year. But, in view of the progress we are making every day, I think I've been speaking conservatively about the future of the product. Already there are some specialized uses for which synthetic is a good deal better than natural rubber."

Jeffers was asked what he thought should be done with the synthetic factories after the war, and replied:

"I'm for giving private industry an opportunity to purchase the plants and to run them."

In reply to another question he said:

"I've no plans to resign now. We're going ahead, but much remains to be done."

WOMEN'S APPAREL LOOTED.

Mrs. Lillian Nathan reported to police yesterday the theft of 14 dozen two-piece suits for women, 14 dozen women's jumper skirts, and 12 pairs of stockings from her store at 2815 Cermak road.

Police Arrest Student Clad in Female Attire

Edward Piech, 24 years old, of 4831 South Elizabeth street, a dental student, who was arrested Monday night as he emerged from a women's dress shop at 908 East 47th street clad in newly purchased female attire, was charged with disorderly conduct and will be arraigned in the Wabash avenue court this morning.

CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR
She's as Lively as a Youngster—Now her Backache is better

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

TOWN CAN'T GET FIRE TRUCKS GAS —IS IT BURNED UP!

Plans a Protest Against ODT Red Tape.

BY ROY GIBBONS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 13.—Shiny red tape of the office of defense transportation has snarled the shiny red fire equipment of Demarest, N. J., say its citizens. The town's 1,400 residents, fearing for their safety, planned a mass meeting today to decide on action to compel the ODT to allot the volunteer department sufficient gas to operate.

According to Harry F. Tate, Wall street broker and chairman of the Demarest public safety committee, there is only enough gas in the three pieces of apparatus to pump water for a five minute blaze.

The 70 gallons allotted last April were almost used up at brush fires. Efforts to get more gas have resulted in "the biggest pushing around any human being has ever received," Tate said.

Must Prove It's Essential.

"Having established our necessity for each piece of equipment and then for the three pieces of equipment together as a fleet, we now are told the ODT insists that if we want more gas we must reëstablish an additional essentiality, which is a ridiculous thing for a fire department to have to prove anyhow," Tate declared.

"They turned down Arthur W. Griffin, our fire department chief, after he had filled out all the forms proving how necessary we are."

When Griffin got nowhere, Tate went to the ODT division of motor transport in Newark on July 1 and filled out a two page form, explaining the nature of the services performed, total tonnage, and total mileage. Tate then was told to wait and see an examiner. After four hours he left and wrote a letter, Tate said.

Asks for 50 Gallons.

In his letter he explained the situation, asking an additional 50 gallons per quarter.

"It will be necessary," said the mimeographed reply, "for you to present this form in person with all operating records, proof of essentiality, and maps of territory you cover at this office or one of our branch offices listed below."

Tate answered "that there is no one who can or will waste any more time in making more personal appearances."

Tate characterizes the whole procedure as "idiotic." "And now to top off everything," he concludes, "the office of civilian defense has just offered us another pumper."

ICKES ORDERS COAL DIVERTED TO STEEL MILLS

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—More coal for steel appeared assured today as Harold L. Ickes, solid fuels administrator, ordered 135,000 tons diverted to steel plants as four more mines owned by steel companies resumed operations.

Both actions were on the eve of a special grand jury investigation in Pittsburgh, Pa., into strikes which last week kept approximately 18,000 miners idle.

Ickes said the diversion was to "relieve the growing paralysis of the steel industry."

WAC Recruiting

The efforts of Eddie Cantor, stage and radio comedian, in behalf of WAC recruiting yesterday were most successful, 2d officer Margaret B. Stewart, corps senior recruiting officer for Illinois, reported.

Cantor stopped in Chicago on his way from New York to Hollywood and visited the special recruiting booth set up in the lobby of the Insurance Exchange building, 175 West Jackson boulevard, headquarters of WAC recruiting in Chicago.

Many women signed applications at the booth before, during, and after Cantor's appearance. If they are accepted by the WAC, they will help to fill the new quota of 600,000 women needed by the army.

PURE FOOD MEN CLEAR CANTEEN IN POSTOFFICE

Investigators for the food and drug administration have found no indication of food poisoning among 17 persons who sought first aid after eating supper last Friday night in the Chicago postoffice canteen, Thomas M. Peters, chairman of the committee in charge of the restaurant, said yesterday.

Peters said the canteen, which sometimes serves 10,000 meals a day, is operated by the treasury department and the office of the fourth assistant postmaster, and is governed by a committee made up of members of several departments.

He said that this is the first time that food poisoning has been suspected in the 11 years the canteen has been operated, and that of the 17 who asked for treatment, only 10 were found to have symptoms of indigestion. Of these, he said, no two were found to have eaten similar meals.

U. S. CONSIDERS MOBILIZATION OF FOOD OF ALLIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—The administration is considering a plan to create an allied food board with broad powers to plan food production and distribution for the United States and other allied nations, it was disclosed today.

The plan, which may be submitted soon to other allied nations, was disclosed as Food Administrator Marvin Jones announced a record crop production goal for the nation's farmers for 1944.

Jones called on farmers to plant a total of 380 million acres next year, and to increase wheat plantings to 68 million acres, an increase of 26 per cent over this year's acreage. He said farmers will be urged to produce as much milk, eggs, and meat as can be turned out from all available feed supplies. The 1944 goal of all crops is 16 million acres higher than the 1943 total and 3 millions higher than the previous peak acreage of 1932. It represents a change in the administration prewar policy of reducing acreages by penalizing farmers for planting too much.

Federal Agency Plan.

The proposal for an overall allied food unit has been advanced, it was said, by a subcommittee of the government's food advisory committee, which includes representatives of the agriculture department, war food administration, war production board, lend-lease, and office of price administration.

The proposal is based on the committee's belief that the allied nations face dwindling food supplies during the war unless further action is taken to increase overall food production, particularly outside this country, and to reduce food transportation requirements as among the various countries.

U. S. Can't Supply All.

The committee said that United States food output, while tremendous, cannot meet all the shortages of the allies. Only small reserves now exist in most vital foods except sugar and wheat, and even wheat reserves may be depleted within two or three years, the committee found.

It proposed that the overall food agency, to include representatives of the United States, Great Britain, Russia, and possibly China, be given power to assign areas for the output of all major foods, allocate farm machinery, seed and other resources, and set output goals for each area.

WORK ON CANAL STREET BRIDGE HALTED BY WPB

Construction of a new Canal street bridge, across the south branch of the Chicago river 21 blocks south of Madison street, was ordered halted yesterday by the war production board at Washington. The WPB announced it has revoked the permit under which the city, thru a contractor, has been carrying on the $1,100,000 project, which is nearly half completed.

City officials, who expressed surprise at the announcement, indicated they will await action on a request for higher priorities, submitted about a month ago, before making further efforts to have the permit restored. Maury Maverick, head of the governmental section of WPB, had written Mayor Kelly only a few days ago that his office had recommended the higher priorities. Revoking of the permit means the city cannot go ahead with the work, even with materials already on hand.

The old Canal street bridge, one of the busiest in the city before the war, was in bad condition and accordingly was removed shortly before the United States became involved in the war in 1941. The city then proceeded with construction of the new bridge.

NEW YORK GETS TWICE AS MANY FISH AS BEFORE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 13.—If fish is the brain food it's reputed to be, then New Yorkers are on their way to becoming twice as smart as they were a year ago. Since meat rationing began, New York City has doubled its consumption of finny fare, E. J. Irwin, supervisor of the fishery council, reported today.

To satisfy the demand, according to Irwin, twice the amount of fish that came in before is now arriving each day from Boston and other points along the seaboard.

Stores which during the sirloin period featured fish only once a week, or at most twice, now have it on daily display. Restaurants and most of the city's best hotels are serving fish and shellfish dishes exclusively on Tuesdays and Fridays, which are designated by the Restaurant Owners' guild as "days without meat for the axis defeat."

MAN WITH A HOE DIGS A BILLION OUT OF GARDENS

Amateur Farmers Work Millions of Plots.

BY GAIL COMPTON.

The man who swapped his golf club for a hoe is helping to grow a billion dollars worth of food in the United States this year.

This estimate of the total value of 1943 war garden produce was made yesterday by Lester Norris, chairman of the Illinois war garden committee, who said the nation's week-end farmers were harvesting vegetables from more than 20 million gardens.

A garden only 30x50 feet will produce $65 worth of produce, Norris said, and with this figure as a base, he computed that the average garden in the state will yield at least $50 worth of food this season. Norris said Illinois alone had a million gardens. Thus, Illinois gardens are producing 50 million dollars worth, and the 20 million gardens thruout the country should yield a billion dollars worth of food.

130,000 Gardens Here.

The Chicago metropolitan area has more than 130,000 gardens, totaling 1,700 acres. Officials said the gardens would yield roughly one pound of food for every square foot, including succession crops. On this basis, the gardens in the metropolitan area, at a conservative estimate, will add 55 million pounds of fresh vegetables to the nation's larder, said George T. Donoghue, director of gardens in the area.

G. J. Cornille, Chicago produce handler, explained that the gardens were causing periods of glut and famine that have prevented any reaction on the commercial market.

"One day a family will have more lettuce or radishes than it can consume," he said. "The next day they are gone and the family is back buying them."

Offset Commercial Shortages.

A. B. Farlinger, marketing adviser for the food distribution administration, said the gardens were serving to tide over vegetable shortages developing because of poor weather conditions.

E. L. Kramer, secretary of the A. J. Krecker company, large handlers of local produce, said that commercial men have welcomed the war gardens because they are serving to introduce the public to new tastes in vegetables.

"People are eating kohlrabi and swiss chard and other crops they have raised themselves that they seldom asked for in the markets," he said. "As a result of these new tastes our commercial trade will be improved."

Garden for 800 Families.

Back yard gardens range from tiny affairs of a few square feet to large community efforts where hundreds of families are getting fresh vegetables daily. At Foster and St. Louis avenues is Chicago's largest community garden, totaling 32 acres and worked by 800 families. Gardens having from 50 to 300 families participating are not uncommon in the city.

Not included in all these figures are the gardens being developed by children. Donoghue estimated there were at least 10,000 children's gardens in the metropolitan area helping to produce vegetables.

NAB GAS DEALER WITH 7,054 TRUCK RATION COUPONS

Arrest of John Falzone, 33 years old, 4035 Washington boulevard, manager of a gasoline station at 2458 South Park way, yesterday resulted in recovery of 7,054 TT [commercial truck] coupons good for 35,270 gallons of gasoline for truck transport, federal agents disclosed. Falzone was held to the federal grand jury in $2,000 bonds by Commissioner Edwin K. Walker after pleading guilty to illegal possession of rationing stamps. Falzone was implicated by Alvin Dulsky, 40, of 8024 Yates avenue, who said Falzone sold him 800 TT stamps. Falzone led deputy marshals and Lewis Nowland, OPA enforcement attorney, to the gas station safe and surrendered the coupons, each worth five gallons of gasoline, but refused to reveal the source.

LAST OF 18 MILLION NO. 3 RATION BOOKS SOON TO BE IN MAILS

Mail distribution of the No. 3 ration book in the seven state Chicago region will be completed tomorrow, Edward F. Stegen, regional rationing executive, said yesterday. Books already have been mailed to 17,802,266 civilian consumers in the region. Stegen said that the total will be approximately 18 million. About 50,000 to 60,000 late applications for the new ration book will be handled after Aug. 1.

Joel Dean, director of the OPA fuel oil division, predicted "radical improvement" in the next winter's fuel supply in testifying before a special senate committee investigating the midwestern petroleum situation. He said that ration coupons for next winter will be delivered to consumers by the end of July, permitting them to fill their tanks in the summer.

You call it Bread . . .
your ancestors would have called it Cake

Your daily bread is nutrition in one of its finest and most appetizing forms—and today it saves ration points. We Americans can be grateful that our country produces an abundance of this perfect 'staff of life'.

We can be grateful, too, to science for the greatly improved quality of our daily bread. It has been tremendously enriched. Its texture is finer, its appearance and flavor more inviting.

Did you ever wonder how many millions of pounds of yeast are required each year to leaven the nation's bread? Did you know that yeast must be absolutely fresh when it reaches the baker? Thanks to a network of specialized delivery services plus modern refrigeration, bakers in even remote parts of America get their yeast fresh and on time.

The Baker's Yeast Division of Anheuser-Busch supplies bakers with yeast for a large part of the nation's bread. Now nearly 15 percent of our entire output goes to the Army. This service to civilian bakers and our armed forces resulted from applying to food the knowledge gained from years of laboratory work in producing the world-famous Budweiser.

In addition to supplying the armed forces with glider parts, gun turret parts and foodstuffs, Anheuser-Busch produces materials which go into the manufacture of: B Complex Vitamins • Rubber Aluminum • Munitions • Medicines • Hospital Diets • Baby Foods Vitamin-fortified cattle feeds • Batteries • Paper • Soap and Textiles —to name a few.

Many a man in defense industries, earning more than ever before, is grateful for a chance to fulfill a long-cherished desire. He is buying his own home. Or he is buying a homesite on which to build later—and buying War Bonds to pay for the house when it can be built.

Realtors can show many worthwhile opportunities to those who look forward to a home of their own. Perhaps this is the time to start looking.

PRISONER FREED FROM ALCATRAZ BY CONSTITUTION

Chicagoan Gets Hearing Thru Habeas Writ.

Guarantee of the right of counsel under the sixth amendment to the federal Constitution yesterday erased a prison sentence for Louis M. Kalis, 38 year old Chicago printer, after 15 years in penitentiaries, the last eight at Alcatraz. The right of habeas corpus, older even than the Constitution, was the lever that actually pried open the gates at "The Rock."

Kalis in 1928 was convicted of a holdup of a grocery on the northwest side, and was shown to have been involved, too, in the robbery of a drugstore that contained a postal substation. For the former offense he was sent to Joliet penitentiary under a one year to life sentence.

When paroled on Feb. 24, 1935, federal agents arrested him for the postal station robbery. The late Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward appointed a defense counsel. Kalis got his own lawyer, who asked time to study the case. Immediate trial was ordered, with the court appointee defending the prisoner. A jury found Kalis guilty, and Judge Woodward sentenced him to 25 years.

Government Drops Case.

After eight years at "The Rock," as Alcatraz is known—why Kalis was sent there was not disclosed—the prisoner succeeded in having a lawyer petition for a writ of habeas in the United States District court at San Francisco. On April 17 last, Judge A. F. St. Sure ordered the case remanded to the District court in Chicago and yesterday Kalis was taken before Judge William J. Campbell.

Appearing for the government, Assistant United States Attorney Francis J. McGreal announced that his office would dismiss the case on authority of Attorney General Francis Biddle.

Kalis walked out of court free except that he was required by the marshal's office to fill out a selective service questionnaire.

REPORTS $172 ROBBERY.

John Turkoski, 50 years old, 17917 Gallagher street, Detroit, reported to police yesterday that he was robbed of $172 by three Negro women and two Negro men after leaving the home of a brother at 537 West 31st street.

U.S. INDICTS 13 FOR NOT HALTING KILLING OF NEGRO

Breach of Civil Rights Is Charged.

East St. Louis, Ill., July 13 [Special].—Indictments against 13 persons, including a former sheriff of Vigo county, Indiana, and three of his deputies, were returned here today by a federal grand jury as an aftermath of the fatal shooting near Paris, Ill., on Oct. 12, 1942, of James Edward Person, 33 years old, a Negro and discharged soldier.

The true bills charged conspiracy to violate civil rights statutes by depriving Person of his life and liberty without due process of law. The procedure is the same recently employed by the federal government in an unsuccessful effort to prosecute members of a Mississippi mob who had taken a Negro from a jail and lynched him.

2 Year Term Possible.

Frank Coleman, special assistant to Atty. Gen. Francis Biddle, who same here to handle the presentation of evidence to the grand jury, said the offense charged carries a maximum penalty of two years' imprisonment and $5,000 fine. Those indicted will be arraigned Monday at Danville, he said, and the government will ask that bond be fixed at $2,000 each. No arrests have yet been made, it was said.

The federal action is the result of an inquiry into circumstances of Person's death by the department of justice.

Person was hunted thruout the day of Oct. 12 by posses of farmers and deputies in Vigo county, Ind., and Edgar county, Ill., after reports had been circulated that he had appeared at several farm houses and had frightened women. He is believed to have been shot and wounded in Vigo county, and later in the day again wounded by a group which encountered him a mile inside the Illinois line.

Body Found on Farm.

The posses dispersed without apprehending Person but on Nov. 26 his body was found on the Edgar county farm of James Strickler. Authorities said he had apparently died of his wounds a short time after he was last fired upon.

Named in the indictment were John Trierweiler, former Vigo county sheriff; James Elliott, Herbert Beasley, and Pearl Miller, former Vigo county deputy sheriffs; Guy Morris and Martin Kiado, Vigo county farmers, and Ernest Boynter, James Huston, Edward Garwood, Kenneth and Erret Bozarth, Herbert Tweedy, and Charles Price, Edgar county farmers.

Special Agents to Hunt Cars Lacking Stickers

A drive to bring in as many as possible of the estimated 88,873 Chicago motorists who have not purchased city vehicle stickers was announced last night by City Clerk Ludwig D. Schreiber. Mayor Kelly and Schreiber have arranged for a group of special investigators to work with the police and issue tickets. A $2 fine will be levied in addition to the license fee. Schreiber said 581,021 automobile owners have bought 1943 city licenses.

ROCKFORD DENTIST DIES.

Rockford, Ill., July 13 [Special].—Dr. Oscar Renius Holmin, 64 years old, died today at Swedish-American hospital. He had practiced dentistry in Rockford 39 years.

5 YOUNG THIEVES HELD AS POLICE RECOVER AUTOS

Five members of a gang of young self-confessed auto thieves were held to the grand jury by Judge Joseph B. Hermes in the Auto court yesterday after five automobiles had been recovered by police. The five are Robert Michaelson, 17, of 163 North avenue; Joseph Gibson, 18, of 1415 Leland avenue; Seymour Lieberman, 17, of 4510 North Kedzie avenue, and John Pittman, 18, of 1525 North La Salle street, the latter a confessed army deserter. Charles Otte, 17, of 1845 Hudson avenue, received a suspended fine of $200 when he said his army induction was imminent, and Robert Conroy Jr., 19, of 155 North avenue, an associate of the others, was placed on probation for one year.

Retired Villa Park Cleric Dies of Train Injuries

The Rev. William F. Faux, 75 years old, of Villa Park, died in the Elmhurst hospital yesterday of injuries suffered Monday when he fell beneath a Chicago, Aurora and Elgin passenger train in the suburb. He was the retired pastor of the Villa Park Christian church.

JUDGE SAYS MAN OF 79 ENTITLED TO HIS LIQUOR

After a man has attained three score and ten years, he's entitled to his liquor, Judge John P. McGoorty ruled in Superior court yesterday. He decided it in the case of Daniel J. O'Connor, 79 years old, who complained his daughter, Mrs. Anna Shaughnessy, with whom he lives at 7715 South Loomis street, refuses to allow him his drinks.

The venerable O'Connor said he believed a pint a day would be about right for him. Judge McGoorty said:

"Well, I'm not saying a pint a day is the proper amount. But I do think the old gentleman should have his nip when he wants it."

Judge McGoorty is 77 years old.

Are YOU one of 15,000,000 FORGOTTEN MEN?

THE average American is a substantial, thrifty citizen. He lives respectably, feeds and clothes himself and his family decently and still puts a little by for the inevitable rainy day. He doesn't seek to take advantage of his neighbor and asks simply that his neighbor act the same way towards him.

Fifteen million such American men and women, having faith in this country and its institutions, have made direct investments in American industry of some or all of what they have saved. This does not make them opulent "capitalists" or "robber barons." Free industry could not exist without that capital. Labor and management could not enjoy freedom without it. The Government itself could not function without the tax money capital earns and pays.

That is the American way—to venture and gain—and it is a good way, the best way mankind has ever devised. It is worth preserving. Very possibly you are one of these 15,000,000 investors. If you are, it will be worth your while to read every word of this advertisement. Because you need help—as do small business men and other property owners, life insurance policyholders, savings depositors, homeowners.

Every day your invested savings—and your earnings from these savings—are jeopardized by the actions of groups which do not represent you. Labor is pressing for the interests of union members. Farm groups are pressuring for farmers. Industry management—your elected representative—has too often failed to protect your interests effectively, has in some instances profited unduly at your expense.

Unorganized, undirected, yours would be a voice crying in the wilderness. But joined with the voices of many thousands of others like you, you can be heard!

LABOR is organized
BUSINESS is organized
FARMERS are organized

BUT

WHO REPRESENTS YOU, THE AMERICAN INVESTOR?

Average Americans built American Industry. Their faith in the American Way of Life is backed by the dollars they saved and invested. To enable them to exercise effectively their democratic right to be represented and heard, the Investors Fairplay League has been formed.

The Investors Fairplay League stands for a square deal for every investor

The primary objective of the League is to do everything possible to preserve the economic system which has given America the highest standards of living ever enjoyed by any nation.

To accomplish its purposes, the League's program calls for watching pending legislation affecting investors and other property owners it represents; sponsoring securityholders' actions against unfair management proposals or practices; inspiring and supporting constructive new laws, amendments to old laws, and regulations; representing members vigorously to insure respectful attention at Washington, State capitals, elsewhere.

The League, recognizing that Owners and Labor are partners, will encourage the solving of their joint problems and destinies cooperatively. The League believes in reasonable taxation and regulation of corporations, advocates no discrimination in favor of investors, only a square deal for them. The League, in the national interest, likewise believes in reasonable regulation of organized labor.

Whose ax are we grinding?

The League is neither a "front" for anybody nor is it waging a crusade against anybody. It is not anti-labor, anti-administration, anti-management or anti anything except that it is against any unfair discrimination toward the 15,000,000 Americans with invested savings, the 66,000,000 life insurance policyholders, 45,000,000 savings depositors, 15,000,000 homeowners, hundreds of thousands of small business men, other property owners. Most of these people are voters. We are committed to the protection of their legitimate interests. (Corporations cannot be members.)

THE INVESTORS FAIRPLAY LEAGUE RENDERS 4 VALUABLE SERVICES TO MEMBERS

1 The League has in Washington a competent General Counsel to represent the interests of its members before Congress and before administrative agencies. The purpose is to sponsor and encourage sound legislation, and to work to defeat laws which unfairly impair security and other property values.

2 The League disseminates to its members and the press the findings of pertinent economic studies.

3 The League hopes, given sufficient support, to organize committees composed of its members in various corporations, especially where protective action may be necessary. Such committees will seek to safeguard the interests of investors by laying before management the stockholders' viewpoint before actions are actually taken. These committees should also have a direct voice with management in dealing with labor. Indications are that progressive management will welcome such cooperation.

4 The League publishes a Monthly Bulletin keeping members advised of League activities, as well as legislation, taxation, labor, all actions affecting their interests.

You can join the Investors Fairplay League for any sum you wish

The Investors Fairplay League is non-partisan and non-profitmaking. To be of maximum usefulness, the League must have very large membership. Anyone who cherishes our American way of life, who cherishes preservation of American democracy, American liberty, may—and should—join.

The issue is squarely up to you. Until now you have not been represented. Your interests have been footballed back and forth by other well-organized groups which, commanding votes, have been listened to most respectfully at Washington. But you were just an individual, one against unified millions.

Now you have the opportunity to band together with fellow investors. Your dues will pay qualified workers to do the job for you and every dollar of it goes into the work of the League. Isn't it worth a few dollars to protect your investment of many?

Do it now

The cost is trivial. In fact, we leave it to you whether to become a $2 Annual Associate Member, a $5 Annual Member, a $10 Annual Active Member, a $25 Annual Co-operating Member, a $100 Annual Sustaining Member, or a contributor of $1,000 (the maximum accepted).

The point is to JOIN. Numbers of new members are vitally important, for the more investors the League represents, the more consideration will be accorded to the League's point of view and to the action it takes in your behalf. So, do it now. The coupon at the left tells the story. Fill it out now—while you think of it—and return it with your check. There will never be a better time to protect your interests.

Thousands of American investors are now fighting YOUR battle!
Don't make them fight on alone. Unite with them. Support the League!

STALIN AS HE IS.

Our invasion of Sicily got scant attention in the controlled press of Russia. The short stories announcing it referred pointedly to Sicily as an island, thereby stressing the fact that the United States and Great Britain still have not acceded to Stalin's demands for the opening of the second front in Europe, which American Communists and their New Deal allies also have been demanding so vociferously.

Americans have no need to feel irked under this treatment, but they should learn a lesson from it. Stalin demanded the second front on the continent a year ago when such an attack would have been suicidal and he is still demanding it altho our own military leaders have made no secret of the fact that if it is undertaken the project can be accomplished only at a tremendous cost in life. Stalin is not interested in that. He is interested only in Russia and the dictatorship.

Max Eastman, who was an enthusiast for communism until he spent two years in Russia studying it and saw what happened to Trotzky and the other old revolutionaries, has just written in the Reader's Digest a plea for Americans to be as realistic in our dealings with Russia as the Russians are in dealing with us. He notes the fact of our admiration for the Russian military exploits and he warns that the soviet union is going to continue as a great world power and that our collaboration with Russia is going to be "a main preoccupation of living Americans for a long time to come."

But, says Eastman, if we are to be successful in that collaboration, we must base it on facts and not propaganda. The worst possible policy is to try to soft soap Stalin, because it only arouses his contempt. He is a realist, doing only what he can see is best for Russia and for his interest as the dictator of Russia, and if we expect to have his respect we must let him know that we understand just what he is, how he operates, and what desire he has in view.

Mr. Eastman is appalled by the naivete of the Wallaces, the Willkies, the Davieses, and all the rest of the apologists.

"Let us remember," he says, "that the stubborn resistance of the Russians no more justifies communism than the furious attack of the Germans justifies Naziism." And so Eastman proceeds to depict the Russia that exists in fact and not the Russia painted by the propaganda of Hollywood and the New Deal. Russia has had but one democratic government, the one that Lenin overthrew after it had existed for eight months. Stalin is the supreme dictator of the country, a position that he assured himself by the great purge in which he slaughtered 300,000 people.

Russia is the country in which from ten million to fifteen million people, native Russians, live as slave laborers behind the barbed wire of concentration camps in which they were placed for political or economic offenses.

It is still unchanged from the status which caused Mr. Roosevelt to say of Russia in 1940: "The soviet union, as everybody knows who has the courage to face the facts, is a dictatorship as absolute as any other dictatorship in the world." It does not, as Mr. Roosevelt tried to claim at a later date, guarantee religious freedom.

Mr. Wallace, Eastman said, was correct in saying that the differences of income in Russia are almost as great as in the United States, but incorrect when he said that it is almost impossible in Russia to live on income producing property. Stalin and his commissars, whom Eastman estimates at 200,000, control the state, the state controls the property, and they spend its income and live on it as they please. Meanwhile, according to studies based on official soviet statistics, the Russian wage scale is lower today in relation to prices than it was under the czars.

Just as Hitler was explicit in setting forth his intentions in "Mein Kampf" so Stalin, says Eastman, has been equally explicit in setting forth his in "Problems of Leninism." This book, which is required reading for young Communists, explains that the Communist regime in Russia is not "self-sufficient" but is a prelude to similar victories in all other countries.

Russia is still working for a world Communist revolution and any one who believes that this end has been abandoned merely because its directors in the Comintern have, in Eastman's phrase, "ostentatiously burned their letterheads" is deceived only because he wants to be deceived. He notes that Stalin once before pledged noninterference in American affairs—in 1933—and cites the record of the American Communist party, with its slavish following of the line of Russian foreign policy, as proof of the worthlessness of any such pledge.

Any attempt to smooth over the harsh aspects of the Russian system and to shush all criticism of Russia is not only asinine but unnecessary. Stalin made a treaty of friendship with Turkey at the very time that Kemal Ataturk, who was untrammeled by any restrictions of Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence, was killing off Turkish Communists by the hundreds. Mussolini liquidated the Italian Communist party, but that did not prevent Stalin from selling him oil for the Ethiopian adventure on the face of the attempted ban on such sales by the league of nations. Hitler preached a world counter-revolution against communism, but that did not prevent Stalin from collaborating with him uncomplainingly until Hitler himself terminated the bargain by attacking Russia.

There is, as Eastman notes, no committee for promotion of friendship with the United States in Russia, no attempt by the Russian leaders to praise the American form of government. Instead, the Russian book shops are still full of attacks on this nation as an outstanding sample of capitalism.

"If," says Eastman, "while Communists suppress by police terror and execution without trial every murmur in favor of democracy, we passively allow our schools, newspapers, radios, book and magazine publishing houses, cinema studios, offices of war information—any and every one of our centers of education, information, and publicity—to be permeated with the agents and apologists for communism, democracy will go down."

We do not have to adopt the methods of communism to combat the efforts of the Communists and their fellow travelers in this country. We have only to recognize and tell the truth about them and to recognize that while it may be necessary to do business with Russia, her ways are not our ways, that she has no intention of being a democracy and that she is bent on destroying democracy everywhere it exists in the world today.

PROGRESS IN SICILY.

Commentators here and abroad who have been trying to discern the pattern of our attack on Sicily seem now to be pretty well agreed on what it is. Gen. Eisenhower is believed to be striking up the eastern coast of the island with a view to preventing reënforcements and supplies from reaching Sicily from the mainland. Once that has been accomplished the allied army can turn to the task of overcoming resistance on the island in the certainty that our lines of communication will be secure and the enemy's will be broken. The northern ports of Sicily could be attacked and blockaded by sea and air patrols, and it is by no means impossible that at the appropriate moment landings might be made in this region to force the defenders to face two ways at once.

Events may prove this speculation as to Eisenhower's intentions to be in error but meanwhile it will serve as a working hypothesis. If the theory is correct, the enemy can be expected to organize his resistance somewhere on the narrow coastal plain under Mount Etna, probably to the north of Catania. He would have a short defensive position there, not unlike that enjoyed by the British 8th army at El Alamein.

There will be one great difference, however. The 8th army did not have to fear a landing in its rear. The defenders of Sicily lack control of the sea and their problem is therefore enormously more difficult.

It is too much to hope that Sicily will be surrendered without a serious struggle, but it is perhaps within reason to hope that the fight will not become a protracted slugging match. The fact that the defenders encountered in the first days of the campaign were overcome without too great difficulty is encouraging, but whether they were typical of the axis forces in Sicily remains, of course, to be seen.

WHERE WERE THE PSYCHIATRISTS?

Robert Vanatta set out to murder seven people in Mount Vernon, Ill., against whom he had real or fancied grudges. He was caught after his first murder. He had mistaken the girl he shot to death for his stepmother whom he intended to kill, but after he had discovered his mistake he shot her three times more and beat her over the head with his pistol.

Vanatta was released two months ago from the state training school for boys at Sheridan, Ill. Plainly he is a homicidal maniac. The people of Illinois want to know whether psychiatrists examined him before his release and how the social workers came to the conclusion that he was prepared to readjust himself to society.

Certainly there was nothing in his record to justify such conclusions. The record, in fact, should have warned that he was capable of just such atrocities as he committed. He was sent to the school near St. Charles three years ago, when he was 15 years old, as an incorrigible and a thief. A year ago he was transferred from St. Charles to the Sheridan branch of the institution, which was originally designed to handle the hardened cases among St. Charles inmates. Twice in recent weeks he was sent from Sheridan to live in foster homes. In each instance the foster parents asked the school authorities to take him back within two weeks. With such a record as this he was turned loose. An attempt was made to pick him up and return him to the institution, but he escaped the officer who had him in custody.

A record of this kind suggests that, in spite of their pretenses, the phychiatrists and social workers are unable to say, with anywhere near the certainty that should be required for public protection, whether a given inmate is a fit subject for parole or release. Nevertheless, they continue to make recommendations as if they know what they are talking about.

VERY EMBARRASSING!

[Detroit Free Press.]

It must have been embarrassing for Mayor Jeffries and Police Commissioner Witherspoon to sit in the reviewing stand and listen to Maj. Gen. Henry S. Aurand address the 6,000 United States troops under his command in quelling local race riots.

To the hour and the minute he gave the chronology of the army's movements, which is the army's way of flatly contradicting Mayor Jeffries' contention that it took the soldiers 12 hours to arrive after having been requested to come.

The general said that it was actually 9:25 p. m. on the Monday night of the riots that Gov. Kelly formally asked aid for the city. "Within five minutes," the general told the troops, the military police battalion, on the alert since 3:30 a. m., "was on the way to Fort Shelby."

And "within five minutes" the troops from Fort Custer were on their way. They had arrived from Battle Creek in the afternoon and were at Fort Wayne. "Just two hours and five minutes" after the request had been made by Kelly, order had been restored.

If the army records are correct, where do Messrs. Jeffries and Witherspoon get that charge of 12 hours' delay? Troops could not move into the picture until a request was made and then only by Presidential proclamation.

Blaming the army, which cannot defend itself, is hardly cricket. Gen. Aurand did not "answer" the charges. He merely praised his troops for their prompt and efficient action—and to do so, of course, he had to give the tell-tale time table. Very embarrassing!

After the attack of city hall jitters, it is reassuring that the army will remain here for another month.

Tho a larger war is on, it is only human to be fascinated by the burocrats' brawls. Even the great Babe Ruth couldn't hold the eye when a fight broke out in the stands.—Detroit News.

Vanity alone is not responsible for mirror gazers. There are occasions when we are curious to know whether we look as badly as we feel.—Illinois State Journal.

POSTSCRIPT TO INVASION.

The small city of Gela, also mapped as Terranova, on the south coast of Sicily, a focal point of the American share in the invasion, has a background of high antiquity. Its most interesting tradition, however, is as the burial place of the ancient Greek dramatist, Aeschylus, eldest of the trinity of Athenian tragic poets whose extant works form the core of classical drama.

The death of Aeschylus at Gela has been retold in a famous legend. He sat by the seashore in meditation, according to the habit of poets, and an eagle, flying high above him, saw his bald pate and thought it was a rock. Therefore, according to the habit of eagles, it dropped a tortoise upon that rock in order to break its shell, and so the thinker perished. Modern mechanical eagles are doing much the same kind of thing along the Sicilian coast.

The citizens of Gela gave Aeschylus a reverential burial and carved upon his tomb an epitaph which may have been according to his own wishes. It said:

"Beneath this stone lies Aeschylus, son of Euphorion, the Athenian, who perished in the wheat-bearing land of Gela; of his noble prowess the groves of Marathon can speak, or the long-haired Persian, who knows it well."

This referred to the poet's military service against the Persian invaders of Greece, in the battles of Marathon, Artemisium, Salamis, and Plataea. Note that there was no mention of his poetical works, which could speak for themselves.

Aeschylus went to the Greek cities of Sicily at least three times, much as a London dramatist might visit New York for professional purposes. His first journey was made at the invitation of Hieron I., dictator of Syracuse. The latter had founded a new city called Aetna on the site of the present Catania, and for the dedicatory ceremonies Aeschylus wrote a drama called "The Women of Aetna," which has not survived.

* * *

The tragedies of Aeschylus, Sophocles, and Euripides were often acted in the Greek cities of Sicily. Ruins of the theaters in which they were performed may be seen at Syracuse, Taormina, Catania, Tindaro, Palazzolo Acreide, and Alcamo.

LIFE'S LITTLE AGONIES.

The odd contretemps are both many and varied
Which may move a man to an impotent rage;
Which give him the look of a man who is harried,
Which in ten fleeting seconds add years to his age.
(To wit:)
To discover that rabbits have gnawed off his asters,
To find that a truck's played hop-scotch on his hat,
To find that the piano he moves has no casters,
To find that one tire has developed a flat.
(But!)
There's one situation to which others are
As joyous as flowers that blossom in May:
That's to find all the auto keys locked in the car,
With the duplicates ten miles away!

"New Order" in Hotel Management.

The hotel phone rang:

"Let me speak to the controler. This is S. Wesley Biggs, president of your bank."

"Sorry, sir, can't do it," replied the operator. "The controler did the night auditor's work last night and is still sleeping."

"Let me talk to the room clerk."

"Is the manager in?"

"No, Mr. Biggs, he has just gone over to see you. You know that writing machine he invented for pay-as-they-go checks for the help. Well, the robot that runs that machine dated the last 86 checks for 1944 and gave them to the help. The manager is on the way to ask you to pay them."

"Tell him that's all right. We're so short of help here at the bank that we won't get around to enter them until 1944. That isn't what I called up about. Will you reserve me a room for Saturday night?"

"Saturday, what year?" asked the operator. "Just a minute. The only room that is empty is the clean linen room, and the laundry won't be back for three weeks——"

"I'll take it, thanks."

I WILL LIFT MINE EYES.

These I have seen: how lengthening shadows lie
Enfolding all the darkening hills in peace;
While, swinging low across the mountain sky,
Stars spell, in silver hieroglyphs, the release
Of mountain dusk. The sheep are in the fold;
The birds have stilled their riotous sun-born songs
To drowsy chirps; the muted night sounds hold
More mystic music than to day belongs.
All day the brilliant sun may take his course
Across the hills—while there is work to do;
But when the quiet of the night holds sway,
Dreams come, star-borne thru the translucent blue—
Dreams poignant as the call of whippoorwills,
Dreams deathless as the everlasting hills.

Lake Level Weather Prophet.

According to Lake Michigan, late summer and fall this year should be dry. Next year and thru to 1946 there should be plenty of rain, after which a dry spell will start in 1947 and last thru 1948 and possibly 1949. The lake will rise to a high in 1952-'53. From 1949 to 1953 there should be plenty of rain.

Then watch out. A dry spell will set in for seven years, ending in a severe drouth. Those in the dust bowl had better be careful how they plow it up. Better let the cattle have it now and forever. We need beefsteaks. Captain John.

OBSCURE DIGESTIVE UPSETS MAY MEAN APPENDICITIS.

SOME of us can remember when physicians spent considerable time arguing the pros and cons of the question, "Should an ice bag or hot water bottle be used on the abdomen in the presence of appendicitis?" The answer, of course, is—neither. With inflammation ablaze, the only safe rule is to remove the organ.

Later came the query, "Is there such a thing as a chronic appendix?" We have all heard experts pish and tush, dismissing the matter with a wave of the hand. To them, it doesn't exist. But if we ask a Roentgen ray specialist about the subject, he is reasonably certain to agree that the condition is a reality.

The diagnosis, however, has fallen into bad repute because it is employed so often as a catchall or as a last resort when a real difficulty cannot be spotted. It stands to reason that changes may occur in the appendix slowly. In fact, sieges of mild irritation may come and go, no one of which is sufficiently acute to demand surgery.

How does the patient behave? As a rule, symptoms are vague altho abdominal uneasiness and discomfort will be stressed. The picture is not crystal clear, as it is in gall bladder disease or with trouble along the urinary tract. Nevertheless, there may be a reflex spasm at the outlet of the stomach with enough pain to suggest peptic ulcer. But all such lesions can be ruled out by means of X-rays.

There is no way to explain the stagnation of the bowel contents in the terminal part of the small intestine except on the basis of obstruction or an irritated appendix. Furthermore, the X-ray will show pockets wherein gas collects. These areas come about because of adhesions which have formed in the neighborhood of the lower end of the first section of the colon.

Under normal conditions, the structure should float around in the abdominal cavity, anchored only at its junction with the cecum [first portion of the ascending colon]. The cause may be laid at the doorstep or recurring attacks of low grade inflammation.

In this connection, we should recall that the vermiform appendix is attached to the lower end of the colon on the right side of the body. If a barium meal is administered, some of the material may enter this structure and remain there. This may be regarded as significant because it should empty within a reasonable time just like the balance of the bowel. If it presents a bead-like appearance on the film, we may assume that constrictions exist and are composed of nodules of firm, dried fecal matter.

Nothing can take the place of a careful physical examination and every one who exhibits tenderness in the lower abdomen at intervals is not a victim of appendicitis. But if the symptoms come and go and cannot be ascribed to gas, the appendix may be the guilty party. While this doesn't indicate that every grumpy feeling is due to a chronic state of the organ, nevertheless, a study of this region is in order whenever digestive symptoms are obscure.

SORE EARS.

M. L. writes: I can't sleep comfortably except on my side but my ears ache when I lie on them. What is responsible?

REPLY.

If the parts are swollen and tender to the touch, an infection should be eliminated. On the other hand, some irritation may be present in the canal or in the region of the drum. Try a light plug of absorbent cotton which may be removed on awaking.

POISON FROM FOODS.

E. J. writes: Can the nervous system be damaged by an unusually bad case of pyorrhea?

REPLY.

Yes, if said system is in a delicate balance. A minute dose of bacterial toxin can wreak havoc if resistance is low.

PATRIOTISM AND PROPAGANDA.

Story City, Ia., July 4.—Sunset, on a quiet Fourth of July day at home. And we carefully take Old Glory from its pole on the lawn, where it flies every fair day, and put it away in its accustomed place in the living room; and then we get into the family car and drive to town to listen to the open air services in the park. On our way in, as we turn the corner something strikes my eye that always makes me wonder and protest—this time audibly. There, on a flagrant, ugly billboard is a reproduction of the flag we love, advertising our government, and the poster is all tattered and torn by the weather.

There should be a law against using the flag that way. I don't see any sense in advertising the government to the people of this country, anyway. Looks like a terrible waste of money [$8,000,000 to propagandize the people by their government "before the war," according to Sen. Byrd]. Patriotism that has to be propagandized is pretty thin stuff. It looks as silly as to advertise: "Men, you must love your homes"; or "Children, cherish your fathers and mothers," or even "Mothers, remember your sons in the service." [Gosh! Tell it to the marines.] Morale builders that go at it that way are trying to throw the bull by the tail, to say nothing of demonstrating their utter ignorance of human nature and of American patriotism.

We love our flag and land. Haven't they found that out yet, that they must paste the precious colors on perishable paper on flaunting bill boards at every crossroads to "remind" us! With the three service stars in our window, and the service stars shining from windows all over the land, there is something strange about advertising our country to our country. MRS. GUY HEERS.

BABY'S PANTS.

Chicago, July 9.—Why, O why, did they stop making baby's rubber pants? The so-called waterproof pants they sell now, for more than twice as much as the old style rubber pants, do not serve their purpose. We are asked to conserve clothing, etc., but when one realizes just how much damage results from baby "accidents," one wonders if the ban on rubber pants is practical.

Considering the rubber that is still used for bicycles and cars, used in nonessential ways for pleasure driving, why can't rubber be allowed for baby pants, which would save considerable damage to clothing and which are so practical? MRS. H.

"BOOTLICKING HACKS."

Chicago, July 9.—"F. E." complains of Hollywood's smelly, flag waving pictures. Let F. E. be reminded that motion pictures, like radio, prosper or go broke by the will of Washington's burocrats. The smart guy coöperates when a gun is leveled at his head.

But the thing that pulls my cork is to pay 28 cents to a news-reel theater, get 3 cents worth of news and 25 cents in OWI hog wash. If I allowed myself to recall that every third day I work the income goes to support that horde of boot licking hacks, the ushers would carry me out of the theater, frothing at the mouth. H. E. P.

HEROES AT HOME.

Chicago, July 10.—In this war torn world when we think of heroism, we naturally think of our boys at the front. It takes a catastrophe such as yesterday's fire to make us realize we have heroes and heroism also on our home front. MRS. SYLVIA SAUERMAN.

PLASTICS.

Evanston, Ill., July 7.—In reply to an article in THE TRIBUNE on July 6 quoting a speech by Mr. Charles Breshin on "Plastics," I do not agree that plastics need "debunking" or "deglamorizing." People do not have too much faith in them.

What plastics need is more people with an intelligent understanding of their engineering properties and problems. The research chemists are doing a splendid job in developing new synthetic resins. If the molders who fabricate these resins will do as good a job in employing the proper techniques for the different types of plastic materials, then we will begin to get somewhere.

Of course each plastic material has its limitations, but so do metals. When you stop to consider the comparative light weight of plastics, their imperviousness to general chemical and atmospheric attack, the high dielectric strength of polystyrene, their attractive and decorative appearance, to say nothing of plastic noiseless gears and bearings, clutch rings, corrosion resisting parts for water and oil pumps, distributor caps, etc., I think Mr. Breshin is way off the beam when he says, "About the only products plastics may replace would be tin as a protective coating." It's true that such resins as the alkyds, the ureas, the phenalics, and the acrylics all make good coatings, but these synthetics have much bigger and better uses. ARNOLD JOHNSON.

THE CATTLEMEN WILL SURVIVE.

Milledegville, Ill., July 7.—The cattle business is the oldest business in the history of mankind. It was old when Abraham pastured his flocks and herds on the banks of the Euphrates and when old Hammurabi wrote Roosevelt's New Deal laws on brick tablets about 1900 B. C.

Our western cattle business furnished the freight that caused the building of the western railways and the packers paid the producers the cash that enabled farmers and ranchers to buy the products of eastern industries.

During the Cleveland panic of 1893 Hereford heifers were $1.90. The same quality today would bring $15.90.

The beef and dairy cattle business will survive despite socialism, populism, communism, New Dealism.

The life of cattlemen is hard and they will not be intimidated. They will make good on any threat they make. George Norris, Nebraska; Herring, Iowa; Lee, Oklahoma; Brown, Michigan; Schwartz, Wyoming, are a prologue to the political casualties coming. JOHN DOUGLAS.

THE 17 YEAR OLDS WANT TO DANCE.

Chicago, July 5.—We are writing in regard to the service men's center on 83d street on South Chicago avenue. There are quite a few girls, including ourselves, who are just under 18 years old, who live near the center, and would like to attend a few of the dances they are having there now.

If we girls under 18 are capable of working in war plants why can't we attend the dances? They trust us with the materials that go overseas to our fighting men. Can't they trust us with the fighting men? THREE DISCOURAGED GIRLS.

BREEDERS OF HATRED.

Chicago, July 7.—The various accounts and proposals against race riots are very sanguine, but seem more concerned with palliating the effects than curing the real cause. Any fundamental corrective for race riots and the like must also concern the gross misgivings in Americanism emanating from the heads of our government and from the heads of our institutions we've reared for the purpose of indoctrinating ourselves and our posterity with constitutional, American ideals.

The burocratic propagation of a rival class system in America is as pernicious as southern race prejudice and should get its fair share of blame for provoking such abominably un-American behavior as race riots and for breeding contempt in the ranks of labor and capital. These foreign social viruses eating at the very vitals of Americanism are akin to all the other perverse influences at work in the essential institutions of our country. E. B. KNOX.

CONGRATULATES CIVILIANS.

SOMEWHERE IN AFRICA, June 28.—As it's better late than never, may I offer you people behind us soldiers congratulations on the victorious African campaign. This is from one who appreciates the effort put forth by you in the United States. Without your initiative, hard work, giving up luxuries, going on an all out basis for victory this campaign would still have to be fought. You, as as well as we soldiers, won it. Without you folks, the soldiers would be without arms. We will keep on working shoulder to shoulder, side by side, until there is peace and contentment on this earth. It's a fact that I haven't done enough, but this soldier is trying and on his way to do much better.

St. Louis, Mo., July 10.—Since Dec. 7, 1941, we have heard nothing of the "steps short of war" so much in evidence in Washington clip sheets in the good old days. Can it be that Jones and Wallace have been giving us a demonstration? CURIOUS.

SMOKE NUISANCE.

Chicago, July 10.—[Friend of the People]—I own a hotel on the ground floor of which there is a restaurant that operates a coal range 24 hours a day. A family size chimney carries the smoke. Smoke and heat come thru the baseboards in some of my rooms and tenants move out because of this. Who could help me out? A.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers on page 16.

1. When copper corrodes, it turns to which of these colors?
   Orange Brown Gray Green
2. Which one of these American cities permits no steam engines to enter its limits? New York Miami New Orleans Cincinnati
3. If the key of a musical piece is C, which one of the following is sol?
   A C E G
4. The piece on a ratchet wheel that falls into the notches to prevent reverse motion is called a Clutch Capstan Pawl Worm
5. The time interval between bells on a ship, is which of these?
   5 minutes 15 minutes 30 minutes 60 minutes
6. Since newspapers are the chief instruments of adult education and the "family textbook," read by 100,000,000 Americans every day, you deserve one point for each correct matching of city with newspaper as outlined below.

[a] Boston	[v] World
[b] Detroit	[w] News Leader
[c] Cincinnati	[x] Globe
[d] Tulsa	[y] Free Press

"The Spanish Lady"

By Maurice Walsh

Copyright: 1943: by Maurice Walsh

SYNOPSIS: Diego Usted, whose father was Spanish and whose mother Scotch, comes from his Commando duties to the Scotch Highlands thinking he has but a few months to live. But instead of failing, his health improves under the care of his mother's kin, his Uncle Hamish and Aunt Ellen McLeod. Hamish is head forester for Gen. Harper in Glen Affran. Harper, rich and old, is hated as much as Ann, his young Spanish wife, is loved. Harper's brother, Maj. Arthur, and his two children, Charles and Henrietta, live with the general and Ann at Lodge Affran. Ellen has mothered Charles and Henrietta, and it is understood that Ellen's son, Larry, will some day marry Henrietta. Diego and Ann fall in love, but Ann tells him she will never be faithless to her husband. Diego decides it is best for him to leave the glen. He reports for a physical checkup, hoping to return to his Commando duties. He passes the test and, before leaving for duty, comes to the glen for a farewell. While Diego has been away, Ewan McInnes, solicitor for the Harper estate, has been sent for by the general, who wants to change the inheritance law about the estate so that he can sell and clear out of the glen forever, as he has political ambitions. But neither his brother nor his nephew will sign the entail-breaking papers and the general orders Maj. Arthur and his two children out of his home. When Ann takes up for them, the general accuses her of having many lovers. She fights him, and he threatens to change his will. Diego, anxious to see Ann again, begs her over the phone to meet him.

INSTALMENT XXI.

A DATE.

"You are being dominant, Don Diego. O, the temper! and the sun shining." Ann chuckled into the phone. "I am happy that you have a small sourness in the morning. My father had—"

"I have not."

"Ah but—! very well, my friend! I yield a little. It will be at that place where we had our first fine talk. You will remember?"

"Senora, you and my aunt have talked so much and in so many places, how could I remember?"

"That is how men speak in the house before breakfast. You remember very well?"

"Skene's rock?"

"The Rock of Skene—that is the place. The sun of evening and the world all round us. It will be seven of the clock."

"Seven, yes."

"Till then be with God—and thereafter. Please be not dominant, Diego. I am very frightened.

The phone clicked in his ear before he could say another word. He went back to the living room and glared defiantly at his aunt.

"Well—well—well!" was all she said.

Uncle Hamish got to his feet, his chair protesting.

"Don't let her draw you, Jamie," he warned. "Where's that dom dutch hoe!" He made for the door and Diego followed at his heels.

Uncle Hamish plied his hoe with a savagery that showed he had a depth of temper. Diego worked slowly and meticulously, but after half an hour he found he could not work any longer. He dropped his hoe across a row of white turnip and strolled away toward the shore of the loch. His uncle called after him.

"You might be back for lunch, Jamie? 'Tis Friday, and only taties and trooties." That was his way of telling Diego to take to the healing hills and be in no hurry back.

Diego crossed Affran water by the pony bridge, went over the shoulder of the hill, and crossed the peat bog where the bothy's winter firing stood in small stacks along the top of the cut bank.

He struck into the glen of the willows and followed it to the sanctuary under Scurr Affran. There he saw many hind with their speckled fawn trotting under their stomachs and one solitary old stag already carrying a fine stand of antlers under a sheath of brown velvet. In time he came to the pine grove, and turned the corner looking down on Donald Gunn's bothy.

In one of the wired in meadows below the house and above the lochan three men were hay making. They were the tallest men in the glen. Long John McKenzie was 6½ feet. Donald Gunn and Piobar Maol Tam were well over 6 feet, both lean men, but whereas Donald Gunn had plenty of steel gray hair the piper had none at all. That baldness had earned him one of his by-names, for maol means bald.

They came around Diego, shook his hand and hoped he had good news for them; and having got it they were pleased that he was again sound, and sorry that he was leaving them.

"We expected Hamish across," said Donald. "Are you deputizing for him, Don Diego?"

"Uncle has something on hand," he said, "and I am to try haymaking."

"Ay faith!" said Long John. "You've tried everything that's going, and held it down neat and handy."

"There's the other thing he hasn't tried yet," said the piper winking, "but we can wait for that till the bit barley is cut."

For the next two hours Diego put his back into haymaking. The sun of two days had dried the hay nicely, but it had retained some of its green color, and the perfume of it was sweet in the nostrils. He felt the warmth of the sun on the back of his neck and on his bared arms, and soon the sweat was running into his black brows. And with the coming of the sweat there came to him an ease of mind.

After two hours Donald left them and went up to the house, and in a short time after that came to the door and gave them the Highland hail to the midday meal. And Diego found that he was hungry.

"Not much of a dinner, being Friday," Donald made excuses to Diego. "We'll have a drapple first."

Diego could now hold his own as a trenoherman with any one in the glen, and that meal was entirely to his satisfaction. Loch trout pink fleshed, new potatoes, and freshly pulled peas; there was nothing inadequate about that meal.

It was immediately after dinner that the phone rang. Uncle Hamish was on the phone, and Donald took the message.

"Yes, Hamish. . . . Just after his dinner. . . . Yes. . . . I'm listening Uh-uh! . . . Do you tell me that . . . we'll just have to. . . . right round and over the shoulder. . . . I have it. . . . the two. . . . uh-uh! . . . he can do it . . . Just this minute"

Donald turned round on his men.

"Hamish. He has a job for me up Glen Seilig way. He wants you two at Loch Beg just as soon as you can get there. There's no hurry on you, Don Diego, but these two young lads will have to move their shanks at the trot." He looked intently at his two friends. "Come on, heroes!"

The two swallowed cups of hot tea, drew on their jackets, and followed Donald out of doors. From outside came their lowered and earnest voices. Then Donald came back and nodded at Diego. "I'm for the road, Don Diego, but I'll be obliged if you gather up the forks and rakes and put them in the shed." He moved to the fire and began to smoor it. "I might be gone awhile," he exclaimed. "It is not good-by yet, my friend. I'll see you some time tonight. So long then!" He set off longstrided toward the gap at the end of the strath, and Diego watched him go. He had slung his stalker's telescope over a shoulder, and carried a crook under an arm.

Diego went down to the meadow and looked about him. There was still enough hay lying flat to make about two rows of cocks, and he wondered if rain would come in the night. He had plenty of time, and thought he would put a half row of cocks at any rate.

He stripped to the work, and in one fine sweating hour finished the meadow—two rows and one cock over. After cooling off he had a plunge in the lochan, but, even in July found it too cold for pleasure. After that he stored his implements in the shed, talked to the dogs, put a finger thru the mesh to feel a cold nose and a warm tongue, and turned his face toward the glen of the willows.

He actually had one foot on the pony bridge across Affran water when he suddenly decided that he would not cross over and face his aunt before setting out for the rock. He did not want her indirect probing wisdom to find out the jumble of thoughts in his mind.

But as he came to that point across the water facing the end of the house where another few strides would take him out of sight from door or window his aunt came out on the step and looked across at him. Behind her came the figure of a young woman. That would be Henrietta in her cream and blue, probably come down to say bood-by. He lifted an arm and saluted, and in three strides he was out of sight.

He had ample time to get to the rendezvous before 7, and he moved leisurely along above Affran loch. The track lifted up and dipped down and turned this way and that among the columned pines. The sun, tending west, was coming down into the pass at the far end of the loch.

There in the quietness of the pine wood, his mind finally cleared. He knew then how much of power was in himself and what he could do with it. On this, his last evening before leaving the glen, her defenses would be down, and she would come to his arms if he reached them to her. He could feel her long body yielding to his, taste the kisses of her mouth grown soft. He could see her ruling in his house of San Jose? No, by God! he could not. Not in the house of San Jose where her clean dreams were, and if not there, then nowhere else.

THUNDERSTORM BRINGS RESPITE FROM 95° HEAT

A sudden thunderstorm struck the north and northwest sides and the loop yesterday afternoon, temporarily breaking a near-record heat wave. At the United States courthouse the temperature dropped from 93 to 81 degrees between 1:30 and 3 p. m. and .27 of an inch of rain fell.

Edward Baker, 10 years old, 1024 Wheaton place, Wheaton, was electrocuted yesterday when a high tension wire broken by a tree branch fell on him as he was running along Prairie avenue near his home during an electrical storm. He was hurrying home from a park swimming pool when the wire fell. The youngster was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Doyle D. Baker.

At the airport yesterday's temperature climbed to 95. The record for the day is 97.1, set in 1931. Forecaster G. L. Canaday said that brief thundershowers ca nbe expected this morning, with much cooler weather this afternoon and tonight. Yesterday was the month's fourth day with tempratures over 90.

WHEAT HARVEST THREATENED BY OWNERSHIP SUIT

South Bend, Ind., July 13 [Special].—Harvesting delays caused by an ownership suit today threatened 700 bushels of wheat with spoilage in a 28 acre field near New Carlisle. The case comes before Circuit Judge Dan Pyle tomorrow.

Leon Milcherska, who says that he entered into an oral agreement May 1, 1942, with Milton and Florence Fournier to plant the wheat and harvest half of it, charges that when he laid off work in Buchanan, Mich., to get his share, Mrs. Fournier stood in front of his tractor and defied him to enter the field, while her husband threatened to shoot him.

Stepin Fetchit Granted Jury Trial; Case Up Today

Stepin Fetchit, Negro comedian, appeared in Domestic Relations court yesterday in a real life drama in which he was charged with contributing to the delinquency of a 16 year old Negro girl and was granted a jury trial, which was set for today. The girl was found, wearing his pajamas, in his south side hotel bathroom.

HINT OF TRANSIT MERGER REVIVAL GIVEN BY JUDGE

Inquires if Rejected Plan Can Be Modified.

Hope for revival of the transportation unification plan recently rejected by the Illinois commerce commission was indicated yesterday by Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe.

In a memorandum to his five man traction committee, the judge intimated that a new plan may be drawn up to meet the objections raised by the commerce commission. He directed that a report on this possibility be submitted to him by Sept. 20.

He also ordered immediate filing of notice of an appeal from the state commission's rejection last month of a plea for a rehearing on the early plan. He made it clear that this step was suggested merely to preserve the record, saying that the final decision on whether an appeal will be taken depends on the opinion of attorneys on the likelihood of accomplishing "satisfactory results."

But apart from the appeal move, efforts should be made at once to end the surface lines receivership and to complete reorganization of the elevated lines, Judge Igoe said in his memorandum. The commerce commission proposed separate reorganization of the surface lines as a step toward unification, and suggested that all the benefits of the proposed plan could be ordered by the commission without corporate unification.

The judge urged that "those suggestions should be carefully considered."

"Proposals for a revision . . . in accordance with those suggestions should be specific," the memorandum said. "The provision relating to sale, lease or other operating arrangements should be such as would make it legally certain that such separate reorganization is in reality a step toward unification and not merely a change in the corporate setup of the surface lines.

"Good faith requires that in amending the plan the commitments given this court when applications were being made for government aid for a subway shall not be overlooked."

A hint that the court may exercise a firmer hand if other efforts fail was contained in the memorandum's reminder that "if reorganization cannot be effected in the equity suits, the court is required to rule on the motions pending in the bankruptcy proceedings."

The surface lines have been in receivership since 1927. The elevated lines have been in bankruptcy since 1932. Both cases are pending before Judge Igoe.

Dallas, Tex., July 13 (AP).—Two persons, killed in the crash of a plane near Bremond, Tex., were identified by the navy today as 1st Lt. Carl Leo Tolman, 24 years old, marine, of Stoneham, Mass., and 2d Lt. Kathryn E. Marquis, 33, of Phenix City, Ala., an officer in the marine corps women's reserve. The crash occurred yesterday as Lt. Marquis was being flown to Houston to work in the recruiting office there.

Seven Die in Bomber Crash.

Tampa, Fla., July 13 (AP).—Three officers and four enlisted men from MacDill field were killed yesterday in the crash of a bombing plane six miles southeast of Baton Rouge.

The MacDill public relations office listed the dead as Capt. Shelton H. Pierce, pilot, Jacksonville, Fla.; Second Lt. William M. Lester, co-pilot, Safford, Ala.; Second Lt. Joseph E. Murphy, bombardier, Waterloo, Iowa; Master Sgt. E. B. Johnson, Greencastle, Ind.; Sgt. A. M. Foley, Middle Village, N. Y., Sgt. William C. Williams, Beaver Meadows, Pa., and Corp. Paul W. Banks, Centerville, Tenn.

7 Dead Identified.

Seattle, Wash., July 13 (AP).—Headquarters of the 13th naval district today announced the names of seven passengers who were killed July 2 in the crash of a naval transport plane at Dutch Harbor, Alaska. Among them were Lt. George Coolsy Willcox, Saginaw, Mich, and Lt. Merrill Hearst Johnston, Pittsfield, Ill.

Plane Falls at E. Chicago; Pilot Parachutes to Safety

Lt. George C. Snyder, 8 East Walton street, parachuted from an army pursuit plane when the engine failed yesterday. The ship crashed and burned on the grounds of the Cities Service Oil company refinery in East Chicago, missing the refinery stills by 150 feet. Lt. Snyder suffered a leg injury and was taken to St. Catherine's hospital in East Chicago. The airplane was one of three fighter planes being flown from Detroit to Chicago. The two others landed safely.

Make Yourself A $2,000,000 HIGHBALL

Know how to make a correct highball? Lots of people don't, so we're giving you the recipe below! We call it a $2,000,000 "dream of a drink"—because that's what Fleischmann invested in grains, skill and research before we released one golden bottle of this rich, luxurious, straight bourbon whiskey. We make it in limited amounts. We have to—it's so good!

FIRST, GET FLEISCHMANN'S BOND THEN DO THIS!

1 Place the ice cubes in an empty 6 or 8-oz. glass. Connoisseurs say the ice must go in first!

2 Then, add 1½ ounces of delicious Fleischmann's Bond. A good highball needs Fleischmann's smooth creaminess!

3 Fill with club soda or ginger ale. For a perfectly mixed drink, place ingredients in glass in the order given!

Mrs. Abby Rockefeller Milton and her husband, David.

Starts Residence

Reno, Nev., July 13 [Special].—Mrs. Abby Rockefeller Milton, heiress to a share of the Rockefeller fortune, arrived in Reno today. Asked if she planned to divorce David M. Milton, a lawyer, she replied, "Well, I'm here. I guess that's all I can say."

Her attorney, George B. Thatcher, issued this statement: "Mrs. Abby R. Milton has taken up her residence in Nevada. She will reside at Crystal Bay on Lake Tahoe."

Persons seeking Nevada divorces must maintain residence in the state for six weeks.

500 AIR CADETS WILL BE W-G-N'S GUESTS TONIGHT

Five hundred cadets of the army air corps will be special guests at the broadcast of the Northerners in W-G-N's main studio tonight. The Northerners are heard from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Songs that are favorites with aviation men will be featured. "The Army Air Corps" song will be sung by the male octet. Thereupon Maj. Lauris M. Eek will present lapel buttons, which are the insignia of the air force reserve corps, to two representative men who have just been sworn in. They are Richard N. and Norbert S. Modjewski, twins, 5713 South Washtenaw avenue. Lois Wallner is to be the soloist.

Joel Kupperman, 7 year old Quiz Kid, has been engaged to make a movie. Joel and his mother, and Eliza Hickok of the Quiz Kids management will leave for Hollywood in August.

BUY MORE WAR BONDS TODAY!—2nd War Loan

Here's a BOOK that may NEVER be WRITTEN

It would have to be a big book—and it would be as exciting as a "best seller." There would be action on every page—with plenty of suspense that makes a good story.

It would begin before the war, when, in spite of the depression, the railroads spent money to improve their service to peacetime America—buying new, more powerful locomotives—building new, more efficient rolling stock—laying new and heavier track—meeting spirited competition with traditional American enterprise.

It would tell how every dollar spent for those improvements was a priceless advantage to this country, when suddenly America found itself plunged into world conflict. There would be chapters telling how the greatest transportation system in the world buckled down to its war job of moving armies and equipment fast and far, while continuing to handle essential civilian travel. And the way shippers have cooperated, and people generally have adjusted themselves to the inconveniences of war-time transportation—that would be a thrilling story in itself.

Yes, the book may never be written. But we predict that the achievements it would cover will live in the grateful heart of America long after the Axis tyrants have crumbled into forgotten dust.

Betrothal of Zo de La Chapelle Is Told at Party

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE high point of Ensign Richard Bennett Lord's brief visit on the north shore en route from San Diego to Washington, D. C., was the cocktail party which Mr. and Mrs. Jacques de La Chapelle gave from 5 to 7 p. m. yesterday in their Kenilworth home to announce the engagement of their daughter, Zo, to the young naval officer. Ensign Lord, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Swift Lord of Evanston, arrived on Monday from the west coast, where he has been attending a navy torpedo school, and will leave today for his new post.

Yesterday's announcement came as a surprise to guests at the party, as the invitations had been extended in the name of Miss de La Chapelle's brother, Charles, a naval aviation cadet at Glenview. Missing from the party was their sister, Renée, who is vacationing at the V-Lazy-S ranch at Storey, Wyo.

Miss de La Chapelle attended Rosemont college and was graduated from Manhattanville college in New York City. She is an active member of the Junior League of Evanston and at present is serving as a nurses' aid at the Evanston hospital.

Ensign Lord received his degree from the University of Michigan school of engineering. His three brothers also are in the service, Ensign William S. Lord Jr. with the coast guard in San Francisco; Lt. John B. Lord with the army overseas, and Pvt. Donald Lord at an army training school in South Dakota.

Dering-Bowes Wedding Will Take Place Today.

Since Monday, when Ensign Philip R. Dering arrived from Corpus Christi, Tex., Mr. and Mrs. Jerome P. Bowes Jr. hastily have been telephoning invitations to the wedding of Mr. Bowes' eldest daughter, Nancy-Leigh, and Ensign Dering. The small ceremony will take place at 4:30 p. m. today in Trinity Episcopal church, Highland Park, with the Rev. Christoph Keller officiating. A reception will follow in the Bowes home in Highland Park.

Miss Bowes, whose mother was the late Katherine Channon Bowes, will have her sister, Barbara, as maid of honor. Mrs. Bowes will serve as matron of honor, and the bride's little sister, Courtney, is to be flower girl. Ensign Dering, son of Mrs. Chrystal M. Knutson of East Chest-

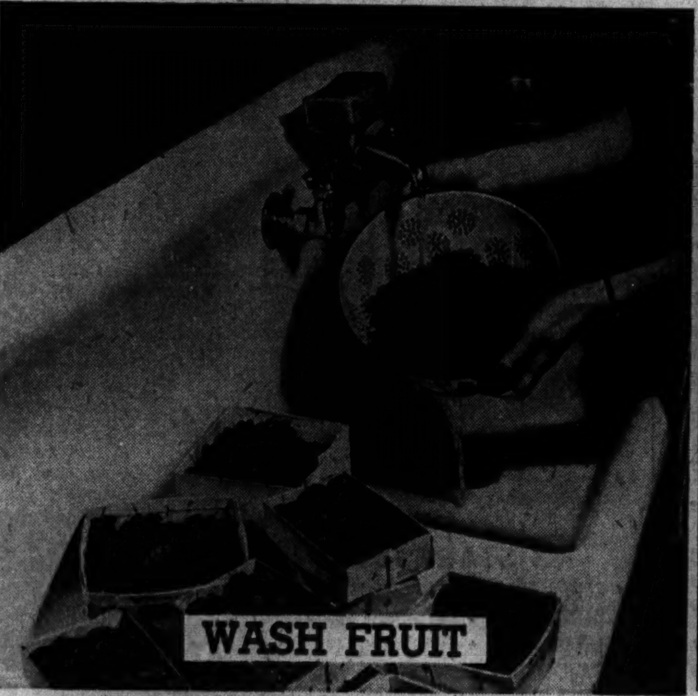
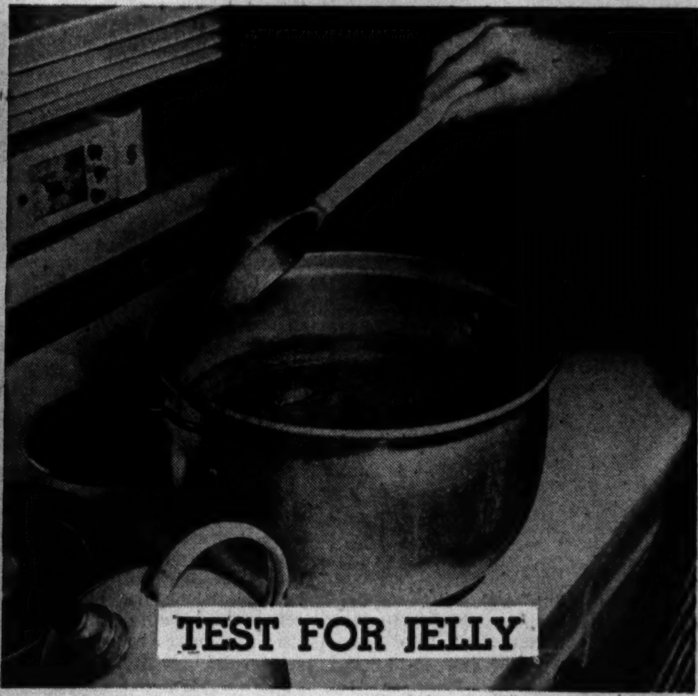
Mary Meade Gives Picture Directions for Making Currant and Raspberry Jelly



1. Three quarts of currants and 3 quarts red raspberries are about to be made into a dozen glasses of bright red jelly. First wash fruit and pick it over. Leave stems on currants.

2. Combine fruits, mash in a kettle, and cook a few minutes, until soft and juicy. Strain over night in a jelly bag like this one, made from an old sheet. Don't squeeze the bag.



3. Combine drained juice with ¾ cup sugar for each cup of juice, bring to boil, and boil in large kettle (for rapid evaporation) until slow, thick drops run together from end of spoon.

[Tribune Studio photos.]

(Prepared by Mary Meade.)

Alpha Chi Omega's National Gathering to Open Tomorrow

The national meeting of Alpha Chi Omega, focusing this year on business rather than the social angle, will open tomorrow and continue thru Saturday at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Mrs. Carl Winsor of Wichita, Kas., national president of the sorority, has been here for a week, assisting Mrs. Ernest Eklund of Glencoe, arrangements chairman, in preparing for the sessions, luncheons and dinners, a reception for the surviving founders, and the final banquet, which will be attended by many members in the Chicago area.

A post-convention tea will be given by Alpha Alpha alumnae chapter, in compliment to the founders and officers, at 3:30 p. m. Sunday in the chapter house on the Evanston campus of Northwestern university. Mrs. Porter Heaps of Evanston, president of the Alpha Alpha alumnae, will attend the meeting as the delegate of Chicago and north shore alumnae. Miss Marion Walsh will represent the Northwestern student members.

Museum Here Gets Table Lincoln Used in Banning Slavery

The plain, square table on which President Abraham Lincoln drafted his emancipation proclamation has been added to the Lincoln collection at the Chicago Historical society's museum. It was placed on exhibit yesterday. The table is a gift from Miss Ellen LaMotte of Washington, D. C. It has become a part of the society's extensive Lincoln collection, which includes the clothes in which President Lincoln was assassinated, the bed on which he died, furniture from his Springfield, Ill., home, and a number of Lincoln manuscripts.

Museum Turns Back Pages to Street of 1910

A city street of the era of cobble stones, gas lights, and high waisted, brass trimmed automobiles, faithfully and painstakingly reproduced in the transportation section of the Museum of Science and Industry in Jackson park, will be opened to the public on Saturday under the title of "Yesterday's Main Street," Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, president of the museum, announced yesterday.

A saunter up and down the herringbone brick sidewalks of the street revealed shop windows full of such 1910 treasures as men's high button shoes and brown Derbies, and women's high necked shirtwaists and daring, ankle revealing skirts. There is a one-arm restaurant, a dairy, a "nickel show," and a livery stable.

A railroad box car of the 1910 period blocks the street off at the end. An early type electric power plant and a horse-man-dog water trough add to the antique atmosphere. So do the brave moustached dandies and the demure, lace bedecked ladies who parade the street.

Standing along the curb are the automobiles in which the hardier of the citizens used to risk their lives and their dignity. There is a little Haynes-Apperson runabout with tiller instead of steering wheel, a dignified Rambler touring car, an aristocratic Baker electric, and a 16 horse power Gleason with carriage wheels and hard rubber tires.

Everything is as authentic as scholarship and a willingness to go to infinite trouble can make it, Maj. Lohr said. The street and sidewalks are paved with real cobble stones and bricks; the buildings are made of brick and wood.

In the present exhibit the calendar is set at 1910. However, there will be changes from time to time and more recent automobiles will be displayed. The cars have been lent by D. Cameron Peck, the museum's curator of transportation and the possessor of an extraordinary collection of old time automobiles.

Educators Are Told Nation Should Adjust Its Reading to War

The young people who are reading "Treasure Island" and "Robinson Crusoe" should be reading "Native Son," Tolstoy's "War and Peace," and books on labor and management, Dr. John J. De Boer, director of student teaching at Chicago Teachers' college, said yesterday at the University of Chicago. He spoke at the second day's session of a five day conference on reading which has attracted 400 teachers and administrators of colleges, high schools, and elementary schools who are interested in the adjustment of reading programs to war time needs.

"In trying to educate America for war," Dr. De Boer said, "there has been a concentration on the technical aspects of building a motor rather than on the fundamentals of building a democracy."

Another speaker was William S. Gray, professor of education at the University of Chicago. He estimated that 50 per cent of the people in the nation do not remember what they read because they do not understand what they read.

Field Museum to Present Solomon Islands Lecture

The Solomon Islands, again figuring importantly in military operations in the Pacific, will be the subject of the third lecture in the "Backgrounds of the War" series at the Field museum. Speaking at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in the lecture hall, Mrs. Roberta Cramer will illustrate her talk with pictures of the island group. Thursday is a free admission day at the museum.

Deaf Conduct Convention in Sign Language

The chatter and buzz of small talk, so dear to the hearts of most convention goers, was conspicuous by its absence as delegates to the National Fraternal Society of the Deaf convened for opening session last night in the Hotel Sherman.

Not so much as a whisper disturbed the speaker, Arthur L. Roberts of Oak Park, grand president, as he welcomed members from 38 states and Canada to the quadrennial convention. Mr. Roberts "spoke" in sign language, and a discussion period by officers and delegates was conducted in silence, to the complete understanding of all.

The vibration of percussion instruments, rather than the rhythm of the orchestral lyrics, guided the movements of 800 delegates and friends at a dance following the business session. Members of the orchestra sat in chairs in the middle of the ballroom floor, the better to convey the rhythmic meter of the music.

The fraternal society, which is the only insurance organization of its kind operated entirely for deaf men, was founded by a group of deaf persons in Chicago in 1901 and is managed entirely by persons without hearing. Nine thousand members belong to more than a hundred lodges in the United States and Canada.

Writers, ministers, artists, chemists, teachers, and war workers are represented in the society, and since Pearl Harbor practically all the members have been employed. Approximately half of them were born deaf, while the remainder lost their hearing thru illness or accident.

Business sessions are scheduled for 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. today in the Crystal room at the Sherman. A banquet for delegates and guests will be held at 8 p. m. A floor show will feature a pantomime acrobat, a magician, and a comedy dance team, instead of the singers and musicians heard at most conventions.

Election of officers is scheduled for 2 p. m. tomorrow at the closing session. Present officers, besides President Roberts, include F. J. Neesam, Delavan, Wis.; T. T. Shilton, Toronto, Canada; S. B. Rittenberg, Birmingham, Ala., and F. D. Gilbert, Los Angeles, Cal., vice presidents.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1943: By Ely Culbertson.]

Ask most players what they know about holdup plays and they will answer [with admirable but slightly misplaced confidence] that these are rather elementary maneuvers designed to cut communications between partnership hands. If they are asked for a demonstration, they set up a simple hand and show how the holdup of an ace exhausts one defender of the suit in question so that he cannot later return it to his partner.

It is highly unfortunate that the bridge public should hold this class of plays in so little regard. Actually, there is much more here than meets the eye. An incalculable number of contracts are either lost or conceded, as the case may be, because a certain player does not appreciate the full significance of a holdup. For example:

Neither side vulnerable.

NORTH
♥ A 7 5
♦ K Q 10 9 6

WEST
♠ Q 8 6 5 3
♥ J 9

EAST
♥ 10 8 6 4 3
♦ A J 4 2
♣ A 3

SOUTH
♥ K Q 2
♣ Q J 7 5 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	1 diamond	Pass
1 no trump	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened his fourth highest spade. Declarer won with the jack and promptly led a diamond toward dummy. When West followed with a low card declarer correctly played dummy's nine. East's play, however, was not nearly so correct: he won with the jack. Now on the spade return declarer won and led his remaining diamond. East took his ace and shifted to the club suit, but to no avail. The best the defenders could do was collect two club tricks and the two diamonds they already had home.

East's acceptance of the first diamond trick was completely typical of what is to be found at almost every bridge table and yet it was a serious and demonstrable error. Observe the vast difference if East refuses to capture the diamond nine; if he coolly concedes that trick to the enemy. Now declarer will make either one more or no more diamond tricks! If he returns to his own hand and leads his remaining diamond to the ten spot [a persuasive play] East wins with the jack and dummy's diamond suit is henceforth completely isolated; declarer will win no more diamond tricks. The best he can do after winning with the nine spot is to lay down the diamond king. East wins with the ace and eventually declarer can cash the diamond queen, but that is his limit.

Thus, when East employs the proper holdup play, declarer wins either one or two diamonds, instead of the three diamonds he actually wins thru East's early acceptance of the jack.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Cal., June 13.—David Rose, Paramount producer from London, tells me his next picture to be made over there will be based on the heroic descendants of Greece, titled, "Signed with Their Honor." Rose has asked Katina Paxinou to come over and play the leading role. Wait till you see Katina in "For Whom the Bell Tolls." . . . Bonita

Granville remains blonde for Mickey Rooney's sweetheart in "Andy Hardy's Blonde Trouble." The Wilde twins, Lee and Lyn, take second and third place in same picture. . . . Gosh! I knew "Junior Miss" was good, but I sure didn't think Warners would offer $450,000 to put it on celluloid. . . . Walt Disney in 18 months has delivered 105,000 feet of completed training film for the government. And if that isn't helping toward the war, I don't know what is.

He'll Be Set.

Lt. Comdr. John Ford has kept the names of all talented men—and they are legion—he's met since he's been in service, with the hope that when he returns to pictures he'll be able to have them come to work for him in Hollywood. He says he's found more star material in our forces than you can shake a stick at. . . . When Ida Lupino and Paul Henreid finish "In Our Time," they're giving a different kind of party. They're both so exhausted they'll send out mourning cards to their friends. A rest will probably cause them a suspension. Ida is rebelling at playing "Of Human Bondage," says, "Bette Davis was superb. She played it the only way it should be played, and I naturally will have to do it the same way. Then I'll again be called 'The poor man's Bette Davis'."

Like Old Times.

Nice to hear Chuck Reisner take time out to thank Vaughn Monroe and his boys for their work in "Meet the People" when they finished that picture. This is Monroe's first trip west. He goes to San Francisco, hopes to come back to do "Duffy's Tavern" before pushing east. He's been blowing a trumpet since he was 15. . . . Bert Lahr will likely do a musical on Broadway called "Oh, You Kid!" which will be backed with Metro cash. Then later they'll put it on the screen. . . . Travis Banton, who made Marlene Dietrich, Carole Lombard, Pola Negri, and dozens more style conscious, is doing the clothes for Rosalind Russell in "Ten Per Cent Woman." Rosalind is delighted.

Great Beginning.

One of the first things Lew Schreiber did when he was upped to a producer at Twentieth Century was promise the Brentwood Players the use of their actors. First two asked for—Henry Morgan and Aubrey Mather—have been set for "Farewell Supper." In addition, he promised them Brenda Joyce, Lois Andrews, Dorris Merrick, and Trudy Marshall. . . . Robert Alda, who plays Gershwin, is the only actor I know who has a grand piano in his dressing room. And, boy, is he using it to acquire that Gershwin technique! Ann Brown, the original Bess of "Porgy and Bess," will sing "Summertime" in the same picture. She interrupts a nation-wide concert tour to do it. . . . Fred Astaire's new one, "The Sky's the Limit," is just what the doctor ordered. Fred's scenes with Robert Benchley are super, and his dances with Joan Leslie have set a brand new groove in his success story.

Short Shorts.

Orson Welles has been reclassified 1B. . . . Dean Jagger and Doris Nolan having their palms read together in a New York night club. . . . Ran into Helen Vinson with Lt. Robert Williams. I've never seen her look better, and I don't understand why she's not being used in movies. . . . Since Lillian Gish has gone to work at Universal she has had offers from two other studios and is spending her time between scenes reading scripts. . . . Lou Costello had a note from a Pittsburgh girl who's also down with rheumatic fever. She wrote he'd made it tough for her. Whenever she asks her doctor to let her get up he'll say, "Remember Lou Costello—he's been in bed four months." She ended with, "Will you get the h—l out of that bed, Lou, so I can get up, too?" . . . Joan Davis says when you sign a contract with a quickie outfit that means unconditional surrender.

Thrilling Phase of War Shown in 'Bombardier'

"BOMBARDIER."

An R. K. O. Radio production. Directed by Richard Wallace. Presented at the Palace.

THE CAST.

Chito Rafferty	Richard Martin
Paul Harris	Russell Wade
Chaplain Craig	John Miljan

BY CECIL SMITH.

Because the pilots have monopolized the imagination of the public to an extraordinary degree, the bombardiers have been the forgotten men of the air force. "Bombardier," produced with the blessing of the war department and the cooperation of air force officials, is an attempt to inform us more fully about the crucial significance of the bombardiers' contribution.

The picture tries to combine a graphic explanation of the work in the bombardier schools with high pressure adventure and the expected element of romance. Frankly it tries to do too much for a single picture, and it is overlong. But it would be unfair to suggest that the film is uninteresting, for it holds the attention quite well thruout its hour and three quarters of unreeling.

I could have done nicely without the element of romance, which is so conventional and fragmentary that it adds nothing. Indeed, it deflects attention from the really absorbing parts of the picture, which show how the high altitude precision bombing made possible by the invention of the Norden bomb sight brought about the establishment and development of specialized training for bombardiers.

To Pat O'Brien falls the sympathetic rôle of the major who believed from the first in the possibilities of high altitude bombing, and who faced continual opposition from officials who thought it silly to provide rigorous and specialized training for bombardiers.

Randolph Scott atones for a career of crabbed antagonism toward the project by sacrificing himself in a suicidal flight over Japan. His part allows him to be no more than a stock character; this fact is especially obvious because the picture provides human and often touching vignettes of character analysis of several of the cadets at the school in New Mexico.

Anne Shirley, no great shakes as an actress, wears a hair-do which makes her features look hard and unyielding. In general the sequences involving her are less interesting than either the documentary record of the school or the prolonged and glamorous air battle at the end of the story. The photography is good enough to pass muster, and the direction, I dare say, accomplishes as much as could be done with a scrappily written scenario.

Thru the Looking Glass

Bath salts are being rediscovered by thousands of women these days. Quite suddenly they're tremendously popular again after being more or less ignored for the last few years.

A bath glorified with fragrant crystals is a treat that helps you forget your troubles, especially if the scent is one that satisfies your soul. And, tho it really isn't important, bath salts usually are pretty to look at; the mere ownership of them, especially in a handsome bottle, can make you feel like a lady of luxury.

Some of the very finest are old timers, with which many the present day users of beauty aids aren't even acquainted. They should be, tho, for these are tops in quality and elegant.

Probably the two most popular fragrances in these are geranium rose and eau de cologne. The first is romantic and on the sweet side. The second is that cleanest, most refreshing of scents, the blend of citrus oils that makes true, old fashioned cologne the perfect refreshant. This last you will love when you feel a little wilted; the first you'll find soothing support when your sense of femininity needs bolstering, as often happens when you've been working like a drudge and maybe feeling pretty sorry for yourself!

These crystals, heavily scented, come in other fragrances, too, such as jasmine and balsam pine, but the two we mention head the hit parade. A scant handful in the tub makes your bath water a fragrant sea and the scent will cling delicately to your skin. These can be a daily joy, and at a small price.

Benefit Party Tonight to Mark Bastille Day.

Chicagoans of French extraction and their friends will be heading for the Chicago Town and Tennis club at 7:30 o'clock tonight for a celebration of Bastille day. Admission to the party will be by the purchase of at least $1 in war stamps, and proceeds will be divided between Fighting French relief, the Quaker society working within France, and the French War Prisoners fund. Coöperating in plans for the benefit are members of the Cercle Français, headed by Mrs. Harry Dingmans of the Alliance Française, of which Robert Hall McCormick is president, and of the Cenacle, headed by Mrs. Arthur Schall.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY

Nice Work.

A week ago space in this column was devoted to the plea of William H. Spencer, regional director of the war man power commission, for white collar girls to spend their vacations patriotically working on farms or in canneries. It appears—from a note in yesterday's mail—to be "nice work if you can get it."

"About the farmerette vacations suggested by Dean Spencer," writes Lois Schenk, "I've been receiving some earthy and amusing letters from one Chicago business girl who is now back from three weeks' vacation spent weeding Illinois onions and carrots. She is Miriam Whitehead, rental librarian at Abbott Hall, where, she says, 'Every four months I watch 2,000 boys leave to face the experience of fighting a war. Boys I know are struggling now in the Solomons, Attu, and South Sea Isles. So, I wanted to see if I have any of the same stuff they are showing.'

"Now Miss Whitehead is back from her war serving vacation and totals the results: 'I have lost four or five pounds—almost entirely around the middle. I have had more fresh air, sunshine, and exercise than I've had in years. My aches and pains are no worse than those acquired mountain climbing or horseback riding and will all disappear within a week . . . and the difference between my expenses and the cost of the usual vacation will buy me a $50 war bond.'"

Make Up Your Mind.

In the face of this letter it is particularly disturbing that many business girls who took their noon hour to go to the central office of the United States Employment service at 308 North Michigan avenue, or who showed enough interest to telephone for further information about farm work during vacation, were given to understand they weren't needed at all.

Dean Spencer has made a conscientious effort to straighten out the tangle. The girls should have been registered and their applications kept on file.

In justice to the United States Employment service, it should be pointed out that the program of assistance to farms and canneries is confronted with many difficulties. Weather conditions, local housing situations, and lack of coöperation of canneries and food processors can prove a serious drawback.

Young women accustomed to the practical problems of business readily can understand such handicaps. What they can not understand is this: The vacation workers' project has been considered sufficiently vital to warrant radio time on national hookups, announcements in newspapers, and other forms of publicity. Then why is there a stoppage in the United States employment service when available workers are at the door?

To the girls who hopefully applied, I'd like to suggest that they apply again, and register their names and probable time of vacation.

To the United States Employment service and the food processors, I'd like to suggest that they get together and make up their minds whether they do or do not want white collar girl workers.

Girl Marines Visit City on Way to Camp

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

One hundred ninety-two marines landed here yesterday and caused quite a furor in the Grand Central station.

They were bedecked with corsages and spoke in soft, excited whispers. They were new recruits of the women's marine corps reserve who had gathered from 16 states in the middle west to board the first all-girl troop train for Camp Lejeune, New River, N. C., where they will be indoctrinated.

Smart young debutantes in expensive, tailored suits; timid farm girls; breezy young stenographers with artificial flowers in their hair; brisk, neat school teachers—the girls represented a cross section of the nation. Lt. Col. C. L. Jordan, executive officer of the central procurement division of the marine corps, who was present to see them off, said the group is the first large one to be sent from this division and represents approximately three weeks' recruiting within the 16 states.

There was Mrs. Marie Martinelli, 28 years old, of 6016 South Mayfield avenue, a handsome career girl who as Elaine Van Scoy spent several years as women's editor of the Shanghai Evening Post and Mercury in China. Mrs. Martinelli's husband, Charles, leaves for the army Monday.

"I have seen all the places that have been torn up by the Japanese and the war has become a personal issue with me," she explained. "I entered the marines because I want to help free those countries and I feel that I can do it more directly this way."

Miss Marcella Wolfe, 22, a school teacher of Elkhorn, Wis., had another reason. "I taught social science and I realized that if we adults didn't get right in the fight, today's youngsters will have to do it later on," she explained. "You can't teach the four freedoms and not want to do something about them."

With a far away look in her eyes, Miss Mary Pasmandy, 30, of Silvis, Ill., a cashier, told about her sister in Hungary whom she has not heard from since the war started. "I am the only one of my family left to be of service to our country," she said quietly.

Another girl, Miss Catherine Getwan of Brookhaven, Miss., who has been a domestic in Chicago for eight years, explained that her brother, a lieutenant in the marines, had been wounded on Guadalcanal. "I want to take up the fight where he left off because there is no one else in our family who can," she said.

After the girls received their instructions at the station, they were given the afternoon to wander around the city until train time. A large contingent hurried over to the army ordnance-Tribune show. They clambered over the Gen. Sherman tank and inspected all the weapons.

Miss Betty Maisenbacher, 23, of Springfield, a secretary, patted a machine gun. "It makes me feel good to know that I am going to relieve a man so he can carry one of these," she murmured.

When Civilization Stopped.

The heavy thought departments occasionally stop in their unsnarling of a world beyond control to project their dreams into a timeless future when all humans will have left this unhappy, earthbound sphere and insect life will reign, magnified and multiplied with one squirming insect on top of another all over the face of the globe. They get just so far in their crystal gazing, and then they stop and say, dogmatically, "No, civilization has progressed too far. What man has done, no insect can undo."

A little incident took place on Michigan avenue near Randolph the other day which forces us to take issue with those learned gentlemen. It involved a mouse, a tiny, black-eyed gray mouse, and Chicago traffic at its 5 p. m. rush hour peak.

Any one who has tried to get out of the loop in a hurry at rush hour knows that intersection well. Out of Randolph street spew hundreds of cars and buses and trucks and taxicabs and weary civilians, all tumbling over each other with mechanical and human outcries. Up from the subterranean maw of the Illinois Central tunnel spew hundreds of others fighting their way upward thru hundreds who are trying to descend. South on Michigan avenue races an interminable stream of cars, racing because the bridge has been up and delaying their motivating impulse to get anywhere other than where they are. North on Michigan come hundreds of others, racing to get to the bridge before it goes up again. Spiraling in from the Outer drive are countless more who got tired of scenery along the lake and now want a little action scented with gasoline fumes.

Into all these alien, converging forces Friday ventured a mouse. It appeared on the northwest corner of Michigan and Randolph and slowly, delicately, began to pick its way across the boulevard. Traffic from the north came to an abrupt and incredulous halt as the mouse sauntered to the central safety island. Here a policeman noticed it, and with the same deferential courtesy he would tender a sightless man or an elderly woman, halted oncoming traffic from the south and from Randolph street. The mouse hesitated, presumably pondered this surprising courtesy on the part of its enemy, man, and then raced for the east curbing. Here lurked a group of fine, able-bodied young ladies who, with one exhalation from their agglomerate lungs, screamed. The mouse paused and then, just as traffic was about to resume its normal panic, scuttled boldly and unabashed across to the reassuring green of Grant park.

But for three full minutes every technological advance of civilization had retrograded into the ice age. No horn sounded, no brakes grated, no steel ground against steel. A frightening thing. . . .

Old Refrain.

Six Point Plan Given to Avert Clothes Ration

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the war production board tonight announced a six point program to avoid clothes rationing during the war thru increased production, better distribution, and coöperation by consumers and merchants in restricting apparel purchases to actual needs.

Nelson assured consumers that they will have enough clothing, and emphasized that their coöperation is vital to the success of the no-rationing program.

He laid down three rules for civilians to follow: "Don't buy more than you need; don't buy it before you need it, and make it last as long as you can.

"We need not have clothes rationing in the United States," the WPB chairman said. "There is an adequate supply of textiles and textile products to meet all military and essential civilian needs."

The six part program proposed by Nelson is:

1. Increased production of clothing. This will be accomplished, he said, by using three shifts in clothing and textile mills, wherever possible, by protecting the industry's labor supply, and by making available to mills adequate materials.

2. Orderly and adequate distribution, particularly thru abandonment by retailers of sales promotions and "fear of scarcity appeals" which, WPB contends, have led consumers to overbuy in some instances. The WPB policy, Nelson said, does not call for reduced advertising, but for eliminating certain promotional appeals. He said retailers' representatives have pledged their coöperation in this program.

3. Greater emphasis on "volume," low priced merchandise, and further simplification of lines. This, WPB said, will help to boost production from the same amount of man power.

4. A voluntary, industry-wide program to channel production of fabrics into fields where they are most needed by specific allocations of yarns and fabrics. The entire industry will be asked to concentrate on a list of clothing essentials prepared by the office of civilian requirements.

5. Increased burlap imports, which will ease the demand for cotton. This move will be aided by the reopening of the Mediterranean to allied shipping.

6. Greater consumer care of clothes. Retailers are being asked to push this program by direct appeals to consumers and the release of information on how to get maximum wear out of fabrics.

Details of the agreements between WPB and retailers for deëmphasizing clothing sales appeals will be announced in a few days, Nelson said.

Naval Doctors Develop Serum to Combat Flu

San Francisco, Cal., July 13 (AP).—Navy physicians possess a new weapon—a weapon which they hope can quell future outbreaks of influenza, a disease that killed 21 million persons thruout the world at the close of World War I.

The 12th naval district headquarters reported today that animal experiments of its influenza research "are sufficiently promising to warrant the expectation that application to human infection will be successful."

The new agent is an anti-serum inhaled directly into the lungs in the form of a fine mist.

While it remains in the lung tissue it neutralizes any influenza virus breathed in by the patient, said Comdr. Albert Paul Krueger, director of the naval laboratory research unit which perfected the process. Before the war Krueger was professor of bacteriology at the University of California, where the research is situated.

To produce the serum navy scientists grew great quantities of influenza virus in chick embryos. It was injected into horses to produce anti-bodies in the blood stream capable of neutralizing the virus.

Satisfied that influenza is transmitted from patient to patient by virus containing droplets emitted in coughing or sneezing, the physicians sought to distribute the anti-toxin evenly thruout the nose, throat, and lung area. They found that an anti-serum spray did the trick.

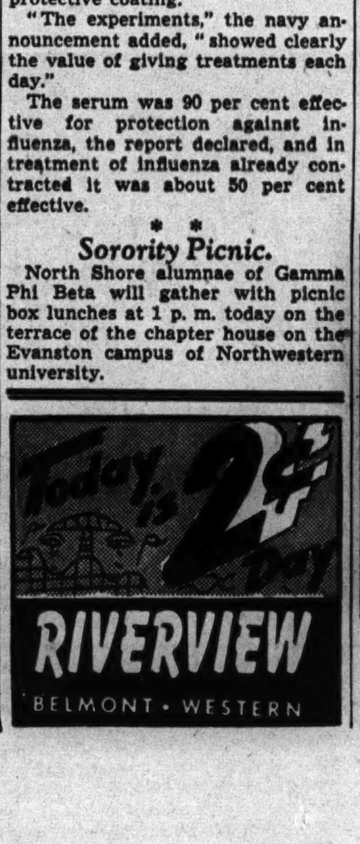
They proved that the anti-body remained in the lung tissue for more than 24 hours and formed a protective coating.

"The experiments," the navy announcement added, "showed clearly the value of giving treatments each day."

The serum was 90 per cent effective for protection against influenza, the report declared, and in treatment of influenza already contracted it was about 50 per cent effective.

Sorority Picnic.

North Shore alumnae of Gamma Phi Beta will gather with picnic box lunches at 1 p. m. today on the terrace of the chapter house on the Evanston campus of Northwestern university.



Three Crocheted Edgings

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

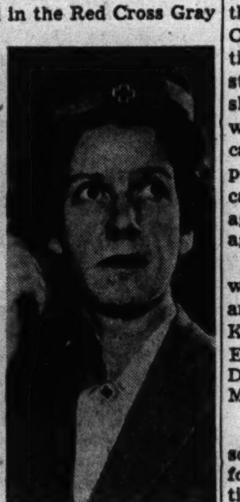
Ideal pickup crochet work for summer is an edging which may be used on handkerchiefs, tray cloths, doilies, or for dress trimming. It is the type of work that may go on for as many yards as you care to make. All three of these edgings are simple and effective.

For instructions in crocheting the handkerchief edgings, No. 461, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth av., New York City.

Women in War Work

By Kate Massee

Eighty seven women who have been enrolled in the Red Cross Gray Ladies' training course took their final examinations yesterday, under the direction of Mrs. John S. Miller, acting chairman of the Gray Ladies' hospital and recreation corps. Students who successfully passed the examinations will be assigned immediately to the blood donor service and to various hospitals thruout the city.



Mrs. John S. Miller.

There were no ceremonies in connection with the completion of the course, as the executives of the corps decided some time ago to eliminate such formalities for the duration, both as time saving and economic measures.

The women's division of the Salvation Army will have a major role in arrangements for a "red, white, and blue" party which Salvation Army hosts and hostesses, junior hostesses, and "officers of the day" will give for approximately 1,500 service men at the USO center at 131 South Wabash avenue Saturday evening.

Volunteer workers for the Salvation Army announced that there will be door prizes and refreshments, and the decorations will be in the spirit of the party's title. Festivities will start with a grand march, to be led by two professional girl baton twirlers.

Mrs. Holland Flagler of Beverly Hills, a member of the women's division, is general chairman of the event.

The Woman's City club will open its clubrooms at 410 South Michigan avenue again Saturday evening for dancing and cards, a monthly event to which navy men are invited. Serving as hostesses will be members of the Navy Service Girls' organization. Mrs. Cyrus R. Shipman, a member of the Woman's City club, is general chairman.

At the club's board meeting this week it was decided to open the attractive lounge, looking over the lake and Buckingham fountain, to both officers and enlisted personnel of the WAC, so that women in service may have a retreat for rest, relaxation, and recreation.

The history of the Navy Service Girls is an interesting one which goes back to the first World war. There was a similar group in 1917-'18, known as the Patriotic Service league, members of which had the primary interest of arranging recreation for men of the navy. The group still has annual reunions in the City club's headquarters, usually around Armistice day, and one member, Miss Ella Ray, founded the World War II. counterpart of the earlier organization.

The women in the north Lawndale community of the OCD division 4, district 5, zone 12, have reason to point with pride to the contributions they've made in the last year to the Chicago service men's centers. Statistics compiled by Miss Ada Bernstein, community canteen chairman, show that the committee of 12 women has turned in a total of 953 cakes, 585 packages of cigarets, 420 pounds of cookies, 125 pounds of candy, 45 pounds of coffee, 60 packages of razor blades, and 200 packages of chewing gum.

Mrs. Clara Burg is zone welfare warden and the committee members are Mrs. Selma Korden, Mrs. Sophie Kaluzna, Mrs. Bessie Wimper, Miss Evelyn Leibovitz, Miss Shirley Davis, Miss Gertrude Glink, and Miss Ida Goldstein.

An order issued recently prescribes the official "athletic uniform" for WAVES engaged in active exercises. The shirt is of white cotton, short sleeved, and may be worn with the top button open and without a tie. The slacks are regulation navy blue. Blue regulation socks are worn, with shoes or regulation oxfords. When the weather so dictates, WAVES may top this outfit with a working jacket or raincoat. The regulation hat always must be worn when "going ashore," altho it may be removed when the WAVE is exercising.

Monteux Here; Ravinia Season Gains New Life

Overture to "The Flying Dutchman" .... Wagner
Symphony No. 7, A major .... Beethoven
"Iberia," Images No. 2 .... Debussy
Choreographic Poem, "The Waltz" .... Ravel

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

In the picturesque language of jive, a solid citizen, they tell me, is a musician in the groove. I see no reason not to bestow so charming a decoration in symphonic accolade. Welcome back to Ravinia, Pierre Monteux, solid citizen.

The chubby little Frenchman with the curly black hair and the curlier white mustache opened his third summer engagement with the Chicago Symphony orchestra last night by playing a concert so sound, so delightful and so beautiful that it almost was able to ignore the humid night that preyed on the instruments and managed to splinter a large light bulb just at the opening of Beethoven's Seventh Symphony, so that it fell in smoking fragments on the first violins. The audience leaped like gazelles, but the disciplined players went right on playing. When it was convenient they brushed hot glass out of their hair, and one man surreptitiously blew on the back of a scorched hand. But out of all this came Beethoven that had the audience cheering, and with cause.

It was, for all the handicaps of the weather, playing of precision, stature and elegance. It was symmetrical in style, balanced in design and of such clarity that the ear delighted in the interplay of instruments. Mr. Monteux is a superb conductor of the most fastidious brilliance, and he knows how to handle an orchestra. There is never a sense of hurry, never a sense of undue delay. His line is firm and richly sustained, and his indication of detail so explicit that the pattern takes on a shining beauty. The world which loves to pigeonhole people insists that Mr. Monteux is a specialist in French music and certainly his Debussy and Ravel sustain that argument. However, the more complete truth is that Mr. Monteux is a specialist in music. His Beethoven and his Wagner — "The Flying Dutchman" Overture—sustained that argument with equal skill.

In his sensitive hands Debussy's "Iberia" Images became a magical score in which complexity gave way to a glistening clarity born of ideal nuance and proportion. The orchestra's playing, particularly in the second movement, "The Perfumes of the Night," had a delicacy, a wayward grace, and a limpid felicity that seemed almost incredible, considering that it was playing with a relatively strange conductor with almost no rehearsal. But good musicians are never strangers. Mr. Monteux ended "Iberia" in a blaze of brilliance, then began to pluck Ravel's "The Waltz" out of the prescient air. As I walked to the press room, listening, I was thinking of a visitor from the east who recently told me that we have a substantial, but not a virtuoso, orchestra. Pooh, pooh, my dear sir, pooh, pooh.

Mrs. Edward M., Chicago—My husband hit on a good way, I think, of keeping his garden hose fit and free from the kinks that come from improper storage. He took an old water pail and nailed it to the wall of the garage. Now he wraps it around the pail and there's no sign of a kink.

Sarah B., Oak Park—I had several vases with rough bottoms that marred any surface on which I placed them. I tried smoothing out the roughness by rubbing over fine sandpaper. It wasn't until I wet the bottom with turpentine, and then rubbed it over sandpaper, that I really got results.

Mrs. Florence G., Chicago—When it comes to getting results in window washing, I don't know of any better mixture to use than 2 tablespoons of vinegar to 2 quarts of warm water.

Miss Miriam Elaine Friedman.

Miss Miriam Elaine Friedman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Friedman of River Forest, will be married today to Lt. Harold Jay Fagen, who is stationed with the army air froces in Pecos, Tex. Lt. Fagen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Fagen of West Touhy avenue.

Weddings

The marriage of Miss Nancy Ward, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Dealtry Ward of Glencoe, to Lt. George Serini, son of Mrs. John Serini of New York, took place at 4:30 p. m. on July 3 in the Trinity Episcopal church, Highland Park. Immediately afterward a reception was given in the Deerfield home of the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnson. Young Mrs. Serini attended Bradford college and her husband is a graduate of Lake Forest college. Lt. Serini is stationed with the marine air corps in Jacksonville, Fla., where he will take his bride to live.

Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Clarence Goode of Constance avenue announce the marriage on May 6 in St. Joseph, Mich., of their daughter, Janice Bess, to Jack Edmond Kahoun, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Edmond Kahoun of Berwyn. The bride was graduated from the University of Chicago, where she was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. Mr. Kahoun is a first year medical student at the University of Chicago, where he is on active duty as an apprentice seaman in the navy.

Miss Ruth Frank, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Frank of Chicago, became the bride on July 11 of Arnold L. Scheuer Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Scheuer of New York. The wedding took place in New York City, where the young Mr. and Mrs. Scheuer will be at home. The bride attended Vassar college and the University of Chicago. Mr. Scheuer is a former student of Princeton university.

WINNING THE WAR AGAINST THE SUB

NAVY'S NEW WEAPONS DESTROY U-BOATS

The German High Command now admits that U-boats are sinking less and less tonnage. March losses of 850,000 tons dropped to 415,000 in April, 372,000 in May. Prime Minister Churchill recently reported: "... as a result of the May victory and massacre of U-boats we have had in June the best month we have ever known in the whole 46 of the war."

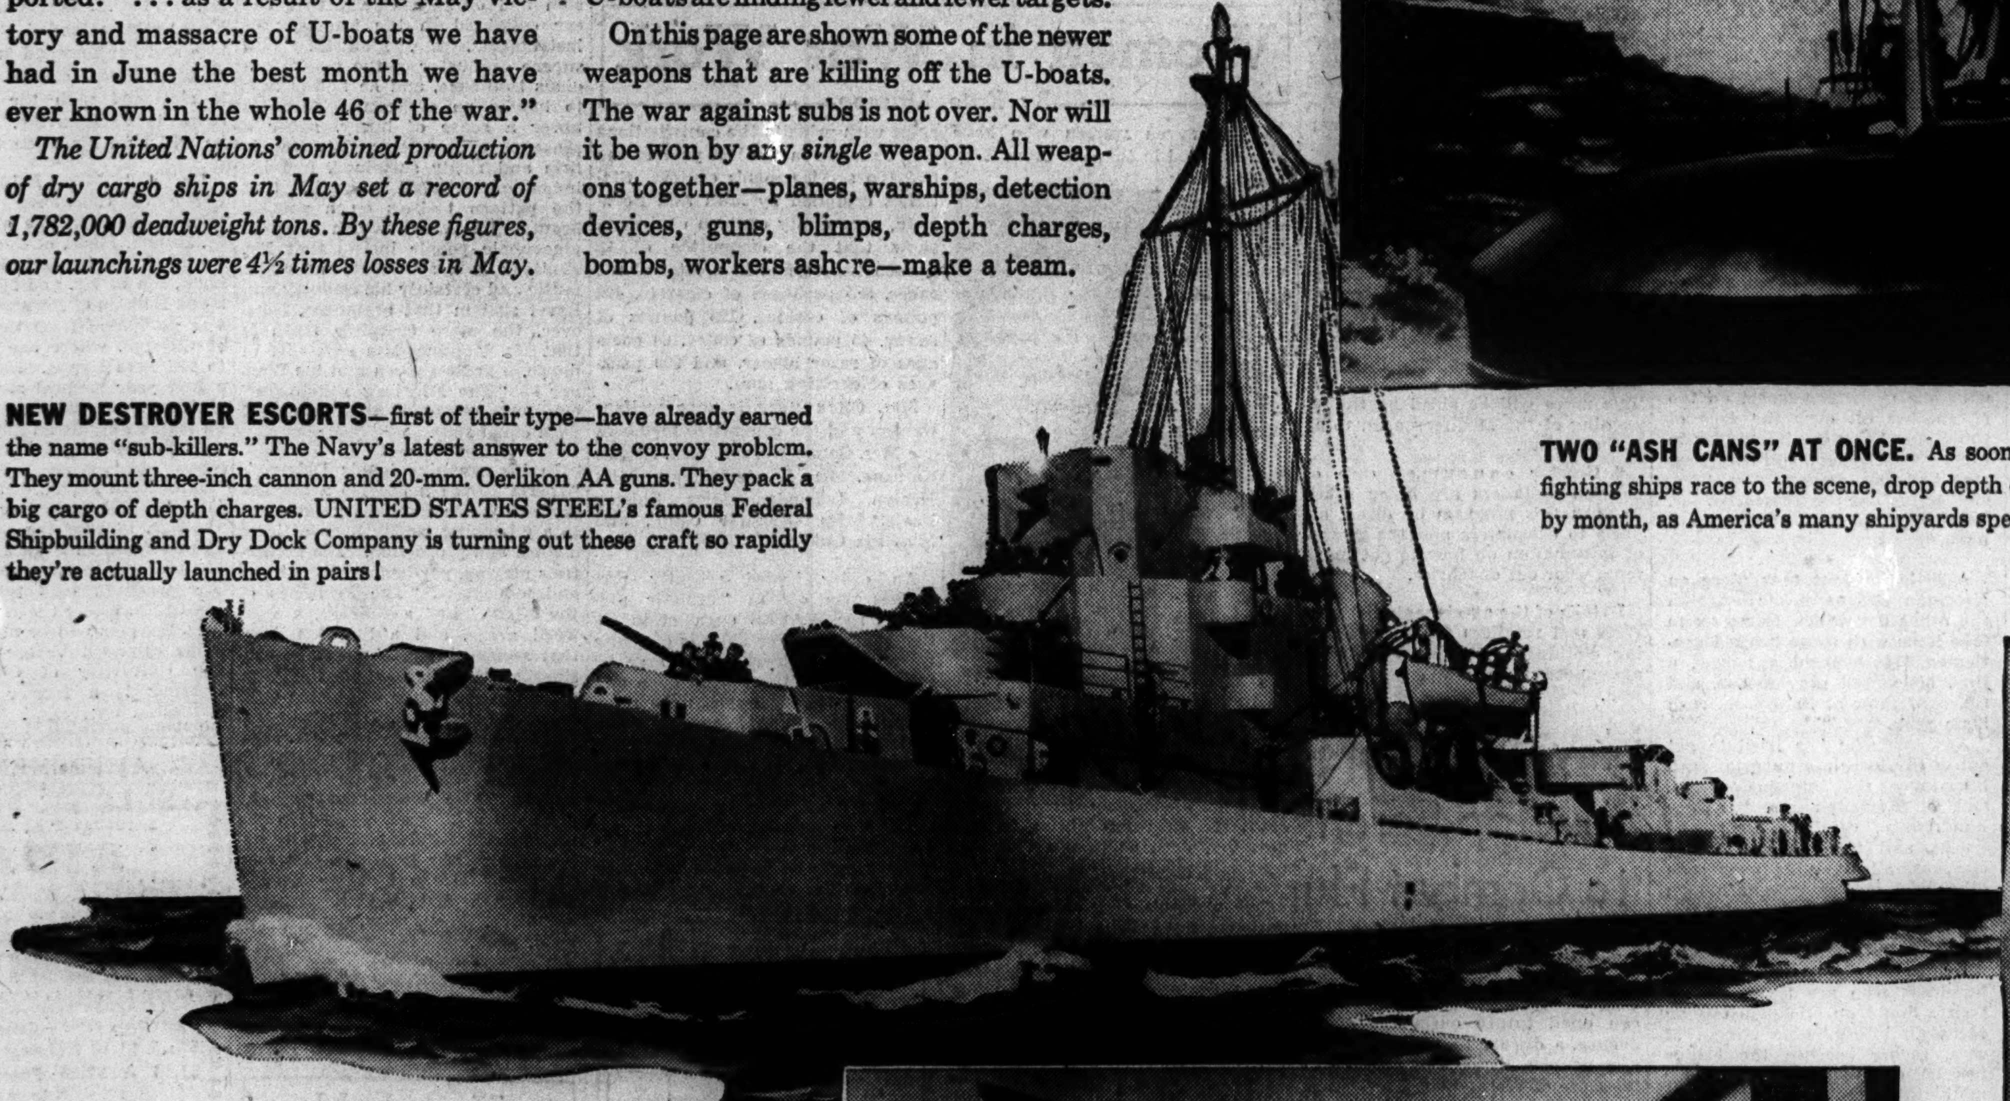
The United Nations' combined production of dry cargo ships in May set a record of 1,782,000 deadweight tons. By these figures, our launchings were 4½ times losses in May.

All directly due to our growing naval might. More fighting ships on guard. New airplane carriers. New destroyer escorts (popularly named "sub-killers"), more plentiful and livelier even than destroyers. U-boats are finding fewer and fewer targets.

On this page are shown some of the newer weapons that are killing off the U-boats. The war against subs is not over. Nor will it be won by any single weapon. All weapons together—planes, warships, detection devices, guns, blimps, depth charges, bombs, workers ashore—make a team.

U. S. Navy Official Photo

TWO "ASH CANS" AT ONCE. As soon as the new detection devices locate a sub near the convoy, fighting ships race to the scene, drop depth charges. America's convoys are being better protected month by month, as America's many shipyards speed delivery of destroyers and destroyer escorts.

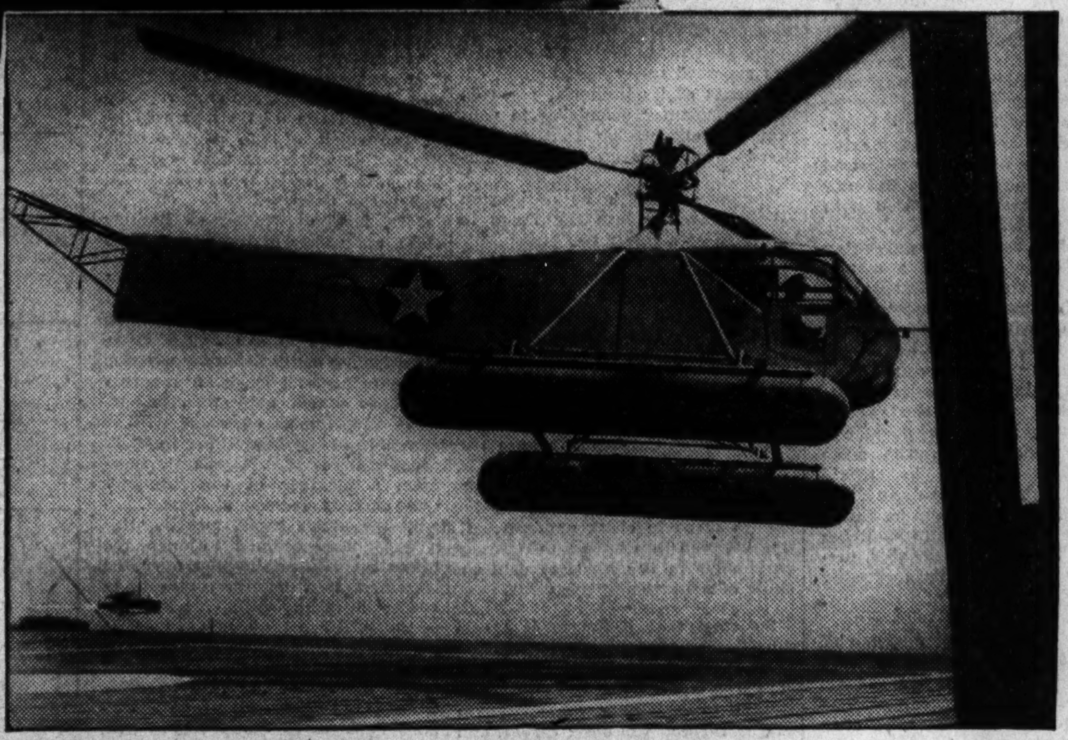


U. S. Navy Official Photo

NEW DESTROYER ESCORTS—first of their type—have already earned the name "sub-killers." The Navy's latest answer to the convoy problem. They mount three-inch cannon and 20-mm. Oerlikon AA guns. They pack a big cargo of depth charges. UNITED STATES STEEL's famous Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company is turning out these craft so rapidly they're actually launched in pairs!

U. S. Navy Official Photo

BLIMPS FOR "EYES." The slow speed of a blimp is an advantage in studying the water for telltale outlines of undersea killers. The sub stops its engines. It may fool underwater listening "ears," but not watchful eyes overhead.



HELICOPTERS TAKE OFF FROM TANKERS. Another new anti-sub weapon in the experimental stage, the helicopter can take off from a deck space hardly larger than itself. Useful for its hovering, slow-flying abilities, it can even carry depth charges.

WORLD'S RECORD OF 170 DAYS, keel to launching, is held for this type of destroyer by U. S. STEEL'S Federal shipyard. This record-holding shipyard completed more destroyers for the Navy in 1942, and in shorter building time, than any other shipyard in the country. Prefabricating started here 'way back in 1918. This single company delivered 64 completed ships in 1942—three times its 1941 record.

MORE STEEL. Without steel, not a gun, not a ship, not a plane can be made. America's steel production staggers the Axis. At United States Steel subsidiaries alone, more steel is produced than in all of Germany.

AMERICAN LEAGUE WINS ALL-STAR GAME, 5-3

IOWA, MICHIGAN STATE PLAYERS JOIN COLLEGIANS

BOB PENALUNA, JACK FENTON TO OPPOSE PROS

210 Pound Hawkeye Bolsters Line.

All-Star Roster

THE following college football players have accepted invitations to join the All-Star squad which will meet the Washington Redskins Aug. 25:

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Michigan State and the University of Iowa contributed players yesterday to the All-Star football squad which will meet the Washington Redskins, champions of the National Football league, in Dyche stadium Aug. 25. Acceptances of invitations were received from Jack Fenton, Spartan half back, and Bob Penaluna, Hawkeye guard.

Acquisition of these midwestern gridiron stars brings the college squad to 26 and bolsters an eleven which already seems strong enough to match any first team the Redskins may start before the thousands in Dyche stadium. Both players will report to Head Coach Harry Stuhldreher Aug. 7 at the beginning of the practice sessions at Northwestern university.

Plenty of Competition.

Penaluna and Fenton each earned three varsity football awards. Penaluna is 23 years old, 5 feet 11 inches tall, and weighs 210 pounds. There is no question that Iowa played its best game last fall when the Hawks defeated Wisconsin. That defeat, the only one the Badgers suffered in a 10 game schedule, prevented Wisconsin from winning the Western conference title altho Wisconsin, the week before the Iowa game, had beaten Ohio State, 1942 title holder. Penaluna played 60 minutes against Wisconsin and his defensive skill, especially in the closing minutes of the first half when Wisconsin had the ball on Iowa's 1 yard line, helped win the game.

Penaluna is one of the most rugged linemen in the conference as his 46 inch chest measurement as well as his weight indicates. He will have competition for a starting assignment from such guards as Garrard Ramsey, William and Mary; Walter Ruard, co-captain of Georgia's Rose bowl championship team, and Ray Frankowski, University of Washington. The folks in Waterloo, Ia., where Penaluna attended West High school, know he will have a full share in the charity game against Washington.

Right Half Experience.

Penaluna's hobby is swimming, so it was quite natural he should pick the United States Coast Guard as his branch of military service. He entered service last Feb. 20 and currently is stationed at Port Everglades, Fla. He majored in economics at Iowa and received a bachelor of science degree.

Fenton joins a group of All-Star half backs as versatile as any ever assembled in the 10 year history of the game sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. Jack played right half back under the coaching of Charley Bachman, who also

Mrs. Krauss Advances in Women's Golf

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Heading the upper bracket, Mrs. Krauss, who captured the championships of 1930 and last year, moved into this morning's second round with a 3 and 2 triumph over Mrs. William Tapson of the home club. The titleholder was out in 40, six over par, for a three up intermission advantage and closed out the match on the 16th green, after three putting the 3d, 7th, and 15th. The champion played out the bye holes for another 40.

Miss Sorenson, runnerup for the 1941 crown and a semi-finalist last year, gained the second round of eight players with much more ease than Mrs. Krauss, defeating Amelia Engelhardt of Navajo Fields, 8 and 6. She won seven holes and halved two going out for a seven up margin at the turn, and then, after her opponent had taken the 267 yard 10th with a six foot birdie putt, the Big Oaks star won the 11th with a bogey and the decisive 12th with a par.

Second Round Opponents.

In today's opening second round match, Mrs. Krauss meets Mrs. K. B. Lamond of Mid-City who moved up with a 2 and 1 decision over Mrs. Blanche Leahy of Lincolnshire. Miss Sorensen's opponent in the lower bracket today is Mrs. Lois Kuehnle of Flossmoor, 4 and 2 victor over Merle Vinton of Oak Hills.

Michael Sennott and Agnes McNary, home club players employed in defense work, put in their day at the plant and played their match late in the afternoon. Miss Sennott won, 3 and 2.

Mrs. Estelle Dickson, president of the Women's Jackson Park Golf club, sponsor of the tournament, won her first flight match, 1 up in 19 holes, from Ruth Fisher, another Jackson park golfer.

Two Invitational Meets.

In addition to the second round of the women's county tournament, today's district program also includes two invitational tournaments—the Beverly Revel and the Sunset Ridge Stampede—and the second open day event of the Chicago Women's District Golf association at Skokie. The C. W. D. G. A. tourney will witness the Mabel Gustafson trophy, named for the late handicap chairman of the organization, placed in competition for the first time. The trophy, a silver service, will be awarded to today's low net scorer. It will be played for annually, and permanent possession will be given to the golfer first winning it three times.

Yesterday's first round results and today's quarter-final pairings in the Cook county women's meet:

CHAMPIONSHIP FLIGHT.

Upper Half.

Mrs. Fred J. Krauss, Tam o' Shanter, beat Mrs. William Tapson, Jackson, 3 and 2.

Mrs. K. B. Lamond, Mid-City, beat Mrs. Blanche Leahy, Lincolnshire, 2 and 1.

Meleide Johnson, Jackson, beat Mrs. Thelma Kurry, Jackson, 5 and 3.

Mrs. F. W. Zimmerman, Edgewater, beat Doris Gunderson, Keller's Fairway, 4 and 3.

Lower Half.

Lois Kuehnle, Flossmoor, beat Merle Vinton, Oak Hills, 4 and 2.

QUARTER-FINAL PAIRINGS.

Mrs. Krauss vs. Mrs. Lamond; Mrs. Johnson vs. Mrs. Zimmerman; Miss Sorensen vs. Mrs. Kuehnle; Mrs. Hurst vs. Mrs. Hibbard.

FIRST FLIGHT.

Upper Half.

Estelle Dickson, Jackson, beat Ruth Fisher, Jackson, 1 up, 19 holes.

Lower Half.

Mrs. Jerry Hegarty, Oak Hills, beat Mrs. J H. Rubush, Flossmoor, 2 and 1.

QUARTER-FINAL PAIRINGS.

Dickson vs. Walker; Springer vs. Schroeder; Hegarty vs. Morrison; Hime vs. Drebing.

SLIDE RULE TO RACE TODAY IN CLASSIC TEST

Tops Field of Seven in $5,000 Skokie.

Skokie Field

THE $5,000 Skokie handicap, a mile dash which will head Arlington's program today at Washington Park, drew seven horses in the overnight entries.

	Weight.	Jockey.	Prob. Odds.
Fire Dust	96	No boy	12-1
Burnt Cork	112	No boy	6-1
Fag	102	No boy	15-1
Cabin Creek	100	R. Reeves	15-1
Slide Rule	126	F. Zufelt	7-5
Busyridge	110	No boy	2-1
Son of Peace	110	W. Eads	10-1

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Slide Rule, W. E. Boeing's contender for a high ranking position among the 3 year olds will tune up for his engagement in the $50,000 Arlington Classic with a gallop of a mile in the $5,000 Skokie handicap today at Washington Park. Twice during the current meeting, Slide Rule has failed to win at the shorter distances, but now that he's getting a little more leeway his followers believe that he'll do considerably better.

The only other Classic candidate in today's race will be Eddie Anderson's Burnt Cork, but inasmuch as he has shown no liking at all for distances longer than six furlongs, his Classic chances are considered lightly. The field of seven in the Skokie will be completed by Busyridge, Son of Peace, Cabin Creek, Fag, and Fire Dust.

Expect Field of Six.

The Classic candidates all will be on the grounds by the end of this week, Amber Light being due today and Chop Chop, the new eastern hope, on Friday. The field for the Classic, which will be run a week from Saturday, probably will consist of only about six horses. In addition to Slide Rule, Chop Chop, and Amber Light, the likely starters are Occupation, Bourmont, and either Askmenow or All Hoss from the Hal Price Headley stable.

Black Badge, the well regarded juvenile which has been racing at Detroit, is now at Washington Park ready to run in Saturday's Arlington Futurity, which will gross in excess of $60,000. This colt, which is owned by Abe Hirschberg, scored his fifth consecutive victory Saturday. The youngster was late in joining the Futurity field, his owners thinking it worth their while, however, to pay the $2,500 supplementary nomination fee.

Ogham Loses Prestige.

Mrs. Helen Miller's Ogham, which has been considered a colt of great promise in the early season racing, continued to lose prestige when he quit in the stretch Monday in the Thingumabob purse, which was dominated by Occupy. Tambo, another Futurity hope, also lost favor by his poor showing in the same race.

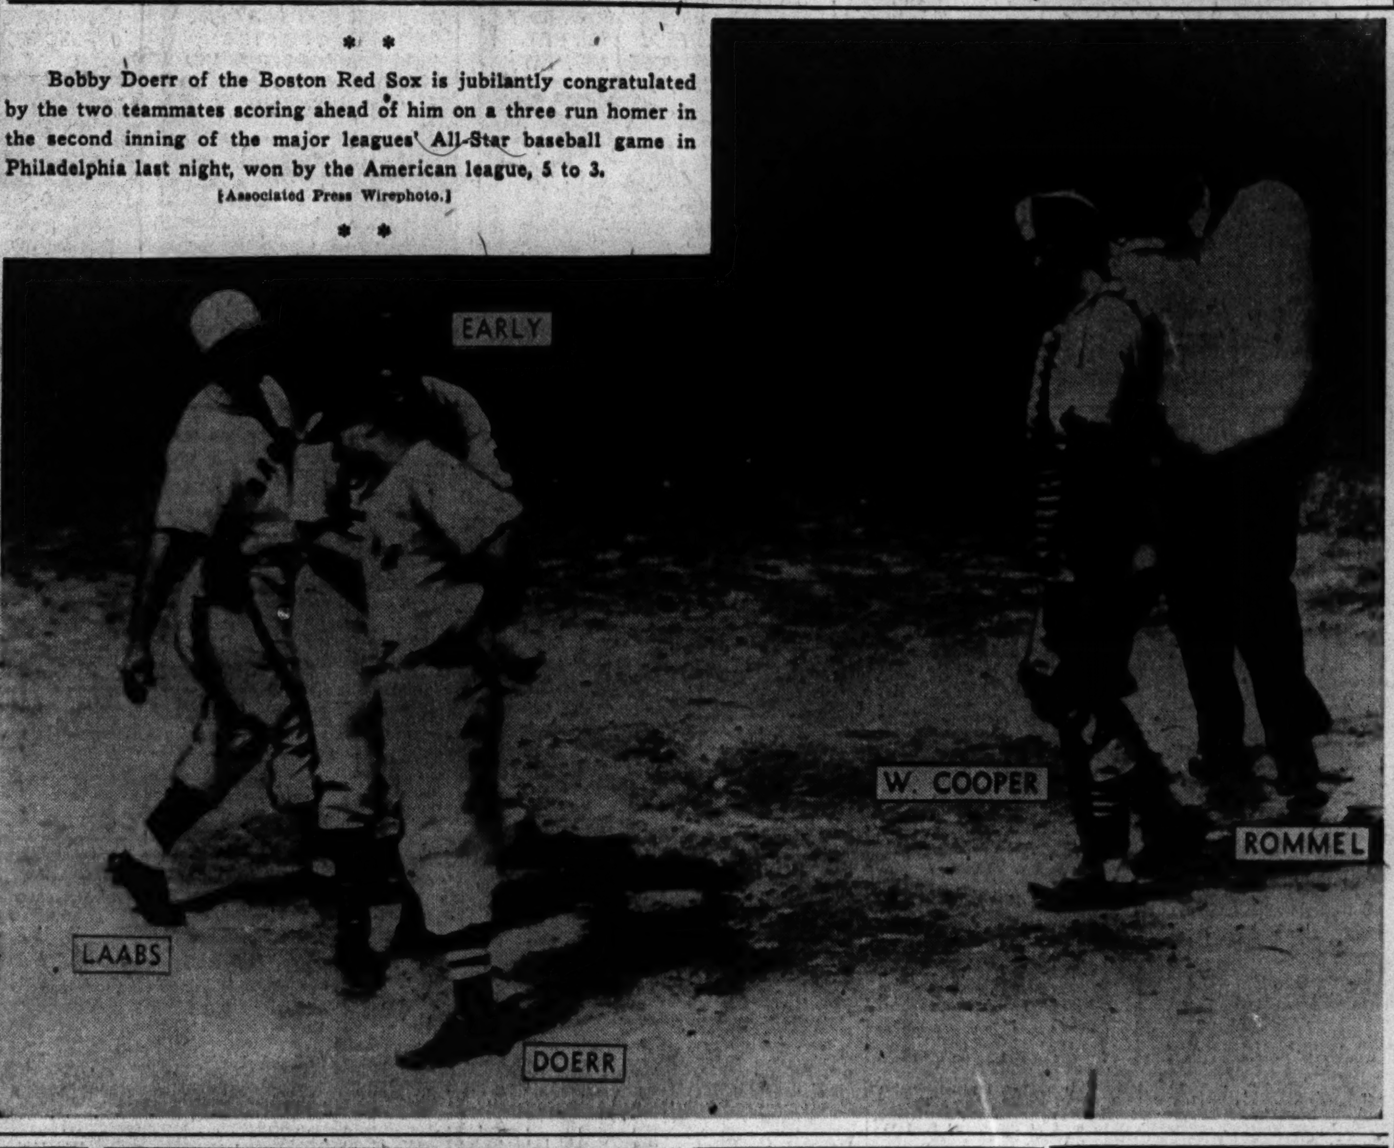
The Futurity field probably will consist of Occupy, his stablemate, Broadcloth; Alorter and his stablemate Albuldo, Ogham, Civil Liberty Black Badge, Ravenala, Pukka Gin, Patriotism, Megogo, and possibly one or two others.

Patriotism had a tryout yesterday in the first race of the afternoon, a maiden affair, but he could do no better than second, a length and a half behind Freeze Out.

Little Kiss Pays $30.60.

Little Kiss got to the post at odds of 14 to 1 in the main event on yesterday's program, a six furlong dash for fillies and mares. She caught the early pace setter, Lady Liberty, in the stretch, then stalled off the closing drives of Joan T. and Pig Tails to win by three-quarters of a length. Joan T. beat the 8to 5 favorite, Pig Tails, by a length for second place. The winner paid off at $30.60, $9.60 and $4.20.

ONE HIT, THREE RUNS FOR AMERICANS!



Bobby Doerr of the Boston Red Sox is jubilantly congratulated by the two teammates scoring ahead of him on a three run homer in the second inning of the major leagues' All-Star baseball game in Philadelphia last night, won by the American league, 5 to 3.

DOERR SLAMS 3 RUN HOMER OFF M. COOPER

31,938 Watch Game in Philadelphia.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., July 13.—Bobby Doerr's home run off Morton Cooper with two on base in the second inning was a jolt from which the National leaguers couldn't recover tonight in the 11th All-Star game. The Boston second baseman's shot brought the score to 3 to 1 and Manager Joe McCarthy's players nursed the lead to a 5 to 3 finish for the Americans' eighth triumph in the series.

It would have been 5 to 1 but for the rampaging of Vince DiMaggio, who didn't start the game, but got into it in time to belt a single, a triple, and a home run. He scored after the triple.

Cooper is probably convinced by now his forte is National league pitching. He was the loser in last year's All-Star game and failed to win either of his two starts in the last world series.

Boston fellows were chortling over the outcome. Boston home runs, each with two on, have won three of the last four All-Star games—Max West's in '40, Ted Williams' in '41, and Doerr's tonight.

Wildness Costly to Cooper.

Wildness helped Cooper over the ledge tonight. The near-capacity crowd of 31,938 watched the great St. Louis Cardinal right hander with obvious surprise as he walked Chet Laabs and Jake Early after retiring Dick Siebert in the decisive second inning. It seemed a natural penalty when Doerr followed up with a smash into the lower deck of the packed left field stands.

Doubles by Ken Keltner and Dick Wakefield produced a run for the Americans in the third and brought in Johnny VanderMeer ahead of schedule. Johnny pitched 2 2-3 innings in which he yielded two singles and struck out six. The one run off VanderMeer was unearned. Billy Herman's error allowed it to score.

Rip Sewell pitched one hitless inning and Al Javery struck out three in the seventh, yielding two singles in the two innings he performed.

The Nationals outhit the Americans 10 to 8. They also out-erred them, 3 to 1.

Hack Gets Three Hits.

The one run which Di Maggio did not produce for the Nationals got across on the first out of the game. Stan Hack and Herman singled and Hack scored on Stan Musial's long fly. Besides the three hits by Di Maggio and the three by Hack, Herman made two singles. Musial made a double and Walker Cooper a single.

Dutch Leonard, who worked the first three innings, and was the winning pitcher, yielded two singles. Hal Newhouser was touched for two singles and Musial's double. Di Maggio's triple and homer, two of Hack's singles, and one of Herman's were charged to Tex Hughson, who pitched the last three innings.

Hack Singles and Scores.

Gate receipts were $65,174, to which pool was added the $25,000 radio fee. The net profits from the game will go to the Ball and Bat fund, which provides all manner of baseball paraphernalia for service teams and recreational departments in the camps here and abroad.

At the start of the game the Nationals indicated they were fond of Leonard's stuff—but the fondness lasted only briefly. Hack opened the game with one of his bouncing specials over second base and galloped to third on Herman's single to left center. Musial's long fly to Laabs scored Hack. Then the Nationals' fun was curbed. Nicholson forced Herman, Siebert to Stephens, and Doerr tossed out Elbie Fletcher.

Case, first up for the Americans, was hit by a pitched ball, but Cooper steadied for the remainder of the opening inning. Keltner fanned, Wakefield forced Case, and Stephens grounded to Marion.

In the second the Nationals' offense had to be content with Marion

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 13.—Some of its famous sluggers of other years were missing. . . . It's pitching wasn't old time calibre. . . . But the American league tonight again proved it has what it takes to win baseball's greatest show by whipping the best the National league could assemble in the 11th annual All-Star game at Shibe park. . . . It was the Americans' eighth victory of the series and the third in a row. . . . As has happened several times in the past, it was power at bat that won for the Americans. . . . The National leaguers were blitzed in the second inning by Bobby Doerr's three run homer, a blow from which they never recovered. . . . While Doerr was the star of a game to which only stars are admitted, the National league had its share of individual glory. . . . Pitching from the mound once graced by Chief Bender, Jack Coombs, Eddie Plank, Rube Walberg, and Bob Grove of Philadelphia fame, Johnny Vander Meer of Cincinnati turned in a performance worthy of that glittering array. . . . Called upon to rescue Morton Cooper, who for the second year in a row failed as a starting pitcher, the Reds' famous southpaw struck out six of the 10 men who faced him. . . . His performance tonight coupled with his five strikeouts in last year's game earned him a tie with Dizzy Dean for the All-Star series' strikeout record. . . . Vince Di Maggio might have been the batting star of the contest instead of Doerr had the setting allowed. . . . He carried on the family's illustrious All-Star record by slamming a home run, a triple, and a single in three trips to the plate.

The American leaguers gave their usual pre-game demonstration of hitting power when Bob Johnson of the Senators dropped four straight into the upper deck of the left field stands. . . . Michael Mack, 86 year old brother of Connie Mack, baseball's most celebrated figure, was directing traffic at one of the entrances an hour before the lights went on. . . . Mike refers to his 80 year old brother as "the kid." . . . Ford Frick, president of the National league, was one of the first spectators to arrive. . . . He sat alongside the National league dugout with Bill Brandt and Leo Miller, president of the Syracuse club of the International league. . . . President Will Harridge of the American league had a box on the opposite side of the field. . . . The first page of the souvenir program was devoted to the origin of the All-Star game. . . . State's Attorney Tom Courtney of Chicago said there was at least one similarity between the original contest of 1933 and the eleventh of the series tonight: "Fans sweltered thru both games." . . . Most of the press box operators peeled down to their undershirts when the lights went on this evening. . . . Billy Herman of Brooklyn, who was participating in an All-Star game for the tenth time, a record shared only by Mel Ott of the Giants, had a batting record of .440 in the annual midsummer inter-league event. . . . No. 4 was the most popular numeral on the field. . . . It was worn by Luke Appling, Rudy York, Martin Marion, Bob Johnson and Ott. . . . The clouting honors for the All-Star series are held by Charley Gehringer of the Tigers with a mark of .500 for six games. . . . Frankie Frisch, Arky Vaughan and the late Lou Gehrig share home run laurels with two apiece. . . .

There were six Yankees and six Indians named to the All-Star squad, but only one—Ken Keltner of Cleveland—was among the American league starters. . . . This was the first time the Yankees failed to place a man in the opening lineup. . . . There were occasions when they almost comprised the American league team. . . . Al Schacht, baseball's No. 1 comedian, has lost none of his popularity judging from the applause he received for his pantomimes on the mound before the game. . . . Lt. Col. Larry MacPhail, former general manager of the Dodgers, was sent to the game by Undersecretary of War Robert J. Patterson to express to Commissioner Landis, Presidents Frick and Harridge the appreciation of the war department for baseball's contribution in the form of the baseball equipment fund and the various war relief activities. . . . The right field foul line marker in Shibe park is 331 feet from home plate and the left field 334 feet. . . . The green turf on the infield was in sharp

Cubs Defeat Soldiers, 11-0, in Kentucky

Camp Campbell, Ky., July 13 [Special].—The Chicago Cubs gave 10,000 soldier fans a look at big league baseball today and at the same time defeated the Camp Campbell All-Stars, 11 to 0.

Paul Errickson pitched eight innings for the Cubs and Lon Warneke took over in the ninth. Chico Hernandez, Chicago's catcher, hit a home run and Lou Novikoff presented a few clowning acts to help entertain the men in khaki. Kiki Cuyler, acting manager of the Cubs, inserted himself in the lineup as a pinch hitter in the ninth and singled to score a run. Score:

IOWA, MICHIGAN STATE PLAYERS JOIN ALL-STARS

Penaluna and Fenton to Face Pro Champions.

Since Fenton is experienced at right half, nominally a position which accents blocking rather than ball carrying, he will not necessarily compete with such All-Star backs as Otto Graham of Northwestern, Bob Steuber of Missouri, and Charles Trippi of Georgia for a berth on the starting college eleven. Men seeking the All-Star right half spot, in addition to Fenton, are Steve Juzwik of Notre Dame and Steve Lach of Duke.

Played Drums, Too.

Fenton lives on a farm near Richmond, Mich., and he attended high school in that community before entering Michigan State. He is 24 years of age, weighs 180 pounds, and is 6 feet tall. While he also plays baseball and has competed in track, he did not win letters in these sports at East Lansing. He worked his way thru the state college, where he majored in physical education, and in his spare moments pursued his musical hobby of playing the drums.

In his sophomore season Jack ran 75 yards in the game with the University of Michigan.

"This was my greatest thrill in football," Fenton wrote in accepting an invitation to play against the Redskins. Then, he added, "But it will be second in my mind after the charity game next month."

Capacity Crowd Assured.

A capacity crowd of 50,000 apparently is assured for the 10th All-Star game. Two sections of tickets, the $6.60 and $2.20 groups, have been sold. Tickets still may be obtained, however, in the $4.40 section in the permanent stands and in the $3.30 bleacher sections at each end of the gridiron. These bleachers seats are only 10 yards from the end lines and are better locations than the same priced ticket was in Soldiers' field where only 22,000 seats were located between the goal lines.

Mail orders should be sent to All-Star Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower. Tickets also may be purchased at the Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street and in the lobby of Tribune Tower.

GOLD CROWNS, ROCKOLAS AND PARICHYS WIN

Shirley Dresander pitched the Gold Crowns to a 9 to 1 victory over the Rheingolds last night in Rheingold stadium in a Metropolitan Chicago Girls Major softball league game. The defeat dropped the Rheingolds into a tie for third place with the Parichy Bloomer Girls who beat the Tungsten Sparks, 3 to 1, on Lefty Schalk's five hit pitching in Parichy stadium. The Rockolas defeated the Benda Coals Coeds, 9 to 1, in Rockola stadium. Tonight's schedule:

Parichy Bloomer Girls vs. Gold Crowns in Shewbridge field, 74th and Aberdeen streets; Rheingolds vs. Rockolas in Rockola stadium, 4200 North Central avenue and Tungsten Sparks vs. Benda Coals Coeds in Rheingold stadium, 75th street and Euclid avenue.

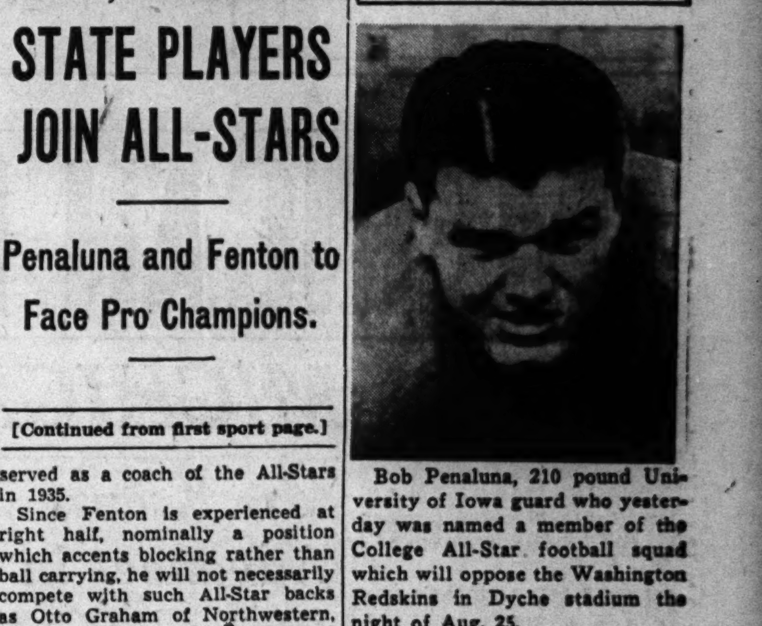
Maxie Shapiro Defeats Chester Rico in 8 Rounds

New York, July 13 [Special].—Maxie Shapiro, 136, east side, defeated Chester Rico, 135, Bronx, in the eight round feature bout at the Queensboro arena before 4,000. There were no knockdowns. The referee was Eddie Joseph and the judges Marty Monroe and Sam Austin.

Fort Sheridan to Play Bendas Again Tonight

The Fort Sheridan baseball players will receive their fourth and last opportunity to defeat the Benda Coals this season when they meet the Berwyn team in a twilight game tonight on the parade grounds at Fort Sheridan.

Bolsters All-Stars



Bob Penaluna, 210 pound University of Iowa guard who yesterday was named a member of the College All-Star football squad which will oppose the Washington Redskins in Dyche stadium the night of Aug. 25.

Senators Win Fight for More Night Games

Philadelphia, Pa., July 13 [Special].—Day baseball will be a novelty from now on in Washington. In a special joint American and National league meeting, the Senators today were granted permission to play all their remaining home games, except Sunday and holiday, at twilight or night.

Clark Griffith, Senator's president, who had sought such permission at last winter's meetings but had been denied, announced that today's action makes it possible for his club to play 26 games in twilight or under arc lights. It swells to 38 the total of such games in Washington for 1943.

Aids Government Workers.

The sun dodging Senators received permission last winter to play 21 night games, while other clubs were limited to 14. The Senators have used up 12 of these dates. Thus, with nine remaining, 17 added today and 12 already played, they will have played 37 of their 77 home games in the dusk or after dark when the season is ended.

Griffith today showed evidence that official pressure had been brought to bear on him unofficially by government department heads to arrange later starting times for the recreation of the hundreds of thousands of war workers in the nation's capital.

Luke Sewell Apologizes.

During the 45 minute meeting the leagues voted to turn all receipts from the July 28 series of relief games over to the War Relief and Service Fund, Inc., the newly formed non-profit charitable group organized by baseball for war relief. The money will be given to the Red Cross. However, if it is in excess of the money raised in the June 30 games, half of the excess will be given to the National War Fund, the beneficiaries of the first series.

Earlier in the afternoon, the American league met and approved Dec. 1 as its winter meeting date and accepted Luke Sewell's apology for remarks the Browns' manager made about umpires being prejudiced in favor of the Yankees.

BETTY HICKS TO BECOME SPAR RECRUIT TODAY

Elizabeth [Betty] Hicks, former national women's golf champion, will be sworn into the SPARS today at 1 p. m. at the recruiting office at 53 West Jackson boulevard. The 23 year old Long Beach, Cal., girl will be sworn in by Capt. Thomas Shanley, district coast guard recruiting officer. Miss Hicks will represent the coast guard in the All-American tournament at the Tam o'Shanter Country club, starting next Monday.

AMERICANS WIN FROM NATIONAL ALL-STARS, 5-3

Doerr Smashes a 3 Run Homer Off M. Cooper.

Siebert flied to H. Walker at the start of the eventful second inning. Then Cooper walked Laabs and Early, each after a three and two count. It was at this juncture that Doerr stepped up and drove the ball into the lower left field stands for three runs. Leonard dropped a single into right field, but Case grounded into a double play, Hack to Herman to Fletcher.

Leonard disposed of Hack, Herman, and Musial in order in the first of the third, after which the Americans stepped out in their half for another run before Vander Meer called a halt with his strikeout ball. Keltner opened the Americans' half with a double to center and scored on Wakefield's double to left. Vander Meer replaced M. Cooper and York batted for Siebert. York struck out on three pitches and Laabs also whiffed.

Newhouser replaced Leonard at the start of the fourth inning, and after Nicholson and Fletcher flied out W. Cooper and Di Maggio singled. The threat halted when Marion forced Di Maggio.

Johnny Mows 'Em Down.

Early made it three strikeouts in a row for Vander Meer when he was called out on strikes at the start of the Americans' fourth. Doerr singled to left, but Newhouser bunted into a double play started by Vander Meer.

The Nationals went out in order in the fifth but the Americans grabbed themselves a run in their half, even tho Vander Meer struck out the side. Case walked and Keltner and Wakefield fanned. Stephens singled, putting Case on third. W. Cooper had a steal broken up but Herman, after taking a throw from W. Cooper, made a short return throw to the plate. The ball bounded to the screen on Herman's error, Case scoring an unearned run and Stephens reaching third. York then executed his second strikeout.

Musial opened the sixth inning with a double and Nicholson walked. Dahlgren batted for Fletcher, but bounced into a double play. Ernie Lombardi batted for W. Cooper and flied to Laabs.

Nationals Pound Hughson.

Sewell pitched the sixth inning for the Nationals and held the Americans hitless. Laabs was safe on Hack's error and moved over on Early's sacrifice, but Doerr and Jeff Heath, who batted for Newhouser, were easy for Rip.

The Nationals opened against Hughson in the seventh with Di Maggio's triple. Mel Ott fanned, but Dixie Walker batted for Sewell and scored Di Maggio with a fly to Wakefield. Javery struck out Case and Keltner in the Americans' seventh. Wakefield singled but Stephens struck out.

Hughson retired the side in order in the eighth. York singled in the Americans' half, but a double play and Doerr's fly prevented a scoring threat.

Di Maggio opened the ninth with his homer and third hit of the game. Miller struck out and Lonnie Frey, batting for Javery, flied out. Hack singled to right, his third and the Nationals' 10th hit. Then Herman ended the game with a liner to Wakefield.

THE GUMPS—(SELF) LOVE IS BLIND

DICK TRACY—GLAMOR BOY

IN THE WAKE OF THE NEWS—By Arch Ward

contrast to the skinned diamond at Sportsman's park in St. Louis for the 1942 world series. . . . The only bare patch on Shibe park's infield has been painted green. . . . Morton Cooper had to pitch with a blister on the second finger of his right hand, the result of a burn from a lighted match in his hotel this afternoon. . . .

Dick Seibert, only Philadelphia player to get into the starting lineup, drew the biggest hand of the evening when he stepped to the plate to start the Americans' half of the second inning. Bobby Doerr of the Red Sox will remember his first All-Star hit. . . . It was a three run homer in the second inning into the left stands. . . . He went hitless in three trips to the plate last year.

Our vote for the most humid spot in the world is the Alpine press box in Shibe park, where the 11th annual All-Star game was played tonight. . . . But it is reached by an elevator. . . . Regular inmates say it frequently hits 115 degrees at their typewriter keyboards on a good bright afternoon. . . . Nothing like that tonight, however. . . . Cubs on the All-Star squad for the last three years have been shy and self-conscious, but tonight they went right out and mingled with the men. . . . Reason: Those pantywaist uniforms are gone forever. . . . Down in Missouri where the Cooper boys were born and brought up they are probably recalling that in high school Morton was the catcher and Walker was the pitcher. . . . It is said that is the favorite reminiscence about the great brother battery whenever they are mentioned, and there's never a day they aren't mentioned. . . . Bill Nicholson's 350 pound brother, Lawrence, otherwise know as "My Brother Sylvess," came up from nearby Maryland to see his little brother perform for the National All-Stars. . . . We can't believe you have forgotten about Lawrence. . . . He's the strong man, three times as strong as muscular Bill. . . . You remember, can pick up a Ford motor and toss it in a truck. . . . Also can pick up two bags of fertilizer. . . . Most gents can't handle one. . . . Jimmy Conzelman, newly appointed assistant to the president of the St. Louis Browns, and his boss, Don Barnes, put on a cocktail party late this afternoon at their hotel suite. . . . Among the absentees was Joe McCarthy, who still is chafing over Luke Sewell's charge that American league umpires give the Yankees all the breaks. . . .

Missing from the press box tonight was Charles Wilberforce Dunkley, Chicago sports editor of the Associated Press. . . . At previous All-Star games and world series, too, it has been Mr. Dunkley's specialty to ask the players their little confidences in the relaxation of the respective bathhouses. . . . In Detroit two years ago Mr. D. was in the National league clubhouse waiting for the arrival of Arky Vaughan, whose two home runs apparently had won the game for the Nationals. . . . A little radio nearby boomed that Ted Williams of the Red Sox had busted up the game with a drive into the right field stand. . . . "My heavens," screamed Charles, "I'm in the wrong bathhouse." . . . Eventually he arrived at the right spot in a crush of American leaguers, panting but happy as he watched the boys undress and took notes of their robust comment. . . . President P. K. Wrigley and General Manager James T. Gallagher of the Cubs have been inseparable pals the last few days. . . . Field Manager Jim Wilson called on them in their suite last night. . . . How would we know what they talked about? . . . There was a scuffle in the stands behind first base before game time and hundreds tried to crowd around the scene, thinking, no doubt, that Henry Wallace and Jess Jones had come up from Washington, but it turned out to be two fans who fight with their fists. . . . Many say the three most dramatic highlights of the All-Star series were Babe Ruth's homer which won the first game, Carl Hubbell's five straight strike outs in the 1934 contest, and Ted Williams' three run home run in 1941. . . . Ruth, Williams, and Hubbell were not on the field tonight, tho Hubbell was eligible. . . . The Cubs have knocked him out twice, however, and that's pretty tough on any pitcher's standing. . . .

Catchers are generally the slowest animals afoot, but Mickey Owen, who is pretty rapid himself, for a catcher, will bet that Walker Cooper can outrun anybody in the National league at a full 100 yards, tho there are several who have beaten him at 50 and 60 yards. . . . Augie Galan was making his second appearance on an All-Star squad tonight. . . . As a personal nominee of Charley Grimm, manager of the 1936 National team, Augie slammed a homer which gave the National league its first victory in the series. . . . Taxicabs would not take loads to Shibe park. . . . A drug store two blocks away, however, had a big carriage trade, altho there was no perceptible boom in the sale of drug sundries. . . . Claude Passeau, loser of the 1941 game, the pitcher who tossed the historic home run ball to Ted Williams, was here tonight. . . . But not so the winner in that contest, Eddie Smith of the White Sox, now under suspension until such time as his abdomen curves less. . . . Bill Brandt, National league press agent, has been in a terrible dither about his mimeographed sheets showing the batting averages of the several players on the National league squad. . . . Moaned Bill: "I took the semi-official figures of last Friday, thinking there would be a change of only a point or two. . . . I put Lombardi down at .279 and the guy goes crazy against the Cubs and raises his season mark to .326."

Ten Years Ago Today—Mr. Khayyam and Gold Basis were 4 to 1 favorites to capture the rich Arlington Park Classic. . . . Walter Miller held the league leading Washington Senators to three hits as the White Sox won, 4 to 0. . . . The Brooklyn Dodgers snapped the Cubs' eight game winning streak with a 5 to 3 victory over the Chicagoans.

IT JUST WASN'T THE RIGHT NIGHT FOR COOPER BOYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., July 13.—It was a rough evening for the famous Cooper brothers—Morton and Cooper—in the major league's All-Star game tonight.

Morton, victim of Bobby Doerr's three run homer, was the losing pitcher for the second straight year. Walker's left leg was cut and bruised when George Case slid into home safely in the fifth inning. Walker finished the inning, but gave way to Ernie Lombardi in the sixth.

St. Louis Cardinals Top Boston Coast Guard, 6-3

Providence, R. I., July 13 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals, their line-up depleted by the absence of regulars performing in the All-Star game, defeated the Boston Coast Guard baseball team, 6 to 3, today at Brown university's Aldrich field.

Sore Arm Benches Cards' Ernie White Indefinitely

St. Louis, Mo., July 13 (AP).—Cardinal Southpaw Ernie White, who returned to St. Louis from Boston to have his ailing arm examined, has bursitis in his left shoulder. Dr. Robert Hyland, club physician, said White would be out indefinitely.

WRESTLING AND BOXING BOUTS CARDED TONIGHT

Spencer and Carson Top St. Philip's Attraction.

A professional boxing show will be held tonight in St. Philip's stadium, Van Buren street and Kedzie avenue, and wrestling shows will be offered in Rainbo Fronton, 4836 North Clark street, and Miami Beach arena, Roosevelt road and 61st court.

The fight card, sponsored by the 20th Ward club, will be featured by an eight round contest between Gene Spencer, South Chicago lightweight, and Eddie [Kid] Carson of the south side. Other matches will bring together Jack Hill, Bloomington, Ill., light heavyweight, and Mike Edwards; Andy Canal, Chicago lightweight, and Jesse Yarber; Gene Ward, local welterweight, and Jerry Pittro, and Mickey McKiness, St. Charles, Ill., 147 pounder, and Isadore Miner.

The mat program in the Fronton will be topped by events involving Art Van Saxon and Ignacio Martinez, and Gordon Hessel and Eddie [Bad Man] Lewis. Pvt. Tex Riley of Camp McCoy, Wis., is paired with Earl Malone.

Charles [Gorilla] Grubmyer and Frankie Hart will be principals in the windup bout of the show in the Miami Beach club. An Australian tag team match will pit Jack Zeravich and Nick Elitch against Charley Peterson and Ned Taylor.

Tommy James, who knocked out Robert Simmons recently, will meet the Indianapolis welterweight in an eight round return bout in Marigold Gardens Monday. Freddy Dawson and Roy Lewis are matched in an additional eight round contest on the card. . . . Larry Amadee, Chicago fight trainer, is in New York supervising the training of Beau Jack for the latter's encounter with Johnny Hutchinson in Philadelphia Monday.

Coast Guard Dolphins Lose to Giants, 3 to 2

New London, Conn., July 13 (AP).—The coast guard Dolphins were defeated today by the New York Giants, 3 to 2, in an exhibition game witnessed by 2,500 service men.

Alex Badal Advances in Midwest Golf

Alex Badal, home club champion, yesterday defeated John Hernandez of Elgin, winner of Monday's qualifying medal, in the first round of match play in the 16th annual Midwest Amateur golf tournament over the Waveland avenue course in Lincoln park. Badal, who had a medal card of 78, was three up at the turn. A belated rally by Hernandez fell short on the 18th tee, where he struck a tree to lose the hole and the match.

The second round in all flights will be held today. Saturday's championship match is scheduled for 36 holes. Other first round results yesterday follow:

Walter Haefner, Lincoln park, beat Al Greene, Lincoln park, 4 and 3; Ed Wiech, Columbus park, beat Hal Whiteway, Columbus park, 5 and 4; Sgt. They've Got the Victory Glint in Their Eyes

. . . and a Cheerful State of Mind to Meet Every Hardship

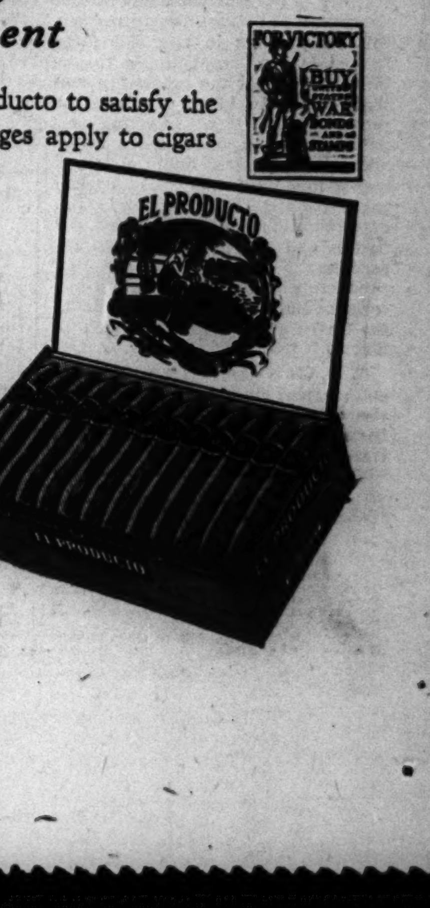
EL PRODUCTO CIGARS
for real enjoyment

WE WOULD like to make enough El Producto to satisfy the demands everywhere. But wartime shortages apply to cigars as well as other products and the lads in the Services rate their full share of good smoking.

Don't let it get you down if you cannot always find the El Producto shape you want at the first cigar counter. But you can bank on one thing—every El Producto you do smoke will give you the same fine quality of tobaccos and workmanship that has made El Producto's reputation.



Yes, sir—you will enjoy El Producto all the way, right down to the fingertips. Its economy is as real as its enjoyment.

PAROLEE HELD AS MURDERER OF 'WRONG' GIRL

Hint He Knew Identity of His Victim.

BY HARRY McCLAIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Mount Vernon, Ill., July 13.—Robert Vanatta, 18 years old, self-styled "revenge kid," was held without bail today for grand jury action on a charge of murder in the slaying of Norma Geraldine Bradford, 21, a waitress.

Police Magistrate A. D. Webb went to the county jail and conducted the hearing in Robert's third floor cell. The boy had nothing to say except to indicate he would waive preliminary hearing.

It is expected the court will appoint counsel for the defendant for he does not have an attorney and his father, John Vanatta, said he "didn't see why he should get any; it wouldn't do any good anyway."

"Just Got Wrong One."

The young confessed killer, who is a parolee from the Illinois State Training School for Boys, was lying in his cell reading a prayer book given him by a Mount Vernon minister when Mrs. Mary Newton, sister of the slain girl, visited him today.

"Why did you do it?" she beseeched him.

Robert shrugged his shoulders and replied:

"I just got the wrong one."

His father, who also visited him, asked: "What do you think they'll do to you?"

"I don't give a damn," his son replied.

Think He Knew Victim.

Robert told police, in his signed confession, that he had mistaken Miss Bradford, a neighbor, for his stepmother, Mrs. Frances Vanatta, when he shot her from ambush on a dark street near their homes Sunday night.

Today, however, contradictory beliefs were expressed concerning the boy's intentions. Officials who declined to permit use of their names said they believed Robert was fully aware of his victim's identity before he fired the first of four shots and said he knew members of the Bradford family well.

CHILD, 5, KILLED AND 8 INJURED AS AUTOS CRASH

Curtis Gifford, 5 years old, was killed and eight persons were injured last night when a car driven by his father, Bogus Gifford, 13413 Indiana avenue, collided with a car driven by Albert Yardeen, 32 years old, 13448 California avenue, Blue Island, on the 147th street bridge over the Calumet river in Thornton township. Gifford told police he lost control as the car struck a depression in the pavement.

Paul Balas, 28 years old, 4214 Tod avenue, East Chicago, Ind., was killed yesterday when the truck in which he was riding overturned on Route 2 near South Bend. The truck upset when its driver steered away from a collision.

Donald Wagner, 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wagner, 74 Bluff street, La Grange, who fell into 15 feet of water in Cedar lake, south of Crown Point, Ind.

Jane Napowicki, 13, of 3930 Butternut street, East Chicago, Ind., who drowned in the Washington park swimming pool in East Chicago.

The body of Daniel Donahue, 8, of 4145 Ozark avenue, Norwood Park township, was recovered from a clayhole near Montrose and Harlem avenues, Norwood Park township.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

Corporate Analysts.

In the price adjustment officer procurement program of the war department, places are open for certified public accountants, graduates from recognized schools of business, or senior and supervising accountants in public or private accounting firms, teachers of higher accountancy, and financial analysts in investment banking houses. Applicants must be over 38 years of age and must have had 10 or more years of recent experience in the general field of higher accountancy and analysis.

Selected candidates will be held responsible for the examination, condensation, and analyses of financial information provided by contractors to the war department. The analysts will be required to present this information in specified form to enable the renegotiator to determine whether the prevailing contract rates should be continued or renegotiated. Men receiving appointments will be required to investigate complex financial statements involving analysis of operating costs and capital accounts and determination of legitimate cost figures and just profits, taking into account the various factors affecting production and procurement of materials. Inquiring may be made at the Chicago Procurement District office, 20 North Wacker drive.

C. D. R. writes: "I am 26 years old, married since Sept. 28, 1940, and the father of a 22 months old boy born three months before Pearl Harbor. Up until a short time ago, I was employed as an accountant for a construction company. When work was completed, I was released without notice. I turned down several lucrative but nonessential jobs to accept a job with the army air corps as an auditor, but to accept this jobs, I had to leave my wife and baby in Chicago. I've just received a notice of preliminary physical examination, and the draft board told me they were going to reclassify me because 'I was not maintaining a bona fide family relationship in my home with my child, etc.' I have not been able to find suitable quarters here as housing is at a premium. Can they really reclassify me on this grounds?"

ANSWER: Your draft board could not reclassify you if you can establish the fact you are not living with your family because of the lack of housing facilities in your new location, and the separation from your wife and child is "temporary." If you should be reclassified to 1-A appeal your classification at once.

K. C. R. asks: "What does S-1, S-2, S-3, S-4, etc. mean?"

ANSWER: These are army air force designations for personnel, intelligence, plans and training, supply, etc.

27 CHICAGO AIDS OF OWI TO CLOSE SHOP TOMORROW

Typewriters which milled out thousands of press releases for government war agencies will be stilled officially tomorrow in the Chicago headquarters of the office of war information. Actually the typewriters have observed a funereal silence since July 1 when congress eliminated OWI's field service branch.

Disbanding of the office will send 27 employes of the branch in four midwestern states to new jobs — many with other government agencies, J. F. W. Hopkins, assistant regional OWI director, said yesterday.

War agencies formerly served by OWI are establishing or reconstructing their own information branches and have taken their share of the OWI files. An extensive card index file to pertinent information about governmental affairs and agencies will be appropriated by the office of emergency management which will attempt to answer the public's inquiries about the federal government.

CAPT. M'DONOUGH DIES; 9TH VICTIM OF TRAGIC FIRE

Capt. Matthew McDonough, 37 years old, of 1624 North Monticello avenue, died yesterday in Henrotin hospital of injuries suffered in the fire at 419 West Superior street last Friday. Capt. McDonough, who leaves a widow and three children, was the ninth fire department victim claimed by the blaze.

Mass will be said for him at 10 a. m. Friday in the Maternity B. V. M. church, North and Monticello avenues.

Three of the eight other casualties were buried yesterday. They were Lt. Edward J. Moffett, 3043 North Mason street; Capt. Henry Wurthmann, 5635 North Mason street, and Fireman Thomas McCarthy, 1917 Erie street. The honor guards participating in the services were representatives of the victims' fire companies.

Joseph Grossman, first assistant corporation counsel, said yesterday the city law department still is investigating the fire.

ATTACKER GETS 2 TO 5 YEARS FOR HARMING WOMAN

Sol Shapiro, 33 years old, who lived at 4343 North Pulaski road when arrested last May and accused by a young married woman, pleaded guilty yesterday to two charges of crime against nature and robbery. He was sentenced to prison for 2 to 5 years on recommendation of Assistant State's Atty. Edward Healy, who said the complainant wished to be spared a court appearance. By stipulation of Healy and George Crane, defense attorney, the evidence was submitted in Criminal court to Judge Harold G. Ward, who imposed sentence as recommended. Shapiro, a married drapery salesman, was charged with forcing the young woman into his automobile by pretending he was armed and mistreating her while the car was parked under the "L" structure at North Campbell avenue.

DRIVE FOR 'JUST PEACE' ORDERED BY METHODISTS

The Methodist council of bishops meeting in the La Salle hotel last night called on its 42,000 member churches in the United States to hold a crusade next Jan. 9 to 30 to "develop Christian opinion for a just peace" and "a post-war world organized on coöperative principles."

Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, retired, was named acting resident bishop of the Washington, D. C., area to fill the unexpired term of the late Bishop Adna W. Leonard, who was killed last May while on a tour of army bases in Europe.

Dutch Sub in Java Sea Battle Joins Atlantic War

LONDON, July 14 [Wednesday] (AP).—A Dutch submarine which braved a Japanese force of three destroyers, two corvettes, two planes, and one cruiser to torpedo a 14,000-ton tanker in the Java sea more than a year ago has arrived in Britain. Damaged, the submarine sailed around Africa to the United States for refitting and now is back in the war—this time in the Atlantic.

SPINSTER SUES FOR SHARE OF STEVENS ESTATE

Miss Laura Doll, 35 years old, charged yesterday in a suit filed in Circuit court that she was cut off without a cent in the will of Charles T. Stevens, retired business man of Bloomington, Ill., in violation of an agreement made in 1934, under which she was to receive $1,000 a year for serving as his companion, messenger, and chauffeur.

Stevens, a widower, died March 10 at the age of 85 in the Ravenswood hospital. His will left the bulk of his estate to a niece, Mrs. Ruby Longly of Chicago, and a nephew, Dr. B. L. Stevens of Bloomington. They and the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, executor, were named defendants in Miss Doll's suit, filed by Atty. Ruel H. Grunewald.

Miss Doll, who lives at 1062 Thorndale avenue, asserted in the suit that Stevens drew codicils to a series of wills, carrying out his agreement to leave her a bequest in accordance with their agreement. On the day before his death, however, he drew a new will, which left her out, according to the suit.

GRAND THEATER ATTENDANT FOR 43 YEARS IS DEAD

Funeral services for William F. Robinson, Negro utility man at the Grand theater for 43 years, who had known most of the celebrities of the legitimate stage for nearly half a century, will be held at 8 p. m. tomorrow at 3800 South Michigan avenue. He died of pneumonia on Sunday in County hospital.

Robinson was the first Negro player on the Detroit Athletic Club baseball team in the '90s, his cronies said. In 1900 he was hired by the late John A. Hamlin, who made a fortune in the patent medicine business, and who built Hamlin's theater in 1872, amid the ruins of the fire of 1871. Later Hamlin renamed it the Chicago Grand Opera house.

SEIZE SAILOR, 20, IN SLAYING OF 2 NORFOLK POLICE

Norfolk, Va., July 13 (AP).—Paul N. Deadwiley, 20 years old, aviation radioman 2d class, U. S. N., who had been sought on warrants charging him with slaying two Norfolk policemen today in a gun battle, was arrested shortly before 5 p. m. in a drugstore.

Detective Lt. H. L. Dickens said Deadwiley, who was apprehended without a struggle by navy shore patrolmen and Norfolk patrolmen, had a bullet wound in the arm.

Dickens reported the sailor's wife, Sue, was with him when he was apprehended and was being detained for questioning. Deadwiley's home town was listed as Duncan, Okla.

PAPER AND BAG FAMINE LAID TO PULP BUNGLING

Labor Loss in Draft Hit by Dealers.

Shortage of pulpwood because of the blundering of New Deal agencies already has curtailed the production of kraft paper so radically that leaders of the industry here yesterday declared stores and shops of the nation will be without paper bags and wrapping paper in less than six months unless corrective steps are taken now.

W. E. Beier of Beier & Co., which supplies a large percentage of the paper used by State street department stores, declared he had orders calling for more than 100,000 pounds of kraft paper which he cannot fill because the mills cannot supply the paper.

W. J. Henry Sr. of the Southern Advance Bag and Paper company, which provide a large part of the paper bags used in groceries, declared that unless steps are taken now, it is only a question of a few months until customers will have to carry home all their purchases in their pockets or provide their own wrapping.

Under WPB Control.

On June 29 all wood pulp was placed under control of the war production board, and industry leaders are anticipating an order from Washington within the next 10 days greatly curtailing civilian paper supplies because of the reduced production of pulpwood.

"We still have as many trees as ever," Henry declared. "Production is down because there are no workers to cut the trees. Mills have been forced to shut down frequently for varying periods because they had no pulpwood. But even with this reduced tonnage, if it were properly distributed, I believe we would still have sufficient paper for all needs. That is, provided, of course, the government does not over-buy as it has so frequently in the past."

"The shortage of pulpwood was occasioned by the blunders made by the selective service administration and the man power commission in taking an unwarranted number of men, critically needed for pulpwood cutting, from the forests in 1942," declared one industry leader. "All during 1942 the paper and lumber industries tried futilely to have paper and lumber declared essential. Now, in mid 1943, both pulp and lumber are declared essential too late, for both face irreparable shortages for the duration."

Supply Goes Overseas.

The anticipated government order curtailing the supply of paper for civilian purposes is due largely to the increased use of paper for waterproof wrapping of shipments overseas to the army and allies. Much of this is in the form of asphalt laminated paper, which protects machinery, food and other products. There is increased production also in the new "V" box which is waterproof, and in four-thickness shipping sacks.

Industry leaders declare at least 20,000 men are needed to provide sufficient pulpwood to meet war and civilian demands. Kraft paper mills in the south, which provide 70 per cent of the nation's kraft paper, are particularly hard hit because many of their workers have gone to war plants at higher wages. Under southern operation methods the mills maintained few or no stockpiles.

Feel Labor Pinch.

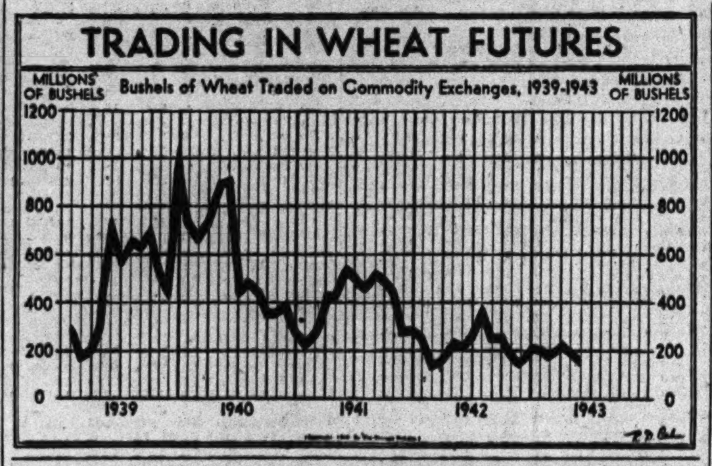
Northern plants that get most of their pulpwood in winter months and season it for a year, thus being forced to build up larger reserves, are now feeling the effects of the withdrawal by the army and navy of 1,650,000 workers from the fields and forests of their section in 1942.

"We are betting our wood pile that the war will be over in eight months," the official of one company declared. "Unless we win the war in that time we will be out of business."

Leaders point to the consumption of a pound of paper a month by every man, woman and child in the United States in 1937 to show its importance in industry and civilian life.

Rail Pay Hike Still Being Studied, Says President

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—President Roosevelt told reporters today the proposed increase in wages for about a million nonoperating railroad employes is still being studied. A special board recommended an 8 cents an hour raise, but Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson turned it down.



British Power Over Industry Demonstrated

BY JOSEPH CERUTTI.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 13.—The British government's powers in the control of industry were demonstrated today when it was announced that J. Arthur Rank, chairman of two leading British cinema companies and various other movie enterprises capitalized at 100 million dollars, had promised the government not to extend his interests without government consent.

Principal stockholders in the 72 million dollar Associated British Picture corporation, Rank's only rivals, meanwhile have pledged not to dispose of their holdings without first consulting the government.

Use of Power Is Surprise.

These disclosures by Hugh Dalton, president of the board of trade, came as a surprise to the movie industry, and were taken to indicate the government was so powerful that even big business hesitated to challenge its wishes. Dalton explained that his request to the motion picture producers was motivated by government objections to "the creation of anything like a monopoly at any stage in the film industry."

Had the request been opposed, Dalton could have used his authority under the emergency powers act to forbid Rank or any other person in this country from engaging in transactions considered contrary to the public good.

Expect Unions to Approve.

Success of the government "velvet glove" tactics was expected to win approval of the trades union congress, which had looked askance on Rank's activities. His control of British film making and of 600 movie houses, plus his chairmanship of General Film Distributors, and his grip on two big manufacturers of movie equipment, had aroused serious apprehension in labor organizations that eventually he would be able to dictate completely working conditions and wages in the industry.

The official move also delayed until after the war a prospective battle between Rank and the Associated British Picture corporation for movie dominance.

Rank is a son of Joseph G. Rank, flour millionaire and race horse owner. He first became commercially interested in films about 10 years ago.

BRITISH GROUPS MOVE TO BOOST RUSSIAN TRADE

LONDON, July 13. — Acting entirely independent of the government but along lines indicated in the Anglo-Russian treaty alliance of 1942 pledging closer economic ties, a variety of business interests in the united kingdom are planning to organize a coöperative trading association in order to compete with the United States, possibly Germany, and other countries for a share of the commerce with the soviets after the war.

Altho the projected organization, the sponsors of which hope to coördinate all branches of British industry, would be democratic in its organization, its sponsors said, it would be its aim to achieve some of the "advantages" of state planning.

A statement, issued today by the Freeman Norfolk company, Ltd., acting as temporary secretary of the projected trade organization, noted that in Russia foreign trade is a state monopoly.

220 MILE PIPE LINE TO TOLEDO BEGUN BY SINCLAIR REFINING CO.

The Sinclair Refining company announced in New York yesterday that it has started construction of a new 220-mile petroleum products pipe line from Chicago to Toledo, O. The company said it would speed up and reduce costs on eastbound shipments of more than 30,000 barrels of gasoline and light heating oil.

The cost of the project, including seven pump stations, is estimated at 4½ million dollars.

The company said that tankers and barges would carry the products to Buffalo and other points, cutting 700 miles from the present water route around the Michigan peninsula. Completion is expected in October. The Sinclair company said the line is being built with reclaimed material.

Ship Builder Is Indicted on Fraud Charge

New York, July 13 (AP).—A federal grand jury has indicted the Sullivan Dry Dock and Repair corporation of Brooklyn and five officers and employes on charges of fraud and submitting false claims in construction and repair of vessels for the navy and maritime commission, Atty. Gen. Francis Biddle announced today.

At the same time, Biddle said, United States Atty. Harold M. Kennedy filed a civil suit to recover penalties and double the amount of overcharges alleged in the indictment. Kennedy did not enlarge on Biddle's statement, and the company had no comment.

Biddle said the men named in the indictment were Anthony J. McAllister, Herbert Krauss, and William Watson, each a vice president and director of the company; Walter Krauss, treasurer and a director, and Leslie H. Finlay, an administrative employe.

The five count indictment came after an investigation by the federal bureau of investigation, Biddle said. He added that there was no accurate estimate of alleged overcharges, but that the FBI investigation indicated more than $100,000 was involved.

The company shipyard and dry dock in Tebo basin, Brooklyn, has been building PC boats [submarine chasers] for the navy and altering, repairing, and converting ships for the army, navy, and maritime commission on negotiated contracts and the cost-plus system.

Biddle said the indictment charged a conspiracy in which Walter Krauss, Watson, and McAllister allegedly voted "large and excessive salaries and bonuses and other compensation" to Herbert Krauss, Watson, Finlay, and others who were named as co-conspirators, but not indicted.

People and Events

David Mayer, chairman of the State Street council, will speak tonight at a dinner meeting of the newly formed South State Street Merchants' association in the Standard club. Representatives of Chicago civic and business groups are expected to attend.

The nine directors of Phillip Morris & Co., Ltd., were reëlected at a meeting of stockholders in Richmond, Va.

Use Short Cut to Rubber in Indiana Plant

Lawrenceburg, Ind., July 13 [Special].—A short cut process for making butadiene, principal ingredient used in the manufacture of synthetic rubber, was demonstrated publicly for the first time today at the Lawrenceburg pilot plant, recently completed by Schenley Distillers corporation.

The short cut process eliminates the need for converting grain into alcohol, a step that is necessary under methods applied in making a large part of the butadiene used in synthetic rubber, said Dr. A. J. Liebman, director of Schenley Research institute. The institute worked with the Peoria, Ill., research laboratory of the United States department of agriculture in making new contributions to the process after it had been studied first by Iowa State college, Ames, Ia.

Termed Biggest of Kind.

As a result of the coöperative work and of additional research initiated by the Schenley institute in Lawrenceburg, Schenley built the pilot plant, said to be the largest of its kind in the nation. By the short cut process grain is converted first into butanediol and then into butadiene. Synthetic rubber producers make the butadiene into rubber.

The pilot plant has a mashing capacity of 450 bushels of grain every three days, or enough to make 2,430 pounds of butadiene. Grain is ground into meal and dumped into mash tubs, mixed with water, and cooked. The cooked material, called grain starch or grain sugar, next is put in a fermenter and special bacteria are introduced. The bacteria change the grain starches into a form from which butanediol is extracted by a cracking process.

Lack of Speed Hurdled.

Dr. Liebmann said that lack of fast and efficient methods of making butadiene had been one of the main obstacles to the government's effort to get the synthetic rubber program in full swing.

"But American industry and research scientists have made big strides toward banishing the possibility that this nation ever again will be without the rubber which is essential both for winning the war and the continuance of our highly mechanized civilization," he said.

I. C. ASKS PART OF COLLATERAL BACK FROM RFC

The Illinois Central railroad, having repaid nearly half of its Reconstruction Finance corporation borrowings thru higher earnings resulting from war time traffic increases, yesterday sought the return of part of the collateral securing the government loans.

The road notified the interstate commerce commission that it would ask the RFC for the return of $81,828,884 in securities out of a total of $122,668,384 pledged against loans originally totaling $37,137,000. With the loans paid down to 20 million dollars, the RFC would still hold collateral with a par value of $40,839,500 and a present market value of $27,300,000, the road announced.

A resolution by the Illinois Central executive committee said release of the securities in excess of the amount ordinarily required as collateral for such loans would "improve the financial condition and credit of the company."

WHEAT CLIMBS NEARLY 1 CENT ON MILL BUYING

Wheat futures advanced yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade on buying attributed to mills and said to have been in connection with sales of more than 200,000 barrels of flour to chain bakeries. Prices were up about 1 cent a bushel at one time, and gains of ½ to ¾ cent were held at the close as heavy hedging sales failed to have much effect on the market.

Oats had a strong undertone in Chicago and gained ⅛ to ½ cent. Rye was unsettled, closing ¾ cent lower to ⅝ cent higher, the rise being in the May future.

Reports were current that distillers were outbidding mills for hard winter wheat at Illinois and Indiana country points because they no longer could obtain supplies from the Commodity Credit corporation.

BREAK IN BEEF DROUTH HAILED BY MEAT BOARD

Cattle Run Biggest in Two Months.

The war meat board yesterday interpreted the increased receipts of cattle this week as a definite "break" in the marketing stalemate that had kept the nation's supply of beef at levels far below demand.

"Heavy marketing of cattle on Monday and anticipated increased receipts were interpreted as a break in the scarcity of cattle for slaughtering in federally inspected plants during recent months," the board said. "Monday's run included numerous droves that had been withheld from the market during recent weeks. It also included the initial marketings of some large droves of grass fed cattle from Kansas and Oklahoma pastures."

Supply Army and Navy.

The board also announced that beef supplies for the army and navy approximated requirements for the second successive week.

Total slaughter of cattle in federally inspected plants during the last week was 147,000 head, compared with 160,000 head in the preceding week and 215,000 in the corresponding week of 1942. Slaughter of calves dropped to 64,000 head from 75,000 for the preceding week and 95,000 a year ago.

Sheep and lamb slaughter amounted to 361,000 head, compared with 400,000 the preceding week and 340,-00 in the corresponding 1942 period.

Hog butchering totaled 1,126,000 head, compared with 810,000 a year ago to more than offset declines in beef and veal, and total meat production in plants under federal inspection increased 3 per cent from the corresponding week of last year.

Total Is 129,000 Head.

Cattle receipts at 20 of the biggest stockyards Monday and yesterday were the largest in two months. The total was 129,000 head, compared with 73,000 a week earlier, when Monday was a holiday, and 75,000 three weeks ago, when the beef famine was at its worst point. The Monday and Tuesday volume was 103,000 a year ago.

Because of the relatively higher price position of the Chicago cattle market, its increase was much larger than at other places. The two day run of 25,200 head was the largest for Monday and Tuesday in Chicago in eight months. It was 83 per cent above the abnormally low volume of 13,708 three weeks ago.

Most classes of steers, yearlings, and heifers sold steady to slightly lower in Chicago yesterday, with a few sales showing losses of as much as 25 cents a hundred pounds for the two days.

Hog Receipts Are Small.

With a huge unfilled gap in beef requirements, packer demand for all classes of cattle was broad. Some of the largest eastern orders for cattle in recent years were poured into the Chicago yards.

Only 21,000 hogs arrived, the smallest Tuesday total in ten weeks. Prices were mostly steady to 10 cents higher, altho some selected light butchers sold 15 to 20 cents higher in early trade. Numerous loads of 200 to 230 pound young stock brought the $14.10 top.

WLB Directs Anaconda Strikers to Return to Job

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—The war labor board today directed 350 striking chrome miners of the Anaconda Copper Mining company, near Columbus, Mont., to return to work as a condition to board consideration of recommendations of the nonferrous metals commission for settlement of a wage dispute. The strikers are members of three local unions of district 50, United Mine Workers of America.

Labor Shortage Curbs Farm Output; Crops Good in State

Vegetables Spoiling

Agricultural production, especially of fruits and vegetables, is being curtailed in Illinois and Michigan as a result of labor scarcities, despite efforts of federal and state agencies to recruit emergency help.

More than 100,000 cases of peas have been lost in northern Illinois because hot weather ripened good yields at one time, and the necessity of using large numbers of immature workers, P. E. Johnston, state supervisor of the United States crop corps, said yesterday.

Boys Harvest Apples.

Johnston announced yesterday that despite a force of 25,789 workers sent to farms in the last two months, production is suffering. The early apple harvest is in progress, he said, but many of the pickers are inexperienced boys and the quality of the fruit has been lowered by inexpert handling.

An intensified hunt has been started thruout the state for 12,000 men and women for detasseling seed corn starting July 15, Johnston said. An estimated 45,000 acres of hybrid seed corn is at stake.

Some canning companies have been forced to reduce plant operation from 22 to 15 hours a day because of a shortage of supervisory personnel, Johnston stated.

Raspberries Need Picking.

In Michigan a million dollar raspberry crop is in danger of spoilage because of a lack of pickers. L. A. Boyd, director of the Michigan Fruit sponsors, said that 1,000 pickers are needed immediately around Benton Harbor if the crop is to be saved.

Boyd reported that more than 100 farmers swarmed the Benton Harbor fruit market on Monday seeking help from the United States employment service.

An employment office has been opened at the Benton Harbor market to recruit berry pickers. Don Hamilton is in charge and volunteer workers are urged to communicate with him.

Corn Over Average

Illinois crop production prospects on July 1 were above average for corn, soybeans, oats, and tame hay and below average for winter wheat, the state and federal departments of agriculture reported yesterday.

A. J. Surratt, the senior agriculture statistician for the two departments, who compiled the survey, said that the corn and soybean planting season has been similar to 1935, when yields of both crops were above average, but that the outcome for these major commodities is more dependent than usual upon a favorable fall season.

Corn Below Year Ago.

On the basis of July 1 conditions, the state and federal agriculture departments forecast a sharp slump in the Illinois corn crop below the 1942 record yield and declines in oats, hay, and peaches. Winter wheat prospects were said to be improved over last year's poor crop.

Corn, 376,164,000 bushels and 433,438,000; winter wheat, 17,170,000 and 12,623,000; oats, 128,896,000 and 141,320,000; peaches, 440,000 and 652,000, and tame hay, 3,550,000 tons and 3,942,000.

The predicted corn crop, however, is 44,650,000 bushels larger than the 10 year [1932-'41] average for Illinois. The outlook on the first of this month was for a yield averaging 43 bushels to the acre, compared with last year's 54.5 and the 10 year average of 39.

Soybeans Started Late.

The report did not forecast 1943 soybean output but said this "money" crop, with a 7 per cent increase in planted acreage, is growing well after a late start because of heavy spring rains. Soybean acreage is 4,216,000, a new record surpassing the previous high of 3,940,000 acres reached last year.

The winter wheat yield per acre was estimated at 17 bushels, against last year's 13 bushel average, but below the 10 year figure of 18.

FAIRPLAY GROUP IS ORGANIZED FOR INVESTORS

Organization of the Investors' Fairplay league, combining the American Federation of Investors, was announced yesterday. The league, described as a "non-profit, nonpartisan union of investors," has headquarters in New York and offices in Chicago, Washington, D. C., and other large cities.

The league said it proposed to sponsor and encourage sound laws affecting investors and property owners it represents, to work for the defeat of legislation which would impair security and other property values, and to sponsor security holder actions against unfair management practices and proposals.

B. C. Forbes is president of the league, and Benjamin A. Javits is vice president and general counsel. Headquarters of the Illinois division are at 30 North La Salle street, Chicago.

JUNE CASH DIVIDENDS GAIN 5% FROM 1942; FIRST RISE OF YEAR

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—Cash dividend payments in June were 5 per cent higher than a year ago, the department of commerce reported today, adding that the month was the first this year to show an increase above a corresponding period of 1942.

Dividend payments for the month aggregated $390,500,000, to bring the total for the first six months of this year to 1 billion 576 million dollars, a 1 per cent decline from the 1 billion 598 million figure for the first half of 1942.

Manufacturing corporations paid dividends totaling 235 million in June, an 8 per cent increase above the same month last year.

The largest percentage increase, 65 per cent, was recorded by the transportation equipment industry, whose dividends rose from $8,500,000 in June, 1942, to $14,100,000.

BROAD UPTURN SNAPS STOCKS TO 4 YEAR TOP

Rails Climb to Peak Since Late 1937.

New York, July 13 (AP).—Consistently cheering war news again served as a tonic for the stock market today, and many leaders bounded forward to new peaks for three to four years. Gains ranged from fractions to as much as five points or more. Scattered issues failed to make headway or slipped back, but they were far in the minority.

The list made small gains at the start, and closed at approximately its highest level of the day. Dealings were the liveliest in nearly two months, totaling 1,394,110 shares, against 1,054,120 on Monday.

News from Sicily, Russia and the far Pacific of further allied successes were particularly helpful for stocks of companies with better peace time prospects. Except for aircrafts, however, armament shares maintained their balance fairly well. Investment demand centered in coppers, rails, gold mines, motors, rubbers, mail orders, and soft drink favorites, which again benefited from the more hopeful sugar supply outlook.

522 Issues Advance.

The Associated Press 60 stock average advanced 0.4 to 53.1, a new top since Oct. 27, 1939. Breadth of the rise was exemplified by the fact that 928 issues were traded, of which 522 were up, 194 declined, and 212 were unchanged.

After a long struggle the 15 rail stock composite pushed thru the 1943 peak established last May and rose 0.5 to 27.2, its highest mark since Oct. 6, 1937. Earnings statements of the major roads, both actual and predicted, were a prime influence.

Gold mines came to life on war news and the belief the yellow metal

NEW DIRECTORS ARE ELECTED BY GENERAL ANILINE

R. E. M'Connell to Retire as President.

New York, July 13 (AP).—Stockholders of General Aniline and Film corporation today elected a new board of directors and President Robert E. McConnell announced he would retire when his successor is named at a meeting of the board on July 28.

McConnell has been chief executive since March 16, 1942, soon after Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. had suggested a reorganization of the management and directorate to complete Americanization of the company.

Takes 97 Per Cent of Stock.

Morgenthau took control of 97 per cent of the corporation's stock on Feb. 16, 1942, explaining that the large American chemical and photographic supply concern formerly was owned by Germans. In April, 1942, the stock was vested in Leo Crowley, alien property custodian, who in effect 'ected the new board.

New directors included Robert F. Carr, Chicago, president of Dearborn Chemical company; Matthew J. Hickey Jr., Chicago, vice president of General Dyestuffs corporation, and Col. Louis Johnson, Clarksburg, W. Va., president of General Dyestuffs.

Profit Rise Is Reported.

Coincident with today's meeting, the corporation reported profit was $1,183,000, or $1.62 a share on class A stock and 16 cents on class B stock for the quarter ended June 30, compared with $1,101,000, or $1.50 on class A and 15 cents on class B in the second quarter of 1942.

Net earnings announced by corporations yesterday follow:

SOLVENCY NOT A QUESTION IN INVESTORS SUIT

SEC Charges Relate to Sales, 'Switching.'

BY DANIEL NICHOLSON.

The question of the solvency of the Investors Syndicate and subsidiary or affiliated companies is not involved in the suit filed by the securities and exchange commission against the investment company, Edward H. Cashion, counsel of the corporation finance division of the SEC, said yesterday in Chicago. The commission's charges relate only to the selling and "switching" practices of the company, he said.

At a hearing in the federal District court in Minneapolis last Friday, the company declared that its quick assets totaled approximately 176 million dollars and that it could pay in cash the 155 million claims of contract holders and have a cash surplus of more than 20 million.

Illinois contract holders are protected by approximately 6 million dollars in bonds and federal housing administration guaranteed mortgages on deposit with the secretary of state, a representative of the company in Chicago said. The value of the deposited securities is about $400,000 in excess of the company's contract obligations in the state, he declared. An official in the secretary of state's office agreed that the deposited securities exceeded outstanding contract obligations in Illinois.

10,000 Illinois Contracts.

An estimated 10,000 Illinois residents hold instalment savings contracts with Investors Syndicate or its subsidiary, Investors Syndicate of America, Inc. None of the contracts have been sold in Illinois since the close of 1940, when the parent company failed to qualify under the federal investment company act of 1940. The subsidiary, Investors Syndicate of America, Inc., was refused registration in Illinois because of a statute barring new companies having a name closely resembling that of a company already in existence.

The secretary of state of Illinois has suspended the selling of shares in the Investors Mutual, Inc., an investment trust formed in 1940, for which Investors Syndicate is investment manager and sole distributor of its shares. No other action is contemplated by Illinois authorities pending a hearing July 21 at Minneapolis on the SEC's petition for a preliminary injunction against the investment company.

At the initial hearing in the SEC's suit, Investors Syndicate and its affiliates were accused of misrepresentation in "switching" holders of original contracts issued by the parent company into contracts issued by Investors Syndicate of America, Inc., or into shares of Investors Mutual, Inc.

Earlier Rates Vary.

Prior to Jan. 1, 1941, Investors Syndicate had issued its contracts at varying interest rates, depending on money market rates then current. On Jan. 1, 1941, the subsidiary took over the issuing of certificates, with a much lower and fixed interest rate specified. The SEC's complaint alleges that the holders of investment contracts issued by the original company, when the contracts have reached the "break even" point and have a cash value equal to the amount of money paid in, are given special offers to induce them to exchange their contracts for certificates issued by the subsidiary or for shares of the Investors Mutual, Inc.

Contract holders who make the switch must pay an additional "loading" charge for commissions and fees, altho this fact and other important facts concerning the interest yield on the new certificates are misrepresented, the SEC complaint alleges. Because of the loading charges, the cash value of a new certificate does not equal the amount paid in until after the eighth to tenth contract year in force, the complaint states.

DAY BY DAY ON THE FARM

The FARM by Gail Compton

July 13, 1943.

By dint of long hours of work and careful planning, the crops at the Fox river farm are moving steadily into the barns with no delay or loss. Oat harvest has started now. The machines are plugging away at the golden fields, and the first returns seem to indicate a good yield.

Work in the oat fields started the day after the last of the large hay fields was finished. When the baler turned out the final bale, the men got the harvesting machine ready, and were in the fields early the next morning.

Two varieties of oats are growing at the farm, ripening at different times, and making it possible to sandwich the work in between the haying. First to be threshed were the Columbia oats. After these are finished there will be a few days wait until the Gopher oats are ripe.

Systematic Program.

In these few days, the final hay field will be cut and the forage stored away in the barn. There is a 17 acre field of clover and timothy which will be ripe for the sickle when the first of the oats are finished.

Thus these crops fit together neatly in the harvesting program, allowing a maximum harvest with a minimum delay. Things like this reveal intelligent management, and make the difference between a good and a poor year on the farm.

The men are anxious to pay due respect to the neighbors without whose aid the farm might have come to grief. The men thought that last year they worked as hard as they ever would, but this season have been at it even harder. To counter the lack of hands, the farm has been trading labor with neighboring farms. This turnabout aid has made it possible for the farms in the area to get the harvest done without loss.

193 Tons of Hay.

So far, all of the hay has been baled with the pickup baler, as this method saves time and labor. The bales have been stored in the barns with a tractor powered elevator. To date, 4,839 bales of hay have been put away. Figuring 25 bales to the ton, this represents more than 193 tons.

Keeping right on schedule, all of the corn at the farm has been laid. A tractor and cultivator were kept working day after day while the rest of the men made hay; thru this method, the 345 acres of corn were cultivated the necessary three times. Now the stalks are too tall to permit the tractor to go down the rows.

From now on, it merely is a question of when the first fall frost comes. If it arrives late, there will be a good corn crop because weather conditions since the rains stopped have been ideal. If a killing freeze comes early, the men doubt if there will be much corn for the cattle and hogs next year.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

Cucumber beetles have been noticed on vines in central Illinois, so before long they're likely to start molesting cucumber, melon, and squash vines in this area.

These insects are about a quarter of an inch long and have alternate yellow and black stripes on their shell. They are chewing insects, and the preferred poison is made by mixing one part of calcium arsenate with 14 parts of burned gypsum.

Plain hydrated lime will repel cucumber beetles, but if used too heavily has a tendency to make the vines wilt, especially if applied during hot weather.

If cucumber beetles have been bothersome in the garden in past years, it is advisable to start dusting the melon plants lightly as soon as the vines appear above ground. If previous attacks have been light, it is advisable to wait until the beetles are seen on the plants before using the poisonous dusts.

DOUGLAS
New Chicago Plant
IF YOU ACT NOW
many good jobs are still open in various skills and trades where you can get ahead and go places with DOUGLAS.

Don't let any one tell you that this great, new CHICAGO PLANT is merely an assembly branch. This is not true. We build the famous C-54 complete—the giant DOUGLAS SKYMASTER. We perform every operation in building planes ready-to-fly from here to far battle areas. From raw materials all the way thru our own tooling and thru every variety of machining operation, no other plant in the entire aircraft field is any more self-sufficient. Just one of our big buildings, alone, is almost three-quarters of a mile long under one roof. DOUGLAS employees say, "A swell place for all of us to work!"

Everything here is fine and new, each individual works with new, up-to-the-minute equipment and with company furnished tools. Eating facilities are tops. No other job will afford you any greater degree of pleasure along with profit. The essentiality of aircraft means we have materials for full time work, with time and a half pay for overtime above 40 hours per week. You may have group life insurance, health and accident insurance and hospitalization at low cost. And you will have the deep satisfaction of participating DIRECTLY in war effort, seeing YOUR planes fly from here to our fighting men to win VICTORY quicker.

If you are experienced in running machines or doing mechanical or electrical assembly work and bring it in to Motiograph at 4431 W. Lake-st.

Because our company is not overly large you'll be a member of one big family and not just a number on the time clock. Starting pay is good and regular increases are given as your skill or productivity improves.

The jobs that we offer should carry on many years after victory is won, so if you are only looking for a short term job, do not apply.

DEFENSE TRAINING WITH PAY
55c HOUR WHILE TRAINING

Your efforts are needed for us to win this war. In order to do your part, you should engage in direct skilled production of vitally needed arms parts! Here is your opportunity to be trained as an INSPECTOR, ASSEMBLER, BENCH WORKER, or PRECISION MACHINE OPERATOR on 100% aircraft instrument and gun parts.

We have a complete training shop right here in our plant where, if you are accepted, you will be given intensive training for 10 eight-hour days, WITH PAY, in all of the following subjects:

MICROMETER READING
BLUEPRINT READING
INSPECTION METHODS
SHOP MATHEMATICS
DRILL PRESSES
BENCH WORK

After satisfactorily completing this training you will be given an automatic increase in pay and transferred to the job for which you have shown you are best fitted.

In order to be considered you must have proof of citizenship and not now be engaged in essential work.

Please reply by letter giving your age, experience, previous education, and family status.
